AUTUMN NUMBER

NEED A “United” Refrigerating Plant,
MR. FLORIST,

and you need one now. Don't try to get along with the old ice box any longer. The florists who are making money are the florists who are using modern efficiency methods—the United refrigerating plants. They save money—keep the temperature at absolute uniformity—insure longest keeping qualities to the flowers, are cleanly, sanitary, convenient—and advertise their owners as modern and up-to-date merchants. We recently have installed a number of plants for both Growers and Retailers. Our refrigeration experts will gladly co-operate with you regarding specifications and prices. Drop a line today to

Chiffons Galore

ARE HERE FOR OUR CUSTOMERS

Not merely high-priced Chiffons, but the popular-priced kind at prices beyond the reach of competition.

Many months ago, before the present scarcity of popular-priced Chiffons was apparent to the trade, we made ample preparations to protect our customers, and we understand that we have today the largest stock of Florists' Chiffons in America. Every width, every color, every style is here for your selection.

MORE GOODS FOR THE SAME MONEY, or THE SAME GOODS FOR LESS MONEY

We merely emphasize Chiffons because of the present great demand and scarcity, but at the same time understand we are not neglecting our splendid line of standard Florists' Ribbons.

At the Chicago Convention of the S. A. F. we received more awards on Chiffons and Ribbons than any other house. To plagiarize a well-known advertiser—there's a reason.

Our Mail Order Department will execute your orders promptly and intelligently

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

Fresh goods, including all the novelties, constantly arriving. If not in possession of our latest prices, send your list for estimate.

Our Xmas List will be ready soon, and it will, as usual, contain lowest prices on all classes of Christmas goods, including Holly, Evergreen (bulk) and Wreathing, Mistletoe, Immortelles, Cape Flowers, Cotton, Red Bells, Wire Rings, Ruscus, Prepared Oak Leaves, Pot Coverings, Baskets and a full line of all Holiday Goods. You will need it. If it does not come to you, please write us and send your orders to us and do not be disappointed. Sixteen years continually at it has made us Headquarters for everything the Florist uses.

FORD AUTOS ARE THE BEST

"My prediction is that every up-to-date Commercial and Retail Florist will use the Ford delivery cars in their business. I am proud of Chas. Bretzel, of Roslyn, and all the other Long Island growers who are using the Ford cars because their flowers now reach the New York market in perfect condition, spotless and unbruised. It is a great pleasure to me to have been instrumental in furnishing so many of these fine machines to leading Long Island florists. Give me the opportunity and I will have you speeding over the hills of Long Island within the day you place your order with me."

5-inch pots.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots for specimen stock for Christmas.....
.....$9 per dozen

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEEDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL."

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Vlaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

2½-inch pots.....$2.50 per dozen; $15 per 100; $125 per 1000

THE AUTUMN FLOWER SHOWS

ST. PAUL.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association achieved a first-class success with its initial flower show. The exhibition was held in the Auditorium, opening November 8 and continuing to November 12. A carload of wild smilax was used in decorating the hall, and the arrangement of the exhibits, which was in charge of August Swanson, superintendent, was excellent, so that a splendid general effect was secured. A liberal premium list brought a satisfactory number of entries, although possibly not so many as had been anticipated. The quality of the stock was excellent throughout, the people of the northwest never having had an opportunity to see finer flowers. The St. Paul retailers recognized their opportunity and the showing of retail work was the most attractive feature of the show from the point of view of the general public. One of the notable points was the lavish use of orchids. It was practically a commercial show, the exhibits being nearly all from those in the trade, but it is doubtful if at any other show in the United States have orchids been used so lavishly.

The committee recognized that in recent years the greatest difficulty in the management of a flower show has been in attracting the public, and a number of novel features were arranged with gate receipts in view. The formal opening was made a society function through the presence of the mayor of the city, who made an address introducing the governor of the state, who was accompanied by his staff in uniform. The governor, as well as the mayor, made a felicitous address. On the opening night one of the new chrysanthemums of Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., was named through the drawing of lots. It was designated as colonial night and each of the season's debutantes present was dressed in colonial costume and each drew a chance for the naming of the chrysanthemum. Miss Lucile Quinlan drew the lucky number and the chrysanthemum was named for her. Of course it made a fine newspaper story. The mum is of the Appleton yellow and looks like a good commercial variety. November 11 the same kind of an affair was employed in the naming of the new rose of John Monson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co. It is a dark pink sort of fine promise and the naming fell to Miss Elenor Merrill, who christened it Minnetocka. Each day had some such special feature to stimulate public interest and the attendance.

Roses.

Saturday was designated as rose day and a fine lot of stock was exhibited, the quality of all the exhibits being of the best. Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was easily the leader in taking prizes, although Holton & Hunkel Co.,

Milwaukee, beat them out on Killarney and on the yellow. Holm & Olson took first on an exceptionally fine vase of Sunburst over Poehlmann's equally fine Mrs. Ward.

Of the roses not yet in commerce Mrs. Geo. Shawyer scored eighty-seven points. This was exhibited by C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J. The blooms arrived in fine shape and held up well. The color is a pink about the shade of My Maryland. The bud is extremely compact and double and it received the praise of many prominent growers. It should make a good commercial variety. A new red rose, Milady, was exhibited by A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn. This scored eighty-five points and from all appearances should prove a good commercial variety. The color is of the Richmond shade, stem and foliage are fine, and this rose also received much praise from good authorities. Each was awarded a certificate of merit. The awards in the open classes were:

One hundred American Beauties—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; L. L. May & Co., second; Holm & Olson, third.
One hundred Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second.
One hundred Killarney—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Fifty White Killarney—Clinton Falls Nursery Co., first; N. Nelsen, second; Merriam Park Floral Co., third.

Fifty any yellow rose—Merriam Park Floral Co., second; A. N. Kinsman, third.

Fifty any other variety—A. N. Kinsman, second.

Carnations.

Monday, November 11, was carnation day and it brought out an excellent showing, the premiums being well distributed. The awards in the classes open to all were:

One hundred white—Nic. Zweifel, North Milwaukee, Wis., first, with White Perfection; Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, second; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, third.

One hundred Winsor or lighter—Chicago Carnation Co., first, with Winsor; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

One hundred darker than Winsor—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first, with Mrs. C. W. Ward; Chicago Carnation Co., second.

THE AUTUMN FLOWER SHOWS

ST. PAUL.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association achieved a first-class success with its initial flower show. The exhibition was held in the Auditorium, opening November 8 and continuing to November 12. A carload of wild smilax was used in decorating the hall, and the arrangement of the exhibits, which was in charge of August Swanson, superintendent, was excellent, so that a splendid general effect was secured. A liberal premium list brought a satisfactory number of entries, although possibly not so many as had been anticipated. The quality of the stock was excellent throughout, the people of the northwest never having had an opportunity to see finer flowers. The St. Paul retailers recognized their opportunity and the showing of retail work was the most attractive feature of the show from the point of view of the general public. One of the notable points was the lavish use of orchids. It was practically a commercial show, the exhibits being nearly all from those in the trade, but it is doubtful if at any other show in the United States have orchids been used so lavishly.

The committee recognized that in recent years the greatest difficulty in the management of a flower show has been in attracting the public, and a number of novel features were arranged with gate receipts in view. The formal opening was made a society function through the presence of the mayor of the city, who made an address introducing the governor of the state, who was accompanied by his staff in uniform. The governor, as well as the mayor, made a felicitous address. On the opening night one of the new chrysanthemums of Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., was named through the drawing of lots. It was designated as colonial night and each of the season's debutantes present was dressed in colonial costume and each drew a chance for the naming of the chrysanthemum. Miss Lucile Quinlan drew the lucky number and the chrysanthemum was named for her. Of course it made a fine newspaper story. The mum is of the Appleton yellow and looks like a good commercial variety. November 11 the same kind of an affair was employed in the naming of the new rose of John Monson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co. It is a dark pink sort of fine promise and the naming fell to Miss Elenor Merrill, who christened it Minnetocka. Each day had some such special feature to stimulate public interest and the attendance.

Roses.

Saturday was designated as rose day and a fine lot of stock was exhibited, the quality of all the exhibits being of the best. Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was easily the leader in taking prizes, although Holton & Hunkel Co.,

Milwaukee, beat them out on Killarney and on the yellow. Holm & Olson took first on an exceptionally fine vase of Sunburst over Poehlmann's equally fine Mrs. Ward.

Of the roses not yet in commerce Mrs. Geo. Shawyer scored eighty-seven points. This was exhibited by C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J. The blooms arrived in fine shape and held up well. The color is a pink about the shade of My Maryland. The bud is extremely compact and double and it received the praise of many prominent growers. It should make a good commercial variety. A new red rose, Milady, was exhibited by A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn. This scored eighty-five points and from all appearances should prove a good commercial variety. The color is of the Richmond shade, stem and foliage are fine, and this rose also received much praise from good authorities. Each was awarded a certificate of merit. The awards in the open classes were:

The table decorations were the feature of special interest to St. Paul florists and also to those of their customers who attended the show. There Olson, who were second, used Vanda cærulea and oncidium. Miss H. B. Whitted, Minneapolis, who was third, used cypripediums, cattleyas and oncidiums. Vogt's Flower Store used oncidiums and valley. L. L. May & Co. used Cattleya labiata. The Flower Shop, Minneapolis, used baskets of cattleyas.

On the closing day the exhibitors were privileged to use anything except orchids. Holm & Olson took first on a novelty table. A fountain effect, with water thrown to a height of about one foot in the center, was electric lighted, and around this was artistically arranged a circle of Diana mums out of which protruded vases of bouvardia. This proved quite a feature, as it was the first time a table decoration of this kind had been attempted. The fountain was connected with a motor that was attached to a pump so that only one gallon of water was used and kept circulating. L. L. May & Co. were second and Swanson third, with the others all putting up handsome tables.

Bouquets and Baskets.

Next to the table decorations, baskets of cut flowers and the bouquets for bridal parties attracted more attention than anything else on the show. The principal exhibitors all did first-class work. The baskets of roses were especially good. Holm & Olson used Bulgare, Melody and Richmond, while L. L. May & Co. used Killarney and valley. Swanson's used My Maryland. The awards for baskets and bouquets were:

Basket or hamper of orchids—Holm & Olson, first; L. S. Donaldson Co., second; L. L. May & Co., third.

The Merriam Park Floral Co. displayed its orchids arranged in a pergola that was extremely well done.

Miss H. B. Whitted showed a Japanese garden with a rustic bridge and a pergola of bamboo. The flowers were auratum lilies and Paper Whites, with crotons and ferns.

The State Agricultural College showed an interesting lot of seedlings and seeds in the process of germination, also many diseased plants, with instructions on how to treat them.

C. N. Ruedlinger showed photographs of tree surgery. A feature was the photographic display of gardens and home grounds.

Among the special exhibits of Holm & Olson were some Tausendschon roses, poinsettias and lilacs.

Oakland cemetery showed a fine specimen of Alphonse Ricard geranium, exceptionally large and well flowered.

Como park made a fine display of tropical plants and chrysanthemums.

L. W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, took an active interest in the show and was the principal exhibitor in the classes for private growers.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, won the sweepstakes for the best six mums, with Elberon, scoring ninety-five points on the commercial scale and ninety-six points on the exhibition scale.

The Minneapolis parks were given a special award for a bed of celosias.

The St. Paul parks received a silver cup for their contribution to the show.

Special mention was given Henry Krinke & Son for a display of the new lobelia, Mrs. August Swanson, which is larger and finer than any previously shown.

C. G. Nordine, of Lake City, was given special mention for a fine collection of mums not for competition.

W. T. Symonds, of Decorah, Ia., received honorable mention for a fine lot of red carnations that arrived too late to stage.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, president-elect of the S. A. F., gave an illustrated lecture, November 11, on "The Gardens of Japan."

BUFFALO.

The beautiful flower show staged and managed by the Buffalo Florists' Club was held November 6 to 10. The show was arranged by the coöperative efforts of the florists and was designed by George W. McClure. Mr. McClure also superintended the work of arrangements, etc. The show itself was the most beautiful sight ever staged in Convention hall and the large crowds which attended were amazed at the magnitude and grandeur of the sight. The general plan represented an Italian garden and the details were carried out exactly. The first view to the spectator was the long, low arrangement, with a fountain playing in the center and at the extreme end a beautiful painting of mountains, which gave the stage a distant look and thereby added much to the garden effect. Running parallel with the garden were rows of tall cedars thirty feet high, placed close together so as to form a screen for the garden and the side exhibits. The inner spaces were beautifully arranged by the park system. The outer side of the orchids. It was extremely well executed and showed to best advantage a large number of varieties such as may be had in flower at this season.

The Merriam Park Floral Co. displayed its orchids arranged in a pergola that was extremely well done.

Miss H. B. Whitted showed a Japanese garden with a rustic bridge and a pergola of bamboo. The flowers were auratum lilies and Paper Whites, with crotons and ferns.

The State Agricultural College showed an interesting lot of seedlings and seeds in the process of germination, also many diseased plants, with instructions on how to treat them.

C. N. Ruedlinger showed photographs of tree surgery. A feature was the photographic display of gardens and home grounds.

Among the special exhibits of Holm & Olson were some Tausendschon roses, poinsettias and lilacs.

Oakland cemetery showed a fine specimen of Alphonse Ricard geranium, exceptionally large and well flowered.

Como park made a fine display of tropical plants and chrysanthemums.

L. W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, took an active interest in the show and was the principal exhibitor in the classes for private growers.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, won the sweepstakes for the best six mums, with Elberon, scoring ninety five points on the commercial scale and ninety six points on the exhibition scale.

The Minneapolis parks were given a special award for a bed of celosias.

The St. Paul parks received a silver cup for their contribution to the show.

Special mention was given Henry Krinke & Son for a display of the new lobelia, Mrs. August Swanson, which is larger and finer than any previously shown.

C. G. Nordine, of Lake City, was given special mention for a fine collection of mums not for competition.

W. T. Symonds, of Decorah, Ia., received honorable mention for a fine lot of red carnations that arrived too late to stage.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, president-elect of the S. A. F., gave an illustrated lecture, November 11, on "The Gardens of Japan."

BUFFALO.

The beautiful flower show staged and managed by the Buffalo Florists' Club was held November 6 to 10. The show was arranged by the cooperative efforts of the florists and was designed by George W. McClure. Mr. McClure also superintended the work of arrangements, etc. The show itself was the most beautiful sight ever staged in Convention hall and the large crowds which attended were amazed at the magnitude and grandeur of the sight. The general plan represented an Italian garden and the details were carried out exactly. The first view to the spectator was the long, low arrangement, with a fountain playing in the center and at the extreme end a beautiful painting of mountains, which gave the stage a distant look and thereby added much to the garden effect. Running parallel with the garden were rows of tall cedars thirty feet high, placed close together so as to form a screen for the garden and the side exhibits. The inner spaces were beautifully arranged by the park system. The outer side of the tall cedars, Charles Sandiford, gardener for J. J. Albright, filled with the most beautiful and choice stock in the show. Mr. Sandiford's exhibit of orchids was magnificent. This exhibit also contained the largest mums, and these attracted the eager eyes of the crowd. The side walls were taken care of by the florists, the largest exhibitors being Palmer, Anderson and Scott. As the exhibits were not for competition, the stock was arranged for effect, and also for the general effect of the show. The idea worked out just as planned and the show was a big success. Palmer showed many roses, among them being the smallest rose grown, Mignon. This was arranged in a glass bowl and caused much comment. Anderson showed the new rose, Milady, and like everyone who sees it, thinks it a wonder.

The committee in charge were:

Ways and means—W. J. Palmer, Charles T. Guenther, E. C. Brucker, William B. Scott, W. J. Peake, S. A. Anderson, Louis Neubeck, Charles Sandiford, William C. Stroh, William F. Kasting.

Show—George H. McClure, William Grever, Fred H. Brown, George D. Hale, Charles H. Keltsch.

Press—W. A. Adams, Otto Gillis, Albert Reichert, Edward Slattery, John F. Cowell.

Tickets—Joseph Streit, Robert Scott, J. Benson Stafford, Edward Altman, Albert Keltsch.

Flower booth—Wallace H. Elias, Edward Stroh, Charles Schoenhut, William Sievers, E. Douglas Savage.

The club had in connection with the show an ice cream concession and a flower booth, which proved a good money maker, especially the last night, when everybody got a bargain and a good sum was cleaned up by the scheme.

We learned many things from the show and, while it was not a success such as we would have liked, we cannot help but feel that a good many more people will want flowers from time to time. The press and other forms of advertising spread the news broadcast and for the week talk of flowers was on everybody's lips. These shows are a lot of work and, after all, when done for advertising, for we can say the last two were for that, some of the members are of the opinion that the same money spent in the store, and directly for the store, would bring more results. On the other hand, some believe that it would be better to hold the show on a scale not so elaborate in design and preparation, feeling that the crowd will appreciate it to the same extent. Buffalo has held shows for competition and shows for exhibition, but in either case we get plenty of praise and not enough at the box office.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

It was a magnificent exhibition that the Tarrytown Horticultural Society staged in Music hall November 6 and which drew large crowds during the three days that the flowers were on view. The principal exhibitors were the well known private gardeners of the locality and the quality of the stock made up in interest for anything the show may have lacked in size as compared with the exhibitions in the largest cities. Not only was all the stock good but the arrangement was excellent throughout.

The silver medal for new plant was won by Scott Bros., of Elmsford, N. Y., for a new nephrolepis.

Richard Langle, of White Plains, was first for both single and double violets.

Scott Bros. were first for twenty-five carnations, any variety, with Wm. Eccles, J. D. Cockcroft, Northport, L. I., being second, with Northport.

F. R. Pierson Co. was first for twenty-five roses of any one variety, with Killarney. Several of the Pierson employees entered in the fern classes and divided the premiums.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., showed a fine vase of the new red rose, Milady, and was rewarded with a certificate of merit.

Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., staged a handsome exhibit of his new pink rose, Mrs. George Shawyer, and was awarded a certificate.

Honorable mention was given F. R. Pierson Co., for a group of ferns, and for roses, also to Scott Bros. for a display of single chrysanthemums.

There was, as usual, a large showing of fruits and vegetables.

The following were the principal exhibitors of plants, cut flowers and vegetables, and they secured most of the prizes:

George Middleton, gardener to William Rockefeller; Allen Jenkins, gardener to S. P. Shotter; Wm. Jamieson, gardener to Emil Berolzheim; John Elliott, gardener to Geo. Legg; Wm. J. Sealey, gardener to Chas. Mallory; Robert Grieve, gardener to Hugh Hill; P. W. Popp, gardener to H. Darlington; W. H. Waite, superintendent for Samuel Untermyer; Geo. Wittlinger, gardener to Miss Blanche Potter; Wm. C. Roberts, gardener for Frederick Potter; R. L. Cushman, gardener to Wm. B. Thompson; Edw. Kane, gardener to E. L. Coster; James Stevens, gardener to M. C. Herrmann; A. Underwood, superintendent for W. A. Read; Wm. Brock, gardener to R. Delafield; Thos. A. Lee, gardener to M. L. Sand; A. L. Marshall, gardener to H. J. Park; John Canning, gardener to Adolph Lewisohn; H. M. Blanche, gardener to Wm. R. Harris; A. Macdonald, gardener to D. E. Oppenheimer; Chas. L. Fisher, gardener to H. E. Rogers, and the gardeners for Joseph Eastman, F. W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. W. H. Pullman and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish. George Middleton won the Pierson silver cup offered for the exhibitor winning the most prizes.

The judges were Alex. MacKenzie, Glen Cove, N. Y.; A. Bauer, Deal Beach, N. Y.; A. Briske, Noroton, Conn.; F. Heeremans, Lenox, Mass.; Robert Spies, Dalton, Mass., and J. R. Fotheringham, of Tarrytown, assisted by several society ladies and Edward W. Newbrand, the ubiquitous secretary.

BOSTON.

November 7 proved rather late for many of the specimen blooms at the Boston show, and while some fine flowers were shown, they were fewer in number than usual. Specimen plants also seem to be almost a thing of the past here, as only one exhibitor brought any of these. They were, however, of superb quality. What the exhibition lacked in specimen plants and blooms was compensated for in the many miscellaneous displays and exhibits of the retailers. There was in addition an extensive fruit display, which occupied the extreme end of the large hall, the whole of the small exhibition hall and the basement.

For twenty-five Japanese varieties, distinct, D. F. Roy, gardener to H. E. Converse, was first with splendid, well finished flowers of Wells' Late Pink, Appleton, H. E. Converse, F. S. Vallis, Onunda, Ethel Fitzroy, F. T. Quittenton, President Taft, Lady Hopetoun, Wm. Turner, Mme. Boissant, Glenview, W. E. Etherington, W. R. Brock, Cheltoni, Miss Alice Finch, R. F. Felton, W. Duckham, Ongawa, Thanksgiving Queen, Yellow Miller, Pockett's Surprise, Dr. Enguehard and W. Woodmason.

Retailers' Baskets of Chrysanthemums at the Boston Exhibition.

The best twelve Japanese were from the same exhibitor and were F. S. Vallis, W. E. Etherington, Lady Carmichael, F. T. Quittenton, Pockett's Crimson, Reginald Vallis, Brighthurst, Mrs. J. E. Dunne, Lady Hopetoun, Cheltoni and Mlle. Simon Jossier. For twelve Japanese incurved Mr. Roy also led, with H. E. Converse, Wm. Turner, Mrs. G. C. Kelley, Onunda, Well's Late Pink, Ongawa, Poughkeepsie, Glenview, Appleton, W. Duckham, W. R. Brock and Pockett's Surprise. For twelve varieties, reflexed, Eric Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. L. Leland, won with a splendid lot of flowers. For twelve sprays pompons E. A. Butler was first, with Edgar Bros. second and third. W. Abraham, gardener to E. D. Jordan, had the best twelve vases of singles. For the Gane memorial prize for Mrs. Jerome Jones, that veteran exhibitor, James Nicol, was again invincible, showing superb flowers, with W. S. Russell second.

For ten blooms white, James Nicol was first, with Merza; Alex. McKay, gardener to E. A. Clark, second, also with Merza; W. W. Edgar Co., third. For ten yellow, W. S. Russell was first, with Appleton; W. W. Edgar Co., second; E. A. Clark, third. For ten blooms pink James Nicol was first, with Miriam Hankey; W. W. Edgar Co., second; E. A. Clark, third. For the best vase of seventy-five blooms W. W. Edgar Co. captured all three prizes, their Bonaffon and Eaton being fine.

The retailers came out strongly for the table decorations of chrysanthemums laid for ten covers. Ladies judged this class. First went to MacMulkin, who used Garza and adiantum entirely. H. R. Comley was second, with yellow pompons tastefully arranged. F. H. Houghton was third, with Bonaffon and baby yellow pompons. The Boston Cut Flower Co. had a pretty table arranged with pompons. There were eight entries in this class.

For the best basket of chrysanthemums the Boston Cut Flower Co. led with a beautiful basket of Nagoya. The Rosary was second, with Bonaffon and baby yellow pompons. MacMulkin was third, with a mixed basket of pompons.

James Marlborough, gardener to Thomas E. Proctor, had a grand lot of specimen plants showing superb culture. These included a pair of perfect Garza, Mayor Weaver, Canary Bird, single yellow; Touring Club, Dr. Enguehard and Yellow Feather, single. For two beautiful specimens trained as baskets he received a bronze medal. These showed true artistic skill. W. W. Elliott had a nice group of commercial bush plants, taking first for twelve specimens, also for twelve single flowering varieties. These were all unsupported. For six plants carrying six flowers each Mrs. Lester Leland won with a splendid half dozen.

For a pair of specimen kentias George Page, gardener to Mrs. F. Ayer, led, followed by M. Sullivan, gardener to W. Whitman, and W. W. Edgar Co. For a pair of arecas Duncan Finlayson was first; George Barker, gardener to A. F. Estabrook, second; Mrs. F. Ayer, third. For three Gloire de Lorraine begonias J. S. Bailey was first; E. A. Clark, second, the latter winning for three Glory of Cincinnati.

In the way of groups, the large hall was well furnished. For the 300-foot group of foliage and flowering plants, W. W. Edgar Co. led with a splendid group. This included many well flowered azaleas. Edward MacMulkin was second. For the 150-foot group for private gardeners Wm. Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, was first. T. D. Hatfield, gardener to Walter Hunne- well, had the best 300-foot group of chrysanthemum plants. Wheeler & Co., with a charming arrangement chiefly of cattleyas, oncidiums and Dendrobium Phalaenopsis, led in the orchid group, E. MacMulkin being second.

There were numerous miscellaneous exhibits. Mrs. F. Ayer had a splendid collection of single chrysanthemums. A. N. Pierson Co. had a good display of single, pompon and anemone chrysanthemums, also Rose Milady, which showed up well. It was awarded a first-class certificate. Mrs. E. M. Gill had a fine general collection of chrysanthemums. She also had a well arranged basket. Edgar Bros. had some fine vases of pompons. A. M. Davenport and W. C. Ritchie, gardener to Mrs. Francis Peabody, had groups of well grown Lorraine begonias. Julius Roehrs Co. had stove plants, orchids and ericas. Thomas Roland had a splendid group, including ericas, crotons, cyclamens, nerines, celosias, etc. Duncan Finlayson had a group of Lorraine begonias and Phoenix Roebelenii. E. A. Clark had a group of kentias and begonias. William Sim filled a large stand with splendid Princess of Wales violets, and W. Whitman had a fine group of foliage plants and chrysanthemums.

Rose Mme. Charles Russell shown with 5-foot stems, from the Waban Conservatories, was the real sensation of the show. This was constantly surrounded by an admiring crowd and earned a gold medal, the society's highest award.

George Melvin secured the S. A. F. silver medal for American novelties with Solanum capsicastrum Melvini. Wheeler & Co. secured a silver medal for Cattleya labiata, and Mrs. H. A. Wheeler and Potter & Co. the same award for a grand display of their new crimson carnation, Princess Dagmar. L. C. Midgley received honorable mention for his new scarlet carnation, Eureka, and Duncan Finlayson the same for Cymbidium erythrostylum. William Davis received a cultural certificate for well flowered plants of the large scarlet winter flowering begonia, Mrs. Heal, raised by Veitchs, of London.

The attendance was the largest ever seen at a chrysanthemum exhibition in Boston, being only eclipsed in late years by the Japanese garden exhibition three years ago. W. N. Craig.

PHILADELPHIA.

It is seldom that a flower show merits a second chapter in an alert florists' weekly, but in this instance the show improved as it progressed and it developed several encouraging facts. The management has always attempted to bring new attractions on each succeeding day, but has never succeeded so well before. Perhaps it is in recognition of this fact, and perhaps it is due to the efforts for publicity, that the attendance, larger than usual on election day, continued to improve throughout the show, with the possible exception of Thursday, when it poured.

vase or basket that makes a pretty souvenir in itself. Charles Henry Fox decorated a bit of "Old Rome," in a way that softened without hiding the beauty of the classic lines of the form; the workmanship displayed the master hand. Julius Wolff, Jr., arranged a showy piece of orchids and lily of the valley, with ferns in pleasing combination. Robert Kift adorned a mantel with a great cluster of well-colored Killarney, with cibotium and white chrysanthemums in the open fireplace beneath.

The vegetables were wonderful examples of what can be done in a favorable season. An additional feature of the show was the presence of the high school girls, and some of the classes from the public schools were guests of the society. Phil.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The annual exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in Elysium hall, November 8 and 9, and was one of the best that have been given by the society in a number of years. The Rhode Island Corn Association joined in the exhibition, so that the combined showing was interesting and instructive. One entire side of the large hall was given over to decorative effects, conspicuous among which were two fireplaces and mantels, decorated as for a wedding. One was a study in red and white, while the other was in yellow, with palms and foliage plants. One was shown by Eugene Appleton and the other by T. J. Johnston & Co.

The leading exhibitor in the flower show was the Rhode Island Hospital, Cornelius Hartstra, gardener. This included nearly 100 varieties of chrysanthemums. John Macrae had three vases of chrysanthemums, of twenty-five each, pink, white and yellow, that proved to be prize winners. Albert Holscher, F. Macrae & Sons, John Marshall and E. J. Johnston were among the other large exhibitors of chrysanthemums.

Burke & Burns made a fine showing of roses, including Richmond, Killarney, White Killarney and Maryland. Albert Holscher and E. J. Johnston were the larger exhibitors of violets, while John A. Macrae and John Marshall showed the finest carnations. William Appleton showed an attractive corner of ferns, palms, etc., and Edgar L. Nock exhibited fine orchids and foliage plants. Fifteen handsome bay trees were shown by the Home Nursery Co., N. D. Pierce, proprietor, and a cibotium by T. J. Johnston & Co. attracted attention.

The show was staged by Eugene Appleton with good effect. W. H. M.

NEW YORK.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The report of the annual meeting, re-election of officers and selection of Chicago for the 1913 convention and exhibition appeared in The Review for November 7.

The Exhibition.

The exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, in conjunction with the American Institute of New York, opened November 6 and, while the quantity of exhibits was slightly lacking because many of the Everyone went away pleased; they had seen a good show, well staged.

Wednesday saw the arrival of more roses and carnations. A feature was Robert Scott & Son's exhibit of novelties. It included two vases of Irish Fire Flame, a striking single rose, with buds of brilliant scarlet shading to coppery salmon, that appealed to the most refined taste; Mrs. Ford, a Malmaison shade of pink of great substance, said to be free flowering, and Janet, a pretty rose that belongs to the Sunburst class.

John Stephenson & Son exhibited a handsome vase of Radiance, not for competition. In one of the competitive classes two of John Cook's seedlings, Radiance and My Maryland, were pitted against each other in a free-for-all, the latter winning.

Thursday brought out the retail exhibits, an innovation that gave great pleasure to all. Pennoek Bros. had a table of debutante gifts, made up and arranged with exquisite taste. The individual bunches were in the fashionable forms of the day, frequently in a exhibitors' flowers were past, still the quality was fair.

The Chrysanthemum Society's silver cup for ten blooms of one variety was won by Jas. MacDonald, gardener to J. H. Ottley, Glen Cove, N. Y., with fine flowers of Wm. Turner. Other magnificent exhibits in this class were the Turner from Jos. Kennedy, gardener for Mrs. J. A. Lyle, of Tenafly, N. J., and F. E. Nash from Wm. Vert, gardener for Howard Gould, of Port Washington, N. Y.

Five blooms of Wm. Kleinheinz was won by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.

The W. W. Wells special medals for three blooms of Annie L. Angus were awarded as follows: Gold, to Wm. Vert; silver, to Walter Angus, gardener to R. & H. Scoville, Chapinville, Conn.; bronze, to John Everitt.

Six blooms of Mrs. Geo. Burke was won by Henry Popp, gardener for H. D. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

The Henry A. Dreer prize for six blooms pink was captured by C. H. Totty, who also secured the Foley prize for six blooms white, with splendid flowers of Wm. Turner.

The Lord & Burnham prize for six blooms of American seedling never before exhibited was won by C. H. Totty with No. 4.

The Converse prize for six blooms Harry E. Converse was won by Ernest Wild, gardener to C. W. Harkness, Madison, N. J., with one of the finest vases of flowers in the whole exhibition.

The A. N. Pierson prize for twelve blooms any one variety was won by Traendly & Schenck, Samuel Redstone grower, of Rowayton, Conn.

The Hitchings silver cup for ten vases pompons, one variety in each vase, was won by Mt. Greenwood cemetery, Morgan Park, Ill., C. W. Johnson grower.

In the class for twenty-five blooms Traendly & Schenck captured first with Col. Appleton.

In the class calling for thirty varieties, one bloom each, Chas. H. Totty scored first.

In the class for private growers only, thirty varieties, Wm. Vert captured first. For ten varieties David F. Roy, gardener for H. E. Converse, Marion, Mass., was first and Walter Angus second. For ten blooms any white Geo. Hale, gardener to E. D. Adams, Rumson, N. J., was awarded first with Wm. Turner. Robert Johnson, gardener to Payne Whitney, Manhasset, L. I., received second. Carl Schaeffer, gardener to Richard Mortimer, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., scored first for ten yellow with Col. Appleton; Wm. Vert, second, with ten Yellow Miller. Geo. Hale scored first with his own seedling in the class calling for ten pink. For ten bronze Wm. Vert was first, with Glenview; Alex. MacKenzie, gardener for Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, L. I., second, with Mary Mason. Jos. Kennedy scored first for ten blooms in variety, with Mr. MacKenzie second.

Six blooms any white was won by John Everitt, gardener to J. T. Pratt, Glen Cove, with Wm. Turner. Jas. Bell, gardener for C. K. G. Billings, was second, with the same variety. There was a wonderful showing by Turner all through the exhibition, and this phenomenal variety is well worthy of comment. As usual, Mary Donnellan was practically invincible in the classes calling for six yellow, Wm. Vert scoring first with this variety and also for six Japanese reflexed yellow, with Lenox. Mr. Vert also scored first with the old Mrs. D. V. West in the class calling for six white, and in the class calling for six bronze with Howard Gould. This grower also scored first in the class calling for six pink with Wm. Duckham. Walter Angus scored first for six crimson with Pockett's Crimson. Frank Black, gardener for G. E. Chapman, Oakland, N. J., was first for six any yellow, with F. S. Vallis. John Everitt was first for six pink with Wells' Late Pink, and Joseph Kennedy first for six Japanese incurved crimson with Mrs. H. Partridge.

Most of the firsts in the specimen plant classes were won by Peter Duff, gardener for Mrs. J. Crosby Brown, Orange, N. J. His white was Lady Lydia, his yellow Mrs. R. Hooper Pearson, his pink Annie Laurie, and his crimson Matchless. W. J. Sealey, gardener to Chas. Mallory, Port Chester, N. Y., had some excellent specimens, among them being Annie Laurie and Golden Shower. In the classes for standards John F. Johnson, gardener for Paul Dana, Glen Cove, had a plant of Beatrice May that was noteworthy because this variety is not considered usually as running tall enough to make a standard. For twelve bush plants as grown for market, Jas. Bell won first prize.

Of special note aside from the schedule was a collection of singles from John Everitt, Glen Cove. This was a magnificent exhibit and included, among others, Ceddie Mason, Margaret Totty, Robert Thorp and Merstham Jewel Improved; and a collection of 100 varieties of pompons and singles from Chas. H. Totty. These included a number of pompons not yet disseminated, and also a handsome collection of unnamed seedlings. The collection of C. W. Johnson's that won the Hitchings cup for pompons was particularly fine. Traendly & Schenck showed some fine carnations, which included their new Salmon Queen, White Perfection and Pink Delight.

Jas. D. Cockcroft, of Northport, N. Y., exhibited Northport, which was awarded a certificate.

The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, showed a new variety called Vivid, a magnificent cerise pink, and also Matchless, the new white, in excellent condition.

There were no classes for roses, but splendid vases of roses were shown, including Milady, from A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn.; Mme. Chas. Russell, from the Waban Conservatories, Natick, Mass., and Mrs. Geo. Shawyer, from Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J. In standard varieties Traendly & Schenck made a splendid showing of Radiance, on 6½-foot stems, also Sunburst and Prince de Bulgarie.

In hardy chrysanthemums, for the best collection of twenty vases, Chas. H. Rice, of Rochelle Park, N. J., secured first with a splendid exhibit, and Thos. Meehan & Sons, Germantown, Pa., also had a magnificent showing.

ROCHESTER.

The Rochester flower show, which was described in last week's issue of The Review and which has just closed, was made notable by the fact that it can almost be called a municipal flower show. The idea that it was being conducted by a commercial association was tee, is also a newspaper man, and it was through his efforts that much of the extensive publicity was made possible. Besides the generosity of the newspapers, the business houses gave great assistance. This was all done with the distribution of not more than 1,200 complimentary tickets. The hall is centrally located and is a place where two rooms, the colonial garden scheme was carried throughout. It was much like passing from a large, less formal part into a smaller but more formal part of the same garden. To carry out this scheme necessitated the limiting of the individual exhibitors. They were forced to arrange their exhibit so that each would be in harmony with its position, its neighbor, and the general design. This really subordinated the flowers to the decoration. It was a case of the exhibits giving up much of their direct advertising value for the sake of the general effect. It was as wonderful an exhibition of restraint and co-operation on the part of the exhibitors, as it was of interior decoration. Much of the advertising value of the show lay in the stimulus that it would give to the trade in general.

Hung from the ceiling of each room was a false ceiling made of latticework trimmed with southern smilax, two carloads of which were used in this and other decorations. This, combined with the unique lighting scheme, greatly aided in giving a subdued effect. The ample lighting was all indirect. The ceiling lights were reflected upward and the side lights were all shaded, the aim of the design being to produce an effect of restfulness and quiet charm.

There seems to be a general feeling on the part of the exhibitors that the show was well worth while, even if it should turn out, when the bills are all in, that there is a small deficit to be shouldered.

The Tea Room, under the general direction of Mrs. Wm. L. Keller, president of the Ladies' Association, and Mrs. John Dunbar, chairman of the refreshment committee, turned a handsome profit. The meals provided for exhibitors promoted good fellowship among the florists.

Mr. Dunbar's splendid collection of shrubs with ornamental fruits proved to be one of the strong features of the show.

studiously kept in the background. There was no competition for prizes and all schemes of the exhibitors to advertise themselves were rigorously ruled out. They were allowed only to put their name on their exhibits on inconspicuous, uniform cards. They were also forced to have their exhibits harmonize with the general scheme of decoration. A civic atmosphere was given by the fact that Rochester is widely known as the Flower City, and this allowed the Chamber of Commerce to give a great deal of help.

The method of handling the Rochester show differed in three important points from that usually pursued. The first was the semi-civic character. The second was the character and extent of the advertising, which was made possible by a show of this character. The third point was the general scheme of decoration used.

Everything practicable was done to give the show as much of a civic atmosphere as possible. In the carrying out of this idea, the newspapers and the Chamber of Commerce did much. The newspapers always referred to the show as the Rochester show, as if it were a municipal affair. The park board, besides being a large exhibitor, furnished the park band for the opening day. The city also furnished the hall, a large municipal auditorium, centrally located. It might also be noted here that Mr. Dunbar, president of the Florists' Association, is assistant superintendent of parks.

It was this civic character of the enterprise that the advertising committee used as a basis for its campaign. Mr. Crockett, chairman of the committee, is also a newspaper man, and it was through his efforts that much of the extensive publicity was made possible. Besides the generosity of the newspapers, the business houses gave great assistance. This was all done with the distribution of not more than 1,200 complimentary tickets. The hall is centrally located and is a place where the Rochester public is in the habit of going to see a good class of attractions, largely municipal. Rochesterians are also enthusiasts over band concerts, and for this reason the music committee secured plenty of first-class music.

The unity of the design was perhaps the most noticeable feature of the decoration. Though the hall is divided into looked the creditable displays of the Rochester Floral Co. and Geo. Keller. An immense plant of Datura suaveolens in full bloom was a striking object in Mr. Keller's exhibit.

Those who were in attendance all the week turned away with reluctance at the last moment, and many visitors were heard to remark, "This show grows on one." This is assuredly the sincerest compliment that could be paid to Messrs. Pitkin and Trautman, the designers, and to the decoration committee, under F. J. Keller, who carried out the details so thoroughly.

While the attendance was large every day, the banner day was Friday. There were 7,000 paid admissions.

FLORISTS' CLUBS OF AMERICA.

[Summary of a paper by J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, read before the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club, November 11, 1912.]

No other profession is so resourceful, none so varied and interesting, nor has there been in any other sphere of man's occupation the possibility of developing a condition of the people of our land. Are we not the projectors of the civic condition in the localities where we are located? It is in your power to change Sodom into Eden and bring order out of chaos.

Advancement Through Affiliation.

That there has been advancement through affiliation there is no doubt, as we have seen the progress of our business within the last decade. If our club and society affiliation does no more than to broaden our minds, widen our principle and awaken our interest one for another, it does much toward the uplift of our florist brother in the remote parts of this great land and even abroad. It was said to me by one of the American visitors to the London flower show that he was in company with an English grower going to visit another grower who lived a short distance away when he said, "This is my first visit to my neighbor, and we have been nearly side by side for many years." The American grower said, "Do you mean to tell me that you are not more congenial and neighborly than that? In America we could not afford to do that. If we do not learn from our neighbor, it is a blessed thing that he can learn from us."

In my engagements with civic clubs I rarely find a florist interested, but many of the best ladies of our land are active in the betterment of the surroundings of all classes by the suggestion of better horticultural conditions. Surely this is a branch that the florist should be concerned in. These clubs and associations would welcome the advice and coöperation of the florist in the communities where better civic conditions are being advocated. Let us in some modest way demonstrate to the public that our business, the cultivation of plants and flowers, concerns everybody, and by our earnest interest in our profession awaken the latent love for flowers in others. Never, when the season will permit, let us be without a flower upon the coat lapel.

The Use of Publicity.

Can we measure the good that will result from the recent move of the New York Florists' Club in its publicity effort? It is one of the most stimulating enterprises entered upon in the last quarter century. The present results will not warrant the assertion, but the indications are far beyond a prophecy.

It reminds us that we are not altogether awake to many things in which we might interest the public. Let every florists' club in this country be awake to what might be done in its locality. Fall in line with the New York club, and let us be altogether in one move, universal, the country over. Create the demand.

As a source of information, I have written to the secretary of every club and association in the country, as far as I could secure their names. I wanted information as to what the clubs were doing in publicity, and also invited their suggestions as to what might be conducive to the furtherance of the florists' business. Responses have come from a small portion of the fifty inquiries sent out, but the answers thus far received are most gratifying. In several instances the publicity committee is supplying articles every week for newspaper publication, something suggestive of abundant bloom at the different seasons. In another case a florists' club is fostering a school garden contest, under the direction of the Woman's Club. Another club collected $300 from florists for Mothers' day advertising in street car, newspaper and wagon banners. They report the results are wonderful.

Making Clubs Interesting.

In conclusion I wish to emphasize that whatever you debate in the club, you should consider seriously the matter of production and prices. First-class stock will always find a market. We don't wish to stop there. Moderate prices will influence the masses and, if possible, get a flower into the hands of every man, woman or child. Encourage the use of flowers at every function in the home, the festive hall and public demonstration, and by all means let the public know that you are a florist.

Make your club active. Have an essay committee that can prepare, with the assistance of those who are capable, some paper or talk on topics of interest. This committee is the most important of the club. The committee on games should keep the clubroom active and in a spirited mood. Encourage exhibitions at the meetings. Have occasional outings during the summer, and don't leave the girls at home.

What I have learned in my personal touch with my florist brethren of the Philadelphia Florists' Club is the one paramount thought of doing whatever is best for the advancement of the business and broadening the horticultural realm; to make optimists, to use the club as a safety valve and engender personal feelings conducive to good friendship, and infuse a geniality into those with whom we associate. This genial temperament is usually characteristic of the florist. His life should be resplendent and aglow with cheer, because his occupation is in touch with nature's sweetest product.

ROCHESTER.

The Rochester flower show, which was described in last week's issue of The Review and which has just closed, was made notable by the fact that it can almost be called a municipal flower show. The idea that it was being conducted by a commercial association was tee, is also a newspaper man, and it was through his efforts that much of the extensive publicity was made possible. Besides the generosity of the newspapers, the business houses gave great assistance. This was all done with the distribution of not more than 1,200 complimentary tickets. The hall is centrally located and is a place where two rooms, the colonial garden scheme was carried throughout. It was much like passing from a large, less formal part into a smaller but more formal part of the same garden. To carry out this scheme necessitated the limiting of the individual exhibitors. They were forced to arrange their exhibit so that each would be in harmony with its position, its neighbor, and the general design. This really subordinated the flowers to the decoration. It was a case of the exhibits giving up much of their direct advertising value for the sake of the general effect. SHIP THEM DRY.

Will you kindly give us your opinion as to the advisability of sprinkling carnations for shipment? We have always sprinkled roses, mums and almost everything but sweet peas and carnations, but recently have been told by a person long in the business that we should sprinkle everything. Any information would be appreciated. W. T. M.

The carnations should be shipped dry. Give them a good drink before packing, so that the stems and blooms will be firm and full of moisture; then pack carefully and ship dry. For other than short runs the box should be iced, but only over the stems, with the ice so cleated in as to keep it away from the blooms; it is to keep the temperature down rather than to supply moisture. When the flowers are unpacked they should at once go into water in a cool room to refill the stems and freshen up the blooms. Carnations keep best in a cool, dry atmosphere.

LOOSENING THE SOIL.

I should like to find out whether it is advisable to scratch the earth or loosen the surface of the soil around carnation plants in the greenhouse. They have been planted for two months. The plants are doing finely, but the soil has a hard surface. Would the loosening of the soil injure the small roots that come to the top A. N.

After the young rootlets of your carnations come close to the surface of the soil, it is not advisable to scratch the soil deeply enough to injure them. A better plan is to put on a light mulch of well-rotted manure. We do not mulch much in the fall any more these days, and advocate it only in an extremely moderate way. A. F. J. B.

CARNATION RUST.

I am enclosing a few carnation leaves. Will you please tell me what disease it is that shows on them? A few weeks ago there were no signs of it; now it is spreading all over the house. V. V. P.

Your carnations are affected by the common carnation rust. The raised places on the leaves are the pustules which contain the spores by which this disease is propagated. You will notice the brown powdery substance which is released when these raised places break open. This disease, like most plant diseases, is caused by unfavorable conditions—atmospheric conditions in this case. I do not know just how you have handled your plants, but the presence of this disease would indicate that your cultural methods have not been correct.

I would suggest that you dust the plants thoroughly with dry slaked lime or Grape Dust. Dispense with all syringing for a time, unless you see signs of red spider. Give all the ventilation you can and run some fire heat at night right along now. Open the vents, if necessary, to keep the temperature down to the right point.

This is about all you can do, except to go over the plants and pick off the diseased leaves. I would not advise you to do this, however, unless the case is an aggravated one. A. F. J. B.

CHOOSING A FERTILIZER.

Are nitrate of soda and cow manure water good fertilizers for carnation plants? Which of the two is the better? What proportion of soda do you use? A. N.

You will find cow manure, either liquid or as a mulch, a much safer material to use in feeding your carnations than nitrate of soda. We do not use either one. The former we are unable to get in any quantity, and the latter we do not care for. We do use a good deal of sheep manure for feeding, and find it effective as a plant food.

If you use nitrate of soda, dilute one pound in fifty gallons of water and apply as often as your judgment tells you the plants need it. A soft, flabby appearance of the growth and bloom will warn you that too much is being given. A. F. J. B.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Rambler Roses.

If a sufficient number of rambler rose plants for pot culture have not yet been dug, do not postpone the work any longer. The wood is now hard and well matured. Any of the pink ramblers with soft ends on their growths can have the latter cut back to the hard wood. Do not allow the roots to dry. Pot or tub firmly and tie up the shoots securely. Let the plants stand in an open, sunny spot outdoors and do not house them until there have been one or two moderate frosts.

Hardy Roses.

There is no better season than the first half of November for planting hybrid perpetual roses outdoors over a large section of the country. People have become so imbued with the idea that all planting must be done in the spring, when a thousand other duties are pressing, that they have to a large extent failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to carry out fall planting, not only of hybrid perpetual and rambler roses, but also many deciduous trees and shrubs and fruit trees. With a few exceptions all these succeed well, provided they are moved some time before the ground freezes and the roots are well soaked by fall rains before that time. Any plants which are moved must have the roots well moistened before the ground is sealed up, or they will die or suffer severely, unless, perchance, winter thaws permit rains to percolate through the soil.

Hardy roses—and I do not include the hybrid teas or teas in this class, except in the more southerly states—should be planted deeply. Three to four inches below the bud or graft is about right, and they can hardly be too well firmed. Shorten the canes if long. Compare the results from a bed of such varieties as Jacqueminot, Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. John Laing, Mme. G. Luizet, John Hopper, Captain Hayward and Mrs. Sharman-Crawford, or such ramblers as Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, Tausendschön, Crimson Rambler and Hiawatha, planted now, and a similar number set out in spring, and you will find a wonderful difference in favor of the fall-planted ones.

Antirrhinums.

It is really astonishing what a wonderful advance has been made during the last two or three years in the culture of antirrhinums under glass. Inquiries for plants and for directions about growing them now come to The Review from all parts of the country. They have jumped into prominence as a market flower, and as flowers are to be had from October to June under glass and the balance of the year from outdoors, the market is really never without them.

Many of the chrysanthemums are now gone, and few crops pay better than snapdragons as a succession crop, provided always that the selling colors are grown and a generous soil is provided for them. Add to the old mum soil a good dose of cow or sheep manure, with some fine bone. Mix it well and then plant the snapdragons a foot apart each way. If you want big, strong spikes, allow only three to five shoots to a plant. If smaller ones are preferred, double or treble the number may be allowed to grow. Stake them before the shoots can become bent. Wire and cane stakes are often used, but I like to support them with wires and cross strings as in the case of carnations, leaving the squares rather larger than for carnations. A winter temperature of 48 to 50 degrees will grow fine snapdragons. Finer spikes may be had at 45 degrees, but this low temperature brings them on rather slowly in mid-winter.

THE ART OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT

By FRED C. W. BROWN

PROGRESS IN ART.

As Shown by Three Designs.

The preceding article of this series, published in The Review of October 31, dealt particularly with the economy of art and the necessity of using reason in everything attempted. We tried to show that the wreath alone, no matter how you may do your arranging of the blooms, is not sufficient in its interest, unless you embody some principle, some theory, or display some striking individuality. We tried to tell you that it is far better to use a single material to act as a main attraction and let it rest at that, than to use half a dozen varieties and place them with only a view to "using up stuff."

Merely Pretty.

The wreath shown on this page is a fair example of what is generally termed a "mixed-flower design." In this wreath we have used plain, ordinary material; namely, an 18-inch frame, fifty carnations, six roses, four stalks of candidum lilies with four flowers on each, one spray of asparagus and fifty galax leaves. Let us analyze our design and see the result of our efforts.

We find a wreath of flowers; our design is pretty; that is all. There is no lasting impression, no special interest, no display of individuality or originality; there is nothing to hold the attention now that it has been attracted by the main body of the form; it is simply pretty. But our material is pretty, and it is only the beauty of this that calls forth a remark. No story, no character, no theory is displayed.

Common, but Inartistic.

This form of mixed-flower design is worthy of the hands of the most crude beginner and would be a poor makeshift from the hands of one calling himself a professional florist. It is a form of arrangement met with everywhere, every day, but it is a glaring example of our thoughtlessness and stands as a monument to our inability. The only redeeming feature is, it is "pretty," and that only in material. Wreaths of this type never differ one from another, and while many think it an economical form, it is by actual test the most extravagant form possible to use. It is without reason, character, ingenuity or skill, and therefore is inartistic.

Mr. Brown will be pleased to answer, as this series of articles progresses, any criticisms or questions that may occur to his readers. The first article of the series was printed in the issue of October 10. The next installment will appear in an early issue.

The second of the three illustrations shows the same wreath and the same flowers as in the mixed-flower design, same design and the same flowers, only we have used what is generally considered a much more extravagant form of design, the solid arrangement with the cluster, and we surely find something that is understandable, something that carries a story and interest, something that you do not have to "be educated to appreciate."

A Really Artistic Wreath.

This third design embodies artistic principles; it may not charm you, but that is only the fault of the maker. This form can be talked about; it has more or less character, but the design shown in the first of the three pictures can only call forth the remark, "A wreath of flowers."

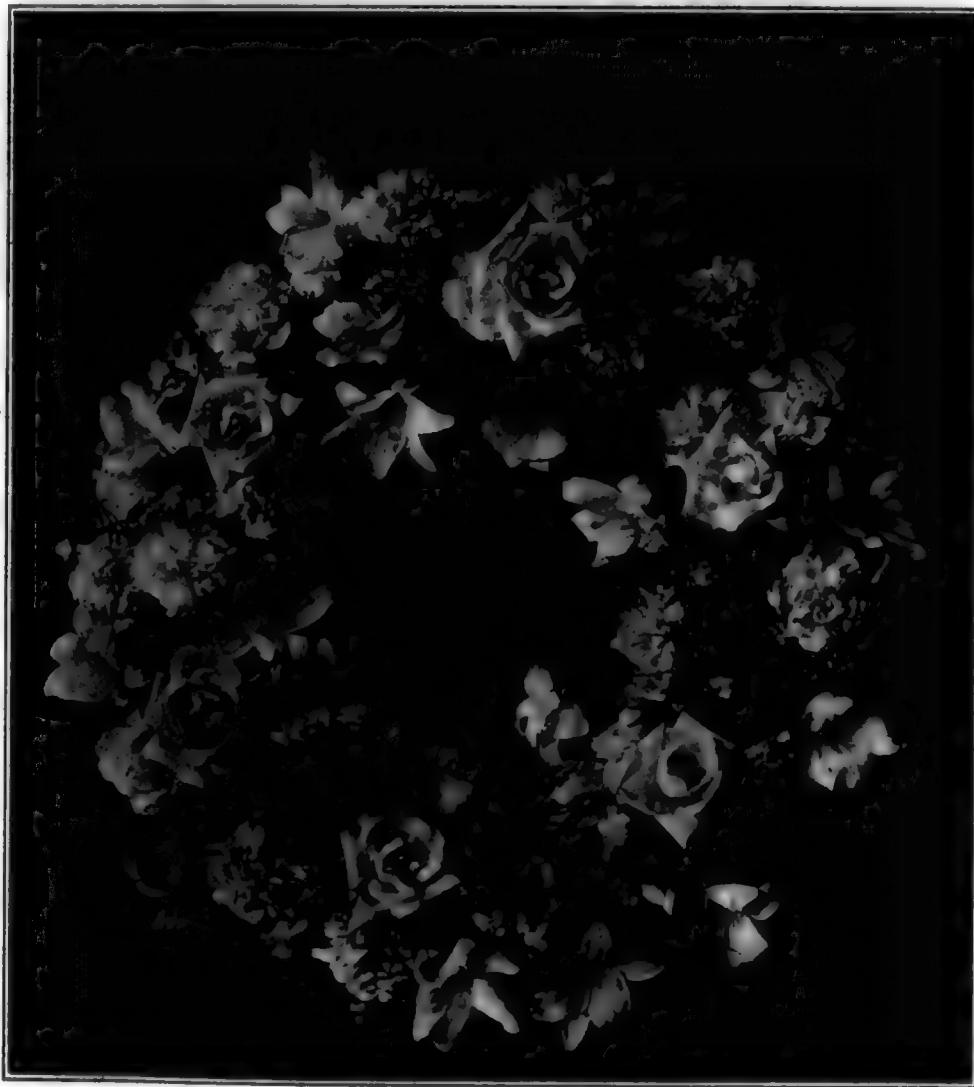

No doubt many who have read this and the previous articles have decided by this time that the writer has a biased faith in forms of the solid flowers. Such an inference, however, is far from fact, for we have only used this style because of its splendid adaptability to illustration.

Free Scope.

The manner of arranging the flowers used in these three illustrations is limited only by your own power of creation. But, no matter how you twist or turn the flowers, or how you place your high light, or what you use for the main body of the form, unless you use reason and let your efforts speak for themselves and in their silent speaking be understood, you are not artistic; you are extravagant, and you are placing yourself and your profession on a level with the street faker or the corner grocer, who has a few bargain blooms to sell when the spring glut is on.

Go Back and Read.

We wish, at this point, that we could get our readers to turn back to the first articles of this series and read them through again. We believe that the theory of the arrangement of flowers that we have been trying to bring out in these articles will by now have begun to impress itself upon the appreonly we have grouped our separate materials and, as a result, we find that we have had to waste material in order to use it all. We could greatly improve this design by reducing the size of our lily spray and making the main attraction, the wreath of carnations, more pronounced. Then we would have our roses and lilies for our opposition and high light, and to use in the display of our skill as florists and our power to charm.

A Typical Wreath of Mixed Flowers.

The third illustration again shows the ciation of those who have been sufficiently interested to follow thus far, but the ideas which are to be brought out in subsequent installments will be all the better understood by the reader's retracing his steps and going again over the progress thus far made. At the conclusion again compare the wreath on page 29 with the one on this page, and the two with the typical mixed wreath on page 27. We rely on the illustrations to make clear many points only hinted at in the text.

PURE AIR NEEDED.

Can you give us any information as to the possible effects on cut flowers and plants in general from odors arising from embalming fluids? We are next door to an undertaking establishment, the wall between being of double matched boards, papered. We can not keep cut flowers or blooming plants more than over night, or one day, when the same stock will keep at our greenhouses or the residence as long as can be expected. We use electricity for lights, having cut out the gas lights, as we thought they might be the cause, but it has made no difference. L.

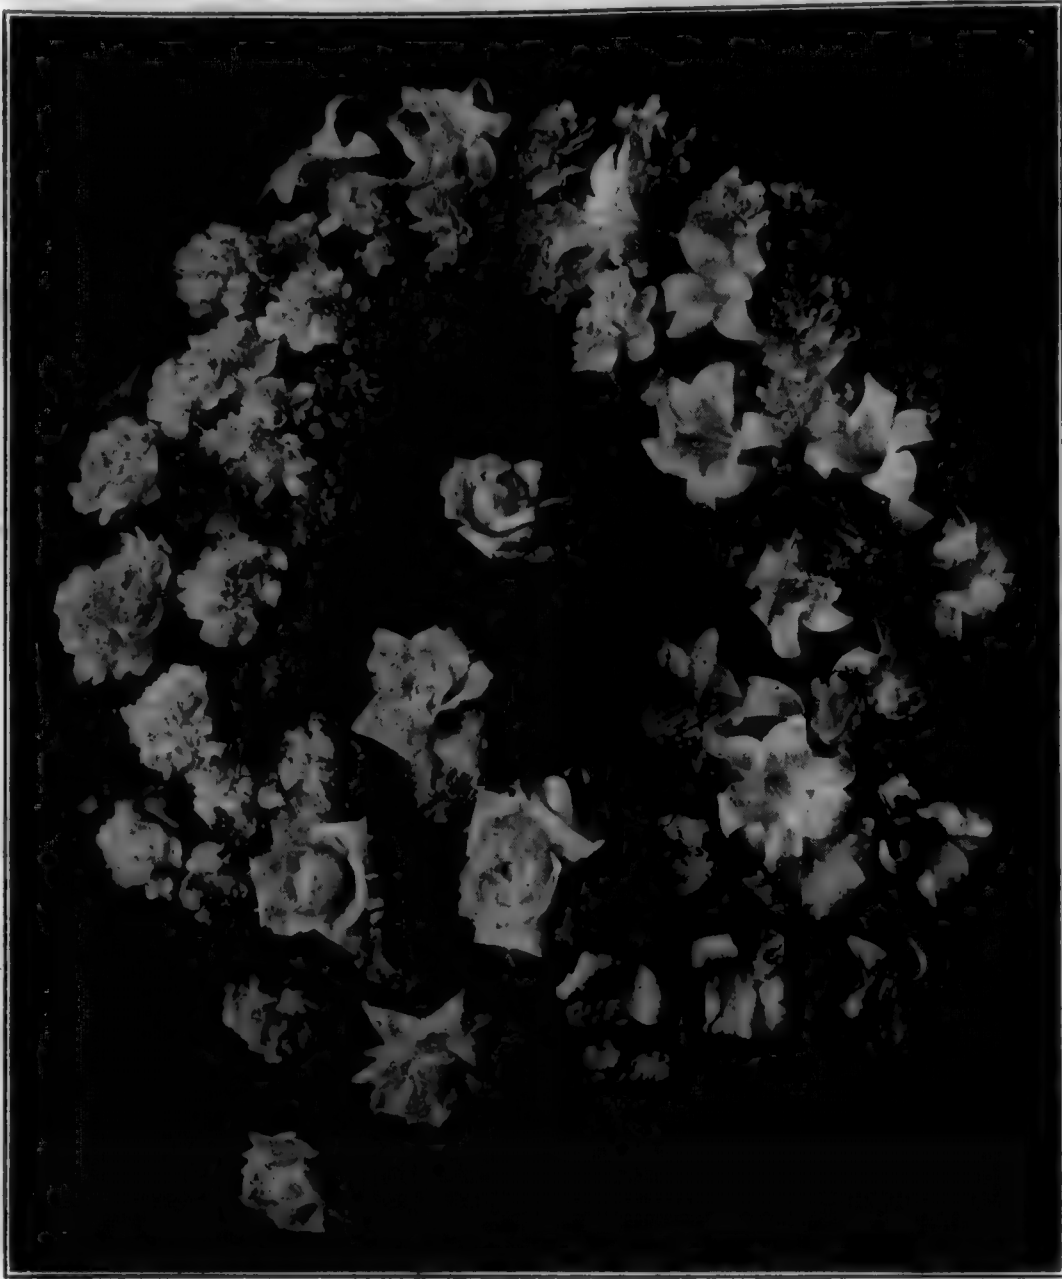

Plants and cut flowers require pure air, just as humans do. The fact that your stock keeps well at other places would indicate that there is something wrong at the store. Doubtless it is the business next door that is causing the trouble. Anything that would impregnate the air to the point where the odor would be apparent would be injurious. One florist, after long experiment, recently proved to his own satisfaction that the laundry next door was the cause of the stock in his store keeping poorly; the odor of soapsuds was present. If the odor of embalming fluid is apparent in your store, it will not be likely to add to your patronage by the better class of flower buyers, no matter what else it may do.

FLOWERS AND FUNERALS.

Every now and then some florist thinks that the trade is to be sent to the bow-wows by a sporadic agitation against the use of flowers at funerals. But no real harm is done. How the great mass of the people look upon flowers at funerals is well illustrated by the following incident: A Kansas City editor found some theretofore unheard of minister quoted in the paper as follows:

My desire is to banish all flowers from funerals. What is the use of blossoms on a coffin? Christianity ought to educate this custom out of the ideas and ideals of Americans. Take the roses and put them, not on a coffin, but in the lapel of the coat of the laboring man on his way to work. Send the lilies into the workshop, into the sweatshop, there to brighten lives.

The editor wrote in answer in his paper: "It will probably be a very long time before the world adopts the suggestion of the New York minister who seeks to bar all flowers from funerals and distribute them instead among the living. Flowers are more than mere floral offerings. They are symbols of the most beautiful of all the human emotions—that which pays its last tribute of affection in the offering of blossoms and fragrance. The suggestion that instead of heaping the floral gifts upon the bier, where the mortal remains of the departed lie for a few hours in unrealizing state, they should be divided among the living, to whom they will bring happiness, is worthy in purpose, but the same result could be accomplished without robbing the solemn funeral ceremony of one of its most impressive features.

"Probably the most sorrowful spectacle that could be conceived would be a funeral without a single flower. There are many such, but they are among life's sad tragedies. The flower stands for remembrance and affection; it is a pledge of fidelity and love, or at least of respect and esteem. The absence of all such tokens means today that one has died with none to mourn his loss and with none to promise to remember. There is, it may be admitted, much of the artificial and unmeant on many occasions, when lavish floral offerings do not necessarily measure the degree of sorrow felt by those who pay the tributes. There is also at times a deplorable waste of money in ostentatious display. But these are exceptional features of a custom that goes back to the earliest beginnings, back to the time when flowers and blossoms were typical and symbolical of the future life. A portion of the tribute paid to the departed might well be spared for the laudable purpose suggested by the New York minister. The living need the flowers with which the dead may well dispense, but the funeral offering is not for the dead alone. The custom is too sweet and sacred to be abolished, yet it might well be varied by a sharing of the tribute with the unfortunate living, to whom the division will bring cheer."

The florists of the present generation need not worry over the prospective loss of funeral work. Quite the contrary: The use of flowers at funerals is on the increase, and the increase will continue.

THE CREDIT ASSOCIATION.

It has been reported in The Review that the Chicago wholesale florists have organized a new credit association. The following statement is by Mr. Webb, the manager:

"Feeling the need of coöperation along lines that will provide for concentrated action on all matters pertaining to the general welfare of the trade, to protect it against unjust and unlawful exactions, to correct abuses, to amicably adjust differences in the trade, and for the additional purpose of enabling its members to extend credit only to those who are shown worthy of it, the wholesale cut flower dealers of Chicago have formed an association which will be known as the National Wholesale Florists' Association. The association will have among its members not only the dealers of Chicago but those of other cities, and has organized along lines broad enough to include all those engaged in selling seeds, bulbs, plants and florists' supplies.

"This step should have been taken long ago by these people. We are told that there is no industry that does not have its social and credit organizations within the trade, and this move should promote a better understanding and enable the wholesale people to become better acquainted, and put them in closer touch with those who buy their product.

"Losses sustained throughout the trade, through the extension of credit to unworthy customers, something that the various members acting individually have not been able to avoid, will, under proper management, be eliminated. The members feel that in the elimination of the non-paying customer a benefit will not only result to the seller, but that it will also result in a material benefit to those who do pay their bills and endeavor to conduct their business honestly, and this will establish a fixed line of credit and a pay-day.

"It is not the purpose of the wholesale cut flower dealers, or anyone who will become a member of this association, to take any step that will be detrimental to the interest of anyone to whom they sell, but, on the contrary, it is the purpose of the organization to foster the industries represented by their business and help those who try to help themselves, and who conduct their business along honest and straightforward lines. Every wholesale dealer is making a study of how he can best assist the retail dealer, and one of the things that can be done with profit and benefit to all is to weed out the irresponsible, unreliable, non-paying class of dealers who buy the product of those belonging to this association. The irresponsible fellow reduces the profits of the legitimate dealer and causes loss to the wholesaler, and this naturally has a tendency to shake the confidence of the wholesale dealer in the man who is trying to do an honest business. Every precaution has been taken to zealously guard the interest of the retail dealer who is conducting his business along honest and legitimate lines, and those who have completed this organization have taken into consideration every angle of the business in which their patrons are engaged, and it would seem certain that this move on the part of those organizing this association will be of material benefit to all of those who belong to it, and to those engaged in the retail trade, and will have a tendency to promote better business methods, increase profits and extend a legitimate line of credit to those who are entitled to it."

It is understood that the members of the association are this week notifying their customers by letter of the organization and aims of the association.

DETROIT VISITS MT. CLEMENS.

Just as sure as that the sun sets in the west does the annual jaunt of the Detroit Florists' Club to Mount Clemens take place, while the mums are in bloom. Leaving the city at 9 a. m., the first stop usually is at J. F. Sullivan's, but November 7, through an error in the crew's orders, the party was obliged to go through to Mount Clemens without a stop. The first visit, therefore, was at the establishment of Leopold Mallest. Mr. Mallest specializes in carnations and a house of White Perfection was pronounced the finest ever seen by most of the party. Sydney Stephens place, who now owns the former carnations. carnations. Robert Klagge and Mrs. Klagge received us with their usual hospitality. Mr. Klagge's plant is in the pink of condition. His roses were a sight to behold. Cosmos, stevia, violets and snapdragon are also helping to fill his purse, the latter being especially fine. One of the interesting features at this establishment is the immense bulb-shed, where hundreds of thousands of bulbs are kept over winter. A house of 25,000 valley also proved quite an attraction.

It was now nearly noon and Fred Breitmeyer was on hand with his usual feast to satisfy the inner man. After a hearty lunch, made all the more enjoyable by the antics of Robert Klagge and George Hampton, of Michell's, who seem born comedians, the party inspected the Breitmeyer plant and many were the favorable comments heard. The chrysanthemum houses proved especially interesting. Many fine varieties of pompons and singles were seen. A bench of Helen Newberry caused many exclamations, being one mass of snowy white blooms.

At John Carey's it was time to eat again. Mr. Carey is a noted rose grower and his plants upheld this reputation. Some excellent mums were also seen here. Mr. Carey, after much persuasion, joined the party and went the rounds with us.

A. Van Beversluys' place was next seen and here a pleasant surprise awaited the party. After two years of hard work he has converted it into an ideal establishment. All his stock is looking fine. At James Taylor's establishment a fine bench of Diana greeted us as we entered. His carnations and mums are also in good shape. The last stop in Mount Clemens was made at August Von Boeselager's finely appointed place. The stock is in excellent condition. Mr. Von Boeselager grows more variety than the other Mount Clemens growers, his stock including various potted plants as well as orchids. The immense potting shed was appropriately decorated with corn stalks and vegetables and the lunch was par excellence.

Leaving Mount Clemens at about 5 p. m., the party stopped at Sullivan's on the return trip, but it being dark we could not view the stock and after smoking some of our friend's cigars we were again homeward bound, a tired but wiser lot of florists. The party consisted of:

AN OUTING AT RICHMOND, IND.

November 4, some thirty-seven persons, mostly members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, met at Richmond to spend the day in inspecting the various greenhouse establishments located in that beautiful little Quaker city that has become famous for the many good things which have come from there in floricultural lines. The party from Indianapolis, of which the writer was one, alighted at the little station at Easthaven, just across from the establishment of the E. G. Hill Co. There we were met by others from various points who had come to spend the day with us.

Being the first place at hand, the day was begun with the inspection of the Hill place. Since our outing of a year ago a great change has come over this place. Up to that time the stock grown comprised a long list of miscellaneous plants, practically everything the small retail grower needed in his business in the way of bedding plants, etc. Now these have all been dropped, even including geraniums, in which an enormous business was formerly done. All this because the firm saw greater profit in growing a smaller variety of plants and larger quantities of these. This firm now confines its operations to the growing of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums for both cut flowers and plants. Chrysanthemums being in full crop, naturally the mum houses received attention first. A finer lot of commercial stock it would be hard to imagine. There is a noticeable absence of the great, monstrous exhibition blooms, most of the stock being in medium grades, a large percentage of the plants carrying two blooms. This is on account of the dearth of flower shows through the middle west this fall, and also because this firm has entered the retail end of the business. There were large blocks, or whole benches, in many instances, of such varieties as Major Bonaffon, Mrs. Razer, Virginia Poehllarney are to be seen, all in splendid condition; also Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon and the great Sunburst, in yellow. American Beauty, Richmond, Radiance, etc., are all there in large quantity. One of the most attractive things on the place is a 250-foot bench of the new rose, Mrs. George Shawyer, apparently an ideal forcing rose, with one of the most pleasing shades of pink imaginable. This rose will surely find a warm welcome in the retail stores when introduced. Among Mr. Hill's seedlings are many promising youngsters, but to try to pick out the best ones would be as hazardous as trying to pick the winner in the late political campaign. Mr. Hill is still looking for the red rose with twice as many petals as Richmond, and with the same freedom of growth and bloom as that celebrated variety of his origination.

Carnations occupy perhaps even more space than the roses. Bench after bench of plants cut back for propagating give promise of great quantities of strong, healthy cuttings during the approaching season. The list of varieties has been cut down to the leading standard sorts, with the addition of the most promising introductions of the season. Across the road is what the firm is most proud of in the whole establishment. A new range of four houses with a new heating plant was added last summer. The houses are of the semi-iron pattern, and they certainly are beauties. The heating plant is up-to-date and simple in construction, and after looking the plant over one could hardly find anything which could have been improved upon. This range is given over entirely to carnations for blooms. St. Nicholas, with its fine appearance, made the writer's heart glad. Benora and Rosette also looked fine and will likely lead in their respective colors. Wodenethe has not rounded into form yet, but when it does come there will be some great blooms. Several benches of their new scarlet, Commovisit. Carnations are in full crop in all the standard sorts. Two beds of Pink Delight are being run the second year and promise a good cut during the season. A house of Killarneys is in especially good shape. The summer roses, of which there are several houses, are being dried down preparatory to the winter's rest. Mrs. Knopf, who has been running the business since her husband's death, received the visitors and turned them over to her foreman, Mr. Coryell, who escorted the party through the place.

Geo. R. Gause was our next host. Everything in the way of retail stock is grown here and Mr. Gause and his assistants have the place in spick-and-span shape. A thriving retail business is done, the place being right across from the entrance to the principal cemetery, as well as being close to the city trade.

Next came Fred H. Lemon's establishment, which is the old Hill place. Here, too, a full line of retail stock is grown. The finest house of roses in Richmond was seen here. Carnations are good, too. One of the most pleasing things seen was a bench of Rex begonias.

Right across from Lemon's is located Edward Ruch. Mr. Ruch, being a Richmond boy, has proved that a boy does not need to leave his home town to be successful, as we so often hear said. Mr. Ruch has for several years been especially successful with single violets. All his stock is retailed in Richmond.

Visits also were paid to the Advance Co., where J. E. Jones did the honors, and to the Quaker City Machine Co., where John Evans gave the glad hand, as usual.

At noon a luncheon was spread at the Arlington hotel. About forty enjoyed the feast. After that a meeting was held at the Commercial Club. Osa Coryell, D. W. Leathermann and Morris Maher were elected to active membership and P. J. Foley, of Chicago, was elected to honorary membership.

The following were present from Indianapolis: Henry Meyer, Chas. Bohne, C. Sonnenschmidt, Robt. Ellis, Albert Kempe, Albin Schreiber, O. E. Steinkamp, A. F. J. Baur, Albert Pittet, John Hartje, Harry Rieman, Frank Rieman and Fred Rieman.

Richmond was represented by the following: Louis Knopf, John Evans, Clem Gaar, E. G. Hill, Joe Hill, J. E. Jones, Fred Lemon, Earl Mann, Geo. R. Gause, Osa Coryell, Edward Ruch and J. E. Jones, Jr.

J. A. E. Haugh, J. S. Stuart and D. W. Leathermann, of Anderson; Aug. Baumer and wife and Wm. Walker and his son, of Louisville, Ky.; A. Rasmussen and wife, of New Albany; W. W. Coles, of Kokomo; R. A. McKeand, of Marion; J. V. Deer, of Franklin, and P. J. Foley, of Chicago, Ill., were also present. A. F. J. B.

CLAUSEN AND THE DUCKS.

When a friend happens along, G. A. Clausen, of Albert Lea, Minn., likes to run out to Bears Lake for a day's shoot. The accompanying illustration shows Mr. Clausen and his foreman, Mr. Robinson, with A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., Chicago, returning from a three days' outing among the ducks. Mr. Clausen now is north on a moose hunting trip, accompanied by Mr. Olson, of Holm & Olson, St. Paul.

mann, Timothy Eaton, Yellow Eaton, W. H. Chadwick, Golden Chadwick, Alice Byron, etc. There were also several long benches of singles and pompons, too numerous in variety to mention.

In the same range of houses are to be found the roses. Bench after bench of the several types and colors of Kildore, show that their confidence in this variety as a commercial variety has not been shaken. The color is grand and the cut of bloom will be heavy at the time red carnations are wanted.

Our next stop was at the establishment of the Chas. Knopf Floral Co. Only early varieties of mums are grown here and all had been cut before our

THE RETAILING OF CUT FLOWERS

THE merchandising of cut flowers is in itself closely allied in general principles with the selling in small quantities of any other article. The man who is capable of selling real estate or greenhouses is equally capable of selling roses. It is not the man who sells flowers sluggishly at a profit of fifteen per cent, but the one who can brilliantly present to the public quantities of flowers at a gross profit of 150 per cent by closely watching the markets, who is a live factor in the up-building of the retail business at the present time.

The intensive form of conducting the retail business is much like intensive farming. A greater quantity of business may be transacted in a given space and time, but it takes much more energy and expense to do it. Unpopular as the practices may be with the greater number of retailers, the methods of some of the pushers as exploited by the trade papers at different times, showing the terrific manner of inducing trade, is certainly a good object lesson in showing how large quantities of flowers may be distributed among the transient trade, with much accruing good to the producer.

Methods of Publicity.

Indirectly, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, still in its infancy, is making great strides in educating the flower-buying public. When we think that a first-class florist in a town of, say 500,000, approximately, does an out-bound and inbound business of $7,000 annually, it is wonderful to think of 1,000 florists doing a business of $7,000,000 annually. A conservative estimate of the orders received by New York florists in the season is from $750,000 to $1,000,000 per year. This important phase of the retail business should certainly be given impetus by grower and retailer alike.

The inspiration of the retail business, new varieties of flowers, should receive its just attention in all quarters. A new flower invariably brings a slightly higher price, and more than repays the slightly increased cost in the friends it makes and the popularity it secures. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon and Melody have had tremendous influence upon the flower-buying public. Such roses as Milady and Mme. Chas. Russell, the new French hydrangeas and the Mrs. F. Sander daisy, as well as several other novelties, may be counted upon in making thousands of friends for those interested in buying nature's wares in the near future.

Co-operative Advertising.

Publicity, with its versatile and great accomplishments, seems to be the slogan, "first, last and all the time," with florists who are disposing of the greatest quantities of flowers. Those unwilling to take up this great selling cudgel are liable at any time to be surpassed by those who are willing to dispose of good goods at moderate prices and inform the public in an attractive manner of just what they have to sell. The good work now being done by the New York Florists' Club in the distribution of posters, displayed simultaneously, clearly shows what collective effort may do in publicity work. They plan for a great Thanksgiving campaign, and the outcome is awaited with interest.

Advertising is a separate department in all the big stores of the country, but it is a sadly neglected art with many of the retailers, who are wont to treat it as a side issue and place it in the hands of the inexperienced. There is a vast difference between the maintainer of price and shrewd merchandiser, and the trade spoiler who is harmful to himself and his fellowmen, both in selling and advertising.

Two Kinds of Communities.

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap," is nowhere better exemplified than in the comparison between a community of cheap florists and one worthy of prosperity and in which each is himself successful. It is just as possible to have each family in a town possess ten plants and an educated love for them, as to have each fifth family possess only one plant and a shy acquaintance with nature's wares, due to lack of interest on the part of the seller himself.

The sale of potted plants, particularly in the larger flower centers, is a new channel, which offers a great field for those willing to take a forward step and rise above the rose and carnation farms so popular and so indicative of the day. The wonderful features of the National Boston Flower Show in the potted plant line will no doubt be duplicated and surpassed in the coming New York exhibition, and may be a proper incentive for the westerners in the art of plant production. It is highly essential that the prosperous retailer interest the public in the growing plant as well as in the short-lived cut flower. It is almost impossible to present the wondrous and changing beauty of the flower possibilities to the public without the elegant displays of rose plants, rhododendrons, azaleas, bougainvilleas, acacias, and particularly hydrangeas, cyclamens and the like.

Good and Bad Salesmanship.

A higher standard of salesmanship is an essential that must be reckoned with in all the retail stores. The great strides made by dealers in accessories, such as baskets, ribbons and supplies, which outshine in many instances in a wholesale way those of the retailers themselves, are an instance of what first-class salesmanship—and to that it must be largely attributed—may do. A clerk who is not able to sell quantities of goods at a fair price, is no more destructive than one who is shrewd enough to obtain more from a purchaser than he is really willing to spend. A first-class clerk, who has good judgment, gaining the confidence of the patron and his employer, and who is able to arrange blossoms in a fine, individual style, is a scarce article. There is and always will be room at the top for those climbing that way.

Artistic taste is a leading factor in the disposition of flowers. To offer them for sale in unsightly masses at a low price is not sufficient. It is far better to sell a few flowers, well arranged, than to sell many of them in such a way as to decrease, rather than increase, the general love of flowers. Elegant window displays, taste in store and house decorations, promptness, fairness in dealing, progressiveness, constant energy and alertness, are the older virtues with which the striving store man is ever face to face in his race to outclass his competitor and to dispose of his wares, and these virtues are striven after equally hard by his brother grower.

The Path of Progress.

The increase in the general use of flowers is far greater than the increase in population. This may be attributed to two factors—one of them the fact that the masses live farther removed from nature's beauty than formerly and hence have a greater general craving for it. The other factor, and the stronger one, is the educational campaign of the retailers in securing publicity and constantly exploiting the flower business. Will it not be well, then, to follow the trail which has been leading forward for many years?

Our age has not been blessed with miracles, and it has been and always will be impossible for the flower stores to dispose of undue masses of flowers brought forward by climatic conditions. It is possible, however, for the retailer to watch the trend of the markets, so as to aid to the fullest extent in the disposition of the largest possible quantities of stock at the most favorable time.

It is unreasonable to expect that the erection of greenhouses may proceed at the same enormous rate as in the last few years. It will be far better for the grower to produce more beautiful and varied varieties, and for the retailer to perform his mission of instilling the love of flowers in American hearts, so that the flowers will be found in the homes of all, in uninterrupted beauty, fragrance and refinement.

HEEPES' STORE AND AUTO.

The accompanying illustration shows the store of Heepe's Sons, Akron, O. The store is at 26 South Main street, and the members of the firm are E. A. Heepe and Henry Heepe. "Flowers by Telegraph" is the neatly framed card in the window.

Heepe's Sons believe that an automobile for delivery is an absolute necessity in the florists' business, where there are frequent telephone calls that require immediate delivery at a considerable distance. This they find can be done with the automobile much more quickly than by any other method. Finding themselves unable to buy just such a car as was wanted, Heepe's Sons purchased a Buick chassis and had a body built in accordance with their own design and to correspond with the style of their wagons. The body was made heavy enough to overcome all the jars and vibrations which are so undesirable when it comes to delivering funeral work and blooming plants. The body is black with the lettering in gold, making one of the showiest cars on Akron's streets.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business with the retailers begins to show encouraging improvement and a more cheerful atmosphere prevails. But the wholesale market is still dominated by the chrysanthemum and an immense accumulation of all kinds and sizes was seen as last week closed. Cellars and ice-boxes were crowded. Cold storage was utilized for many blooms and evidently there will be no shortage for Thanksgiving. There is much splendid stock arriving daily, and of potted mums there is no end. The asking price Saturday night was $5 to $8 per hundred for blooms that readily sold at $3 per dozen a couple of years ago. American Beauties are firm at 25 cents to 30 cents each for the selected. The supply is not overabundant. All roses have firmed up somewhat during the last few days and promise better values after the mums are over. This is the rose age, as one wholesaler termed it, and the new ones are especially awakening public interest. Milady, Mrs. Shawyer, Mme. Russell, Sunburst, Radiance, Irish Fire Flame, Lady Stanley, and more to follow, all are selling well. The older varieties of roses are now at their best and prices are generally on the up grade.

Violets improved in price and quality toward the end of last week, and sacrifices ceased. One expert predicts the specials will reach the dollar mark for Thanksgiving. Both valley and gardenias advanced a little for the top grades. Carnations are now superb and abundant, but prices are disappointingly low for the growers, only the new varieties going above $2 per hundred. There seems to be no cessation in the orchid flow. The market was simply crowded with them all last week. Stock sent out to sell at $40 per hundred came back to the wholesalers untaken. The retail window dressers are making good use of the surplus. The oncidiums are especially effective in this line.

Club Meeting.

Chrysanthemum and ladies' night combined drew an attendance of over 200, nearly half of whom were of the gentler sex, at the club meeting November 11. It was the most enthusiastic meeting of the year. The exhibits were a fine assortment of chrysanthemums from Traendly & Schenck; Matchless carnation, from the Cottage Gardens; Wm. Eccles, from Scott Bros.; roses from J. J. Brozart, and Jerusalem cherries of the new variety from Arthur T. Boddington.

Chairman Hendrickson reported encouraging response as to the value of the Hallowe'en publicity effort of his publicity committee and displayed the colored placard to be used for Thanksgiving. Funds are solicited, especially from the retail florists, who are most directly benefited.

The nominating committee announced its selections of candidates for officers for 1913, as follows:

For president—Messrs. Bunyard, Duckham, Siebrecht and Manda. Mr. Manda expressed his appreciation of the loyal support accorded him and withdrew.

For vice-president—Messrs. Hendrickson, Donaldson and Fiesser.

For secretary—Messrs. Young, Kennedy and De Forest.

For treasurer—Messrs. Rickards, Schenck and Kessler.

For trustees—Messrs. Traendly, Turner, Weathered, Miesem, Froment, Boddington, Pierson, Hornecker, Sheridan and Langjahr.

The committee of awards which visited Mr. Totty's greenhouses last week, to pass upon the merits of the rose Mrs. Shawyer, gave it a record of ninety and one-sixth points.

Harry Good, Orange, N. J.; J. H. Andrews, Mt. Kisco, N. Y.; William Saville, Bergenfield, N. J.; Leo Klein, J. C. Gorman and Adolph Hammerstrom, of New York, were elected to membership and the following were proposed: W. W. Rich, U. Cutler Ryerson, J. F. Anderson, Walter M. Bishop, J. B. Jackson, W. F. Kline, A. Hickerson, C. Matherton, Phinneus Allen, Claude Tyler and A. T. Bunyard.

A courteous invitation of the Cook County Florists' Association, of Chicago, with reference to bowling privileges, was received and referred to the club's champion bowler, Robert E. Berry.

The pink rose exhibited by Mr. Brozert was declared by Messrs. Totty, Simpson, Miller and Prince to be Mme. Jules Grolez, and entirely distinct from Mrs. Shawyer. Vases of each will be shown at the December meeting.

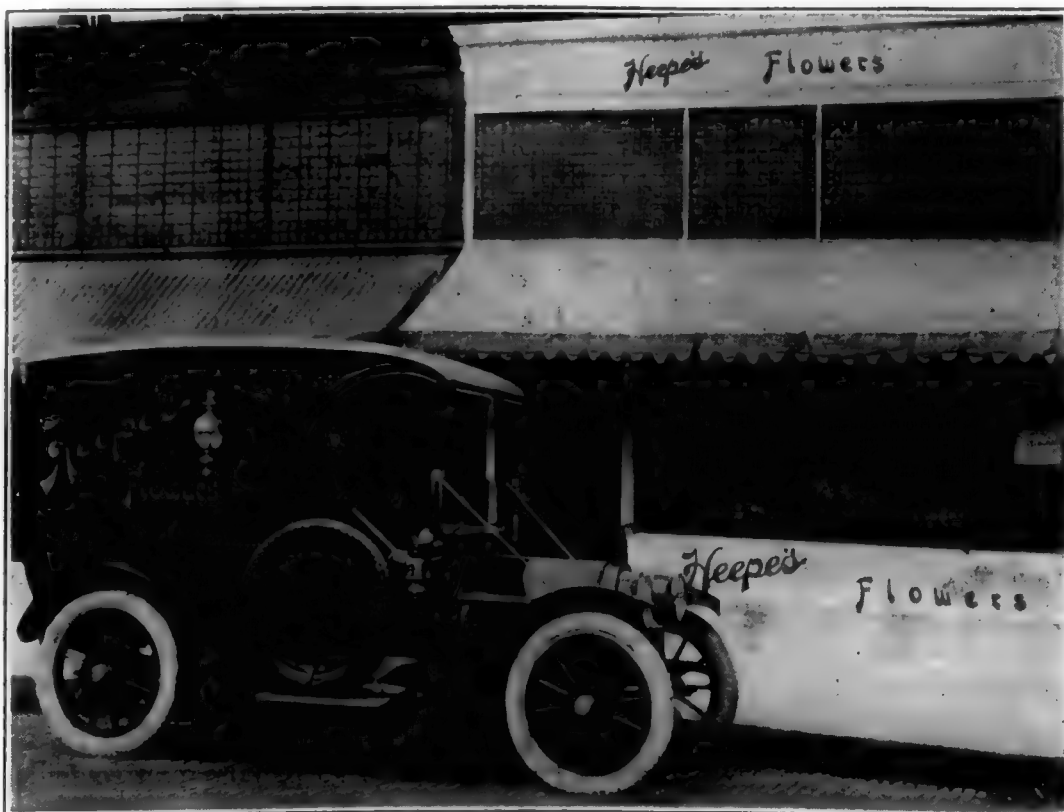

An interesting musical and dancing program followed the business meeting, the talent being furnished by Charles Schenck. A splendid collation was served the ladies, the courtesy being extended them by Frank H. Traendly, his firm also presenting every lady with one of its prize chrysanthemums. The house committee served the club members with an elaborate turkey lunch, with many varieties of liquid nourishment.

Various Notes.

The flower shows in this vicinity have been unusually successful this season.

New York will be well represented at the convention of gardeners at Newark November 18 and 19. Harry A. Bunyard and P. O'Mara have places on the program.

Philip Einsman, of Astoria, has returned from Sullivan county, much improved in health. He will make a trip to Richmond, Va., in company with Messrs. Scott, Miesem, Dorval and Donaldson. J. Austin Shaw.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Oil City, Pa.—It is reported that the stock of Fred C. Greene's range, at the corner of Innis and Seventh streets, has been sold at sheriff's auction, and that the greenhouses were to be vacated by November 11.

TROUBLE WITH PLUMOSUS.

I am sending you some sprays of Asparagus plumosus and ask you to note the condition of the ends. The dried places extend all through the bench. I have just taken charge of this establishment and do not know anything about the way the crop has been handled, but at present the soil, water and everything else seem to be all right. I think they have been run a little too dry at some time, but I should like to have your opinion.

E. S. C.

Lack of water seems to have been the cause of this trouble, which has probably been aggravated by insufficient ventilation during the warm weather. There do not appear to be any insects on the asparagus, such as red spiders or thrips, and with proper care as to water, heat and fertilizers there should be no further difficulty. W. H. T.

Finding themselves unable to buy just such a car as was wanted, Heepe's Sons purchased a Buick chassis and had a body built in accordance with their own design and to correspond with the style of their wagons. The body was made heavy enough to overcome all the jars and vibrations which are so undesirable when it comes to delivering funeral work and blooming plants. The body is black with the lettering in gold, making one of the showiest cars on Akron's streets.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business with the retailers begins to show encouraging improvement and a more cheerful atmosphere prevails. But the wholesale market is still dominated by the chrysanthemum and an immense accumulation of all kinds and sizes was seen as last week closed. Cellars and ice-boxes were crowded. Cold storage was utilized for many blooms and evidently there will be no shortage for Thanksgiving. There is much splendid stock arriving daily, and of potted mums there is no end. The asking price Saturday night was $5 to $8 per hundred for blooms that readily sold at $3 per dozen a couple of years ago. American Beauties are firm at 25 cents to 30 cents each for the selected. The supply is not overabundant. All roses have firmed up somewhat during the last few days and promise better values after the mums are over. This is the rose age, as one wholesaler termed it, and the new ones are especially awakening public interest. Milady, Mrs. Shawyer, Mme. Russell, Sunburst, Radianee, Irish Fire Flame, Lady Stanley, and more to follow, all are selling well. The older varieties of roses are now at their best and prices are generally on the up grade.

Violets improved in price and quality toward the end of last week, and sacrifices ceased. One expert predicts the specials will reach the dollar mark for Thanksgiving. Both valley and gardenias advanced a little for the top grades. Carnations are now superb and abundant, but prices are disappointingly low for the growers, only the new varieties going above $2 per hundred. There seems to be no cessation in the orchid flow. The market was simply crowded with them all last week. Stock sent out to sell at $40 per hundred came back to the wholesalers untaken. The retail window dressers are making good use of the surplus. The oncidiums are especially effective in this line.

Club Meeting.

Chrysanthemum and ladies' night combined drew an attendance of over 200, nearly half of whom were of the gentler sex, at the club meeting November 11. It was the most enthusiastic meeting of the year. The exhibits were a fine assortment of chrysanthemums from Traendly & Schenck; Matchless carnation, from the Cottage Gardens; Wm. Eccles, from Scott Bros.; roses from J. J. Brozart, and Jerusalem cherries of the new variety from Arthur T. Boddington.

Chairman Hendrickson reported encouraging response as to the value of the Hallowe'en publicity effort of his publicity committee and displayed the colored placard to be used for Thanksgiving. Funds are solicited, especially from the retail florists, who are most directly benefited.

The nominating committee announced its selections of candidates for officers for 1913, as follows:

For president—Messrs. Bunyard, Duckham, Siebrecht and Manda. Mr. Manda expressed his appreciation of the loyal support accorded him and withdrew.

For vice-president—Messrs. Hendrickson, Donaldson and Fiesser.

For secretary—Messrs. Young, Kennedy and De Forest.

For treasurer—Messrs. Rickards, Schenck and Kessler.

For trustees—Messrs. Traendly, Turner, Weathered, Miesem, Froment, Boddington, Pierson, Hornecker, Sheridan and Langjahr.

The committee of awards which visited Mr. Totty's greenhouses last week, to pass upon the merits of the rose Mrs. Shawyer, gave it a record of ninety and one-sixth points.

Harry Good, Orange, N. J.; J. H. Andrews, Mt. Kisco, N. Y.; William Saville, Bergenfield, N. J.; Leo Klein, J. C. Gorman and Adolph Hammerstrom, of New York, were elected to membership and the following were proposed: W. W. Rich, U. Cutler Ryerson, J. F. Anderson, Walter M. Bishop, J. B. Jackson, W. F. Kline, A. Hickerson, C. Matherton, Phinneus Allen, Claude Tyler and A. T. Bunyard.

A courteous invitation of the Cook County Florists' Association, of Chicago, with reference to bowling privileges, was received and referred to the club's champion bowler, Robert E. Berry.

The pink rose exhibited by Mr. Brozert was declared by Messrs. Totty, Simpson, Miller and Prince to be Mme. Jules Grolez, and entirely distinct from Mrs. Shawyer. Vases of each will be shown at the December meeting.

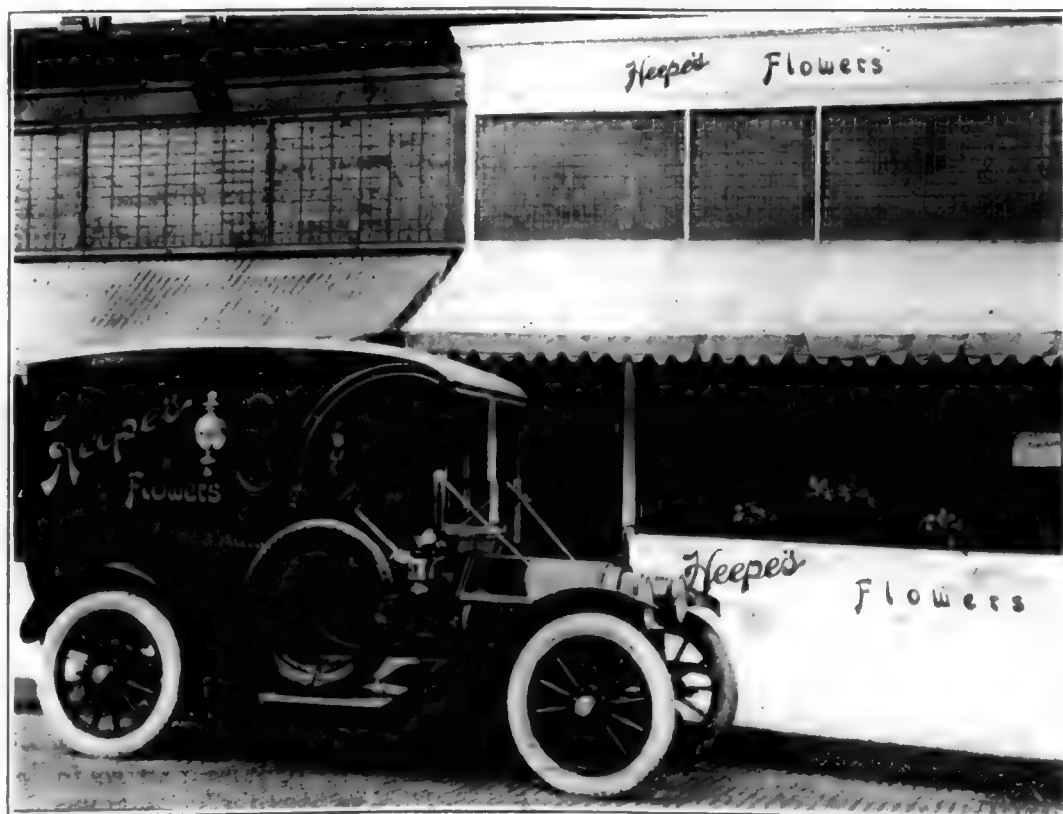

An interesting musical and dancing program followed the business meeting, the talent being furnished by Charles Schenck. A splendid collation was served the ladies, the courtesy being extended them by Frank H. Traendly, his firm also presenting every lady with one of its prize chrysanthemums. The house committee served the club members with an elaborate turkey lunch, with many varieties of liquid nourishment.

Various Notes.

The flower shows in this vicinity have been unusually successful this season.

New York will be well represented at the convention of gardeners at Newark November 18 and 19. Harry A. Bunyard and P. O'Mara have places on the program.

ican Institute was so crowded there was not room for his firm's handsome exhibit of orchids and blooming and foliage plants.

The show cards supplied to the retail florists of New York and cities within a 50-mile radius for Thanksgiving by the publicity committee of the New York Florists' Club are now ready for distribution.

Charles Lenker, of Freeport, has returned from a two months' holiday in Europe.

Charles Millang sold last week to Charles Beckman, Jr., and Chas. Lustgarten, of Elmhurst, each a Ford business car and a 1913 touring car.

E. H. Behre and A. P. Smith, of Madison, are both cutting fine Maryland. They consign to Moore, Hentz & Nash.

Arthur T. Boddington received 500 cases of spiraea from Holland last week. In the window they have Solanum capsicastrum Melvini, originated last season by Charles Pfaff, gardener to George Melvin, South Framingham, Mass.

Recent visitors were A. J. Loveless, A. H. Wingett and Edwin and Allen Jenkins, all of Lenox, Mass.; Robert Spiers, of Dalton, and Ernest Wild, of Madison, N. J.

Geo. Ditzenberger, of the Woodcliff Floral Co., Woodcliffe, N. J., one of the leading shippers to the Growers' Cut Flower Co., November 9 was reported ill at a hospital in Hackensack, N. J., with little hope of his recovery.

Traendly & Schenck have been shipping large quantities of their best mums and Radiance, Sunburst and Salmon Queen to the south and middle west. They are much pleased with their success at the flower shows.

Wm. Herbert and David, his son, were the guests of Gunther Bros. last week, to whom they have shipped many thousands of dahlias this season.

Shannon, of Fort Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn, will open a flower store next week on Flatbush avenue, near Dorchester road.

J. Weir Hartley, nephew of John Weir, the veteran retailer of Brooklyn, will open a new store this week on Church avenue, Flatbush, near the station of the B. R. T.

Wm. Hay, of Oaklawn, R. I., was the guest of J. K. Allen last week.

M. A. Bowe had a big wedding decoration in Brooklyn November 11.

George Siebrecht, of the firm of Siebrecht & Siebrecht, who has been ill for several weeks at his home in Chapequa, is convalescing and is expected back in the wholesale district at the end of the present week.

James Hammond, of the James Mc-

Manus force, is confined to his home with a severe ankle sprain.

Woodrow & Merketos report having disposed of immense quantities of boxwood this fall.

The florists' supplies department of Geo. Cotsonas & Co. has developed a large business, especially with those of Mr. Cotsonas' nationality.

P. H. Goodsell has leased for twenty years eleven acres of the Astor farm in the upper part of New York, 164 feet of the property on the Bronx river, giving splendid facilities for shipping to Connecticut and Hudson river territory. Mr. Goodsell, who has been ill for many weeks, has fully recovered.

Philip Einsman, of Astoria, has returned from Sullivan county, much improved in health. He will make a trip to Richmond, Va., in company with Messrs. Scott, Miesem, Dorval and Donaldson.
J. Austin Shaw.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Oil City, Pa.—It is reported that the stock of Fred C. Greene's range, at the corner of Innis and Seventh streets, has been sold at sheriff's auction, and that the greenhouses were to be vacated by November 11.

TROUBLE WITH PLUMOSUS.

I am sending you some sprays of Asparagus plumosus and ask you to note the condition of the ends. The dried places extend all through the bench. I have just taken charge of this establishment and do not know anything about the way the crop has been handled, but at present the soil, water and everything else seem to be all right. I think they have been run a little too dry at some time, but I should like to have your opinion.

E. S. C.

Lack of water seems to have been the cause of this trouble, which has probably been aggravated by insufficient ventilation during the warm weather. There do not appear to be any insects on the asparagus, such as red spiders or thrips, and with proper care as to water, heat and fertilizers there should be no further difficulty.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

MEALY BUG.

I am sending you by this mail, under separate cover, a sample of diseased chrysanthemums, and would ask that you inform me as to its cause and how it can be prevented. The florists whom I have consulted do not seem to be able to suggest a remedy, and as it is a serious menace to the culture of mums here in southern Louisiana, I take the liberty of applying to you for information.

M. B.

I find on the mums sent quite considerable of the old familiar mealy bug. You can do nothing with the flowers now that they are developed. About the best thing I know of to clean this pest out of the young stock would be heavy doses of nicotine liquid, applied persistently all through the season.

Chas. H. Totty.

BEES ON CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Will you kindly let me know what can be done to get rid of bees? I am bothered with hundreds of bees in my greenhouses when the single chrysanthemums and stevias are in blossom, also when the Easter lilies bloom in the spring, and they spoil the blooms.

J. L.

The insects are not bees, although closely resembling them in appearance. They are commonly called chrysanthemum bugs, coming as they do in great numbers while mums are in season and doing much damage to single and anemone-flowered varieties, but also to not a few of the doubles which show any open center. These insects can be destroyed in large numbers by picking them off the flowers in the mornings and evenings, or on cold, cloudy days, when they are almost torpid. Hanging sticky flypapers here and there will account for many and fumigation in fairly heavy doses will also kill others. Hand-picking in the early morning I find the most effective way to reduce their numbers. Do not be afraid of them, as they cannot sting.

A GOOD COMMERCIAL MUM.

Last year in commenting on a picture of Chrysanthemum Ramapo which appeared in The Review, C. H. Totty said: "Ramapo was certificated in New York. It is a seedling of Appleton and to my mind will undoubtedly take the place of that variety. It is the same color, shows the same easy growth and the foliage is right up to the flower, but it never under any circumstances shows the objectionable top-knot so common on Col. Appleton. Ramapo will take a place in the list of standard yellows, when it is better known."

In sending the photograph from which the accompanying illustration was prepared, October 19, 1912, Mr. Totty said: "The accompanying picture does but slight justice to the variety, but it will give some idea of the style of flower. This mum was distributed last year and has at one bound forced itself to the front as a first-class commercial variety. Chrysolora is rated as a splendid second early yellow, but Ramapo grown under exactly the same conditions will easily displace it. The latter produces larger flowers and is several shades deeper in color and has just as good a foliage and stem as Chrysolora, which is a splendid variety in all respects, but Ramapo is just a little better. The variety Ramapo is an Appleton seedling, giving the same color, much better stem and foliage and a flower that is always perfect. Out of a batch of 500 that we planted this year we had fewer culls than we have ever had of any variety on the place. When better known, it will unquestionably take its place as the leading commercial yellow in its season."

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The market last week was nothing out of the ordinary, but there was a steady increase of business. The supply of stock is not crowding. The prices are about normal on everything. Chrysanthemums have taken possession of the market, and will remain in possession for some time. Excellent mums are grown in and near the city. The higher grades seem to be the most in demand. The prices of mum stock are not declining much in the wholesale market. Pompons this fall are more in demand than in previous years. Retailers are getting good prices for them. Carnations have improved a great deal, both in quantity and quality, and the prices are advancing a little. Roses are still plentiful and are greatly improved. American Beauties seem to be the leaders.

Various Notes.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving some heavy consignments from the north. They state that the stock is excellent and is moving fast.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had an exceptionally fine window last week, filled with anemone pompons. At the greenhouses they have a fine collection of them. W. L. Rock is at present in St. Paul, where he was one of the judges at the mum show.

W. J. Barnes was busy this week with decorations, which disposed of a great many pot mums.

The Alpha Floral Co. is contemplating buying an electric car for the business. They report they received a nice shipment of holly trees from Europe last week.

William Foith has commenced to cut sweet peas, which are good.

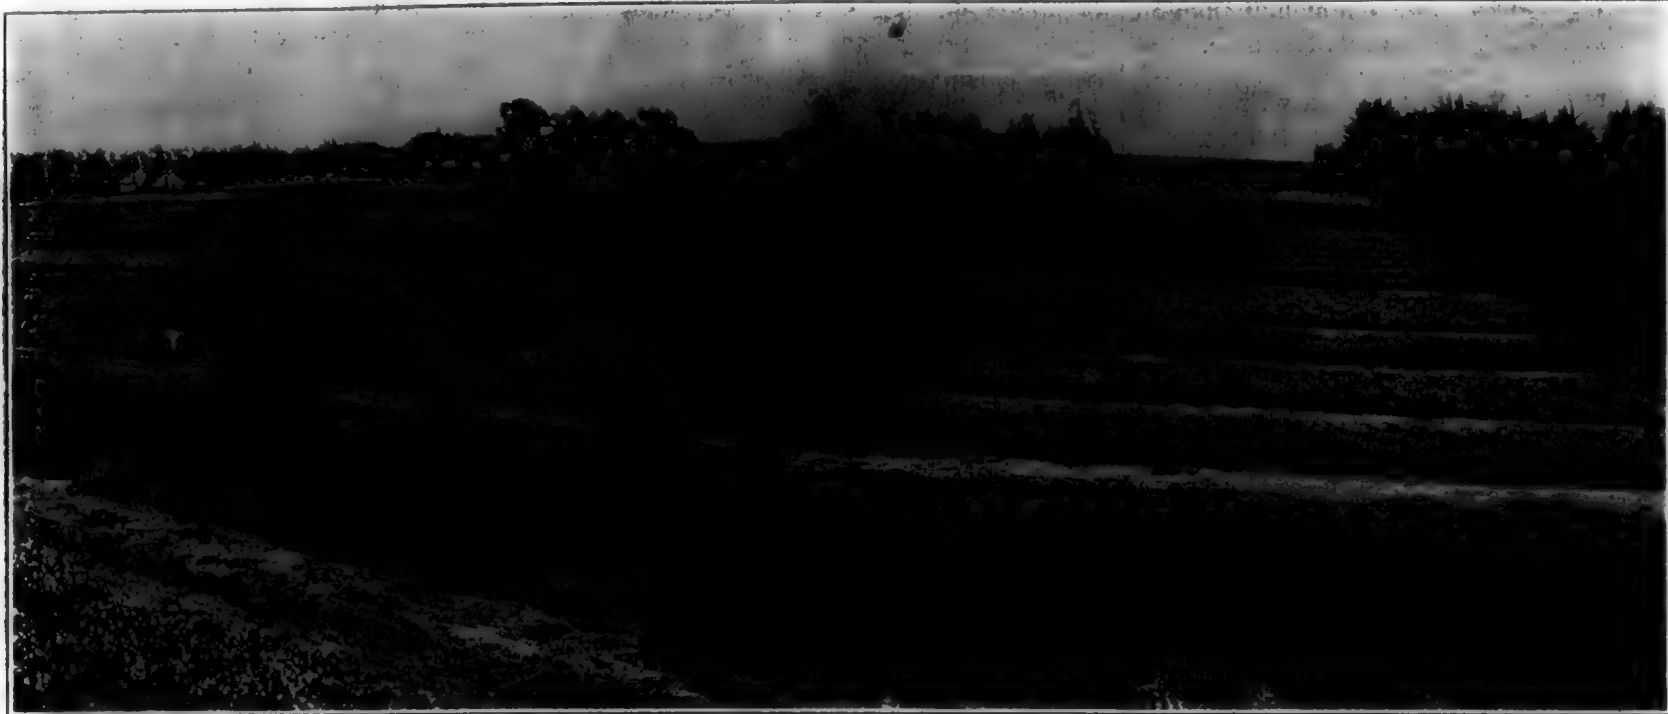

E. H. Frandsen is back from the hospital, but will not be able to attend to business before Thanksgiving. The trade is hoping that he will recover soon.

Samuel Murray recently put up as fine a basket as could be seen in any city. It was original and artistic. The basket stood five feet high and contained a grape vine grown in the pot. It had nine bunches of grapes, weighing eighteen pounds. The vines were twined over the handle down to the bottom of the basket. The base was filled with Brutus chrysanthemums, and pompons which matched the Brutus mums.

A. F. Barbe reports that business is increasing a great deal. At present he has a fine lot of J. Jones mums.

N. Jarrett is back from his hunting trip, and says that business is more successful than the trip.

R. S. Brown & Son are selling their mums as fast as they come into bloom. They have not lost a single bloom as yet out of their enormous quantity.

E. D. Ellsworth had quite a run on American Beauties last week, using a great many in decorating.

The Flower Shop says business has been good and is increasing.

J. Tobler has returned from a hunting trip, which was quite successful.

W. J. B.

SWEET PEAS AT HOME.

The accompanying illustration will be of special interest to those of The Review readers who never have seen sweet peas growing for seeds in California. It is a view of some of the sweet peas on the Burpee ranch at Lompoc, where Edwin Lonsdale is in charge. The photograph was taken last June.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Fine weather, good business and plenty of stock to do it with. That tells the story. Election week did not affect trade, unless it made it better. Presidential elections have always knocked business heretofore, but we hardly knew it was happening this time. Wholesalers and retailers all seem to feel that this will be a good winter. The retailers are booking some good orders ahead and the growers say they have fine crops of roses and carnations in view, so everybody is happy.

Chrysanthemums, of course, have the call, and they are coming in just right and cleaning up every night. Fine stock is offered, especially in the medium sizes. It looks as if the growers are growing more of the medium stock and less of the specially large flowers, which is wise. Single and pompon varieties are much in demand. They seem to grow in favor every year.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met November 5 and, although it was election day, there was a good attendance, it being chrysanthemum night. Phipps Conservatory, Schenley park, showed Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, a fine new white, and eighteen other varieties in good form. Andrew Forsyth, gardener for A. R. Peacock, staged a dozen varieties, each showing splendid finish. C. Becker, of Dixmont hospital, showed four well-done sorts. W. L. Mellon's gardener brought excellent pot plants. Elmer D. Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., showed a number of seedlings and varieties of their introduction. Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., sent a bunch of his new pink rose, Mrs. George Shawyer, which attracted more attention than the chrysanthemums, probably on account of its wonderful growth as much as anything else. Mr. Totty also sent a collection of good commercial cut flower varieties of single chrysanthemums. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. showed four varieties of mums.

A publicity committee was appointed as follows: De Forest Ludwig, E. C. Reineman and T. P. Langhans.

Various Notes.

The shop windows are fine these days. Mrs. E. A. Williams had a fine show of baskets filled with single and pompon chrysanthemums. Most of the windows have vases, but generally run on one color at a time, so that there is a change from day to day.

Fred Burki went to Philadelphia November 5 and will visit his sister in Virginia before he returns.

E. C. Ludwig and family are in the east and will visit Edward Ludwig, who is a student at Cornell.

Faulk Bros. are busy with their artificial door crepes, as well as their retail flower business, but the hunting fever caught Frank Faulk and he had to take a couple of days off last week.

Randolph & McClements say this will be a strenuous week for them: five large weddings and several debutante affairs.

Hoo-Hoo.

OBITUARY.

J. F. C. Ludemann.

After having been an invalid for several years, J. F. C. Ludemann, one of the oldest and best known nurserymen on the Pacific coast, died at his home in San Francisco October 31, and was buried in Mount Olivet cemetery, November 2. With the passing of this pioneer from the scene of his labors, there are left in this neighborhood only a few of the old school of plantsmen and gardeners. Those who made the history of the craft in San Francisco's early days have almost entirely gone to the great beyond and a younger generation has arisen to take their places.

Mr. Ludemann commenced business early in the sixties and for a period of almost half a century conducted the Pacific Nurseries. With his propagating department and sales yard near the Presidio and his wholesale nurseries at Millbrae, he successfully managed his ever increasing trade until, owing to the infirmities of age, he was compelled to relinquish active management. The Millbrae grounds are controlled by his son, and the site of the old nursery at the Presidio is now part of the exposition grounds. Mr. Ludemann was president of the Franklin Mutual Building and Loan Association and a member of several fraternal organizations. He is survived by his son, A. F. Ludemann, and a daughter, Mrs. Hugo Kuster; also by a foster son, Frederick C. Buss, of the California Seed Co. The death of Mrs. Ludemann some time ago was a severe blow to him, from which he never quite recovered. The funeral was held from the St. Markus Lutheran church, of which Mr. Ludemann was a member, and was attended by a large assemblage. The gardening fraternity was well represented and many beautiful floral emblems were seen. Mr. Ludemann was a thorough gentleman of the old school, and as a plantsman he produced stock of the most finished type.

Henry Gresens.

Henry Gresens, a well known florist and nurseryman of Alameda, Cal., died in that town November 2. He had resided there for over twenty years and had been in the retail business until failing health compelled his retirement over a year ago. He was 62 years of age and is survived by a widow. He was a native of Germany. He was one of the charter members of the Society Hortensis and also a member of the Deutsche Krieger Verein. The funeral was held November 6 and the interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

TURN the compost heap once before it freezes up.

To those who never stick to one crop long enough to make a success: "It is always the grass on the other side of the street that, until you get to it, seems to be the greener."

WHEN one man has the big stack of blue chips all the others play against him.
 It is so in business. The little fellow isn't noticed; it's the big man who is the target.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves
 the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

GOOD soil is one of the prime necessities. First-class stock can be grown in a variety of soils, but it usually is easier to prepare the compost well and on time than it is to supply the deficiencies of neglect.

SOME florists think that because they never have had a printed letter-head they never need get one. But it is an extravagance to use plain paper. Many of the best wholesale firms charge retail prices to those who fail to show their connection with the trade.

SOME of the civil service bodies wonder why it is their examinations for florists and gardeners bring out so few candidates. Simply because a man may be an excellent craftsman without being much with the pen, and because equally good jobs are to be had with less effort.

THERE is said to be an unprecedented shortage in popular priced chiffons.
 Owing to the prices at which the cheaper grades of florists' chiffons have been selling, they are said to have not been profitable for the mills, which have diverted a large part of the production to other fabrics.

It is all well enough to "put the profits back into the business" if they go back in the right way, but first of all they should go into a cash balance in the bank that will permit the prompt payment of running expenses, and then they should provide a reserve fund that will pay for rebuilding when the greenhouses need it.

EACH COPY NEARLY A POUND.

It is quite the common thing for subscribers to write, when renewing, that The Review is good value at $1 the year, but here is one better:

I enclose $1 for renewal of The Review. It is a paper worth its weight in gold.—A. M. Sour-dry, Independence, Mo., October 31, 1912.

An ounce of gold is worth several dollars—and each copy of The Review weighs nearly a pound.

GRAFF CONTRACT ENDS.

It recently was reported in these columns that the estate of William Graff, Columbus, O., had brought suit against Samuel Graff to enforce a contract made between the two brothers at the time they dissolved partnership. Sam had agreed not to go into the retail florists' business again in Columbus.
 On the death of William, Sam started again under the name of the Art Floral Co., Sam Graff, manager. The suit followed. The outcome is told in the following, from the Columbus Dispatch of November 10:

"Charles R. Wheeler, as administrator of the estate of the late High street florist, William Graff, has lost his suit against the brother of the deceased, Samuel Graff, brought to restrain the latter from operating a flower store in the Keith's theater building in violation of an agreement with his brother.

"Some time before his death, William Graff bought out the share of his brother, Samuel, in the florist shop at 15 North High street, the contract of sale carrying the provision that the retiring brother should not engage thereafter in the florist business in the city of Columbus. Upon the death of the brother, William, the living party to the contract established a shop in East Gay street, and the administrator of his brother's estate brought suit to enjoin the operation of the business.

"Judge Kinkead, in his decision against the estate, declares that the contract made by the two brothers was merely a personal one and that the death of either party dissolved it."

Many people will wonder if "the death of either party" dissolves the personal contract between the florist and his landlord, and many other "personal contracts" that hitherto have been rated either among the assets or liabilities of estates.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Favorable weather conditions have helped bring the market around to a more normal condition and prices are holding steady, with the supply becoming more plentiful so far as mums are concerned. The crops of later chrysanthemums are now on and hardly anyone is short of stock, except perhaps of the best grade. Roses, however, are on the short side and regardless of the fact that mums are so plentiful there is hardly any sign of a drop in prices on the medium or better grades of roses. Beauties are extremely scarce and carnations have likewise dropped off until it is hardly possible to fill all the calls for either the colored or white ones. Beauties have been hard to supply for a week or more and all lengths are found to be short of the demand.
 Other roses are a little more plentiful and some nice Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Sunburst are to be had at fairly normal prices. Aaron Ward and Lady Hillingdon are also to be had and the demand for the fancy roses appears to be better than usual.

With the start of the week chrysanthemums began to arrive in large numbers and all the old favorites were among those included in the shipments. Bonnaillon has been arriving in quantity for several days. Other fancy mums were also added to the list and

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR FANCY MUMS!

OUR STOCK IS GROWN BY SPECIALISTS

—and that makes a very important difference to you. The stock is of quite a different character from that grown simply as a catch crop—a space filler. It means uniform stock in quantity—the ability to supply 500 all of the same grade and variety instead of mixed. The good late varieties are now coming in in quantity. All colors.

FANCY ROSES

There are three strong reasons why the thinking buyers are ordering their Roses of us this season: In the first place, it is well known that better Roses cannot be grown; in the second place, we have a full line—the largest in the market; and, thirdly, we have this year fully doubled our supply—from new glass—so can take good care of a large number of new customers.

CARNATIONS

Carnations are clean and good; they are of increased size and the stems have lengthened out. At the same time the supply has increased. You will like our Carnations.

VIOLETS

We have large supplies of Violets that are of excellent quality. Don't you want a daily shipment?

BEAUTIES

It is well known that our supply of Beauties is the largest and by far the steadiest in the west, and probably in the entire United States, while the quality is all that the most critical buyer could ask. Order direct of us.

ORCHIDS

We offer the finest quality of Cattleyas. The best trade everywhere calls for Orchids. Don't let the flower buyers go elsewhere because you have no Orchids. We can keep you supplied. A fine crop is on.

the week could almost be termed chrysanthemum week from the number of different varieties of the larger and finer qualities now being received. All colors are represented and the quality ranges from the highest to the poor stock that finds little encouragement from the buyers who take only the better grades. The warm weather has brought on the crops with greater rapidity than was anticipated. Whether this will affect the usual crops for the Thanksgiving trade is a question that is giving the local men some worry, but it is expected that enough will be on hand to care for everyone. Carnations are most likely to come in faster if the weather continues warm, and roses are expected to respond to the conditions as well, so that there is hardly any chance that orders will be slighted. Pompon mums, and singles, are everywhere. They are selling well but the supply is so much greater than last year that prices have suffered.

Greens are holding firm, with the hardy ferns meeting with the usual advance that is experienced at this time each year. Lilies are still in good demand and bring a good price. Violets are arriving on the market in large quantities and are finding an excellent demand in the face of the fine weather. Retailers report that the weather is suitable to increased business and as long as it continues corsage bouquets will be popular. Cattleyas are not so plentiful as they were and the price has advanced. Paper Whites have become fairly plentiful.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of between fifty and sixty members at the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club November 7. President P. J. Foley occupied the chair and L. H. Winterson acted as secretary pro tem., in the absence of C. F. McCormick, whose resignation was accepted. Officers for next month's annual election were nominated, as follows:

For president—Guy French and D. A. Robertson.

For vice-president—John P. Degnan, A. Henderson and C. J. Bond.

For treasurer—E. F. Winterson.

For secretary—Wilder Deamud, S. A. Jamieson and Lewis H. Winterson.

For trustee—H. N. Bruns, to succeed himself; C. L. Washburn and George Asmus holding over, as determined by lot after the new by-laws were adopted.

A paper by Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, was read by Wilder Deamud. It is printed on another page of this issue.

Invitations and cards of admission have been mailed to all members whose the greenhouses. The first car of coal was unloaded directly into the boiler shed one day last week. In order to get the track laid it was necessary to deed a strip of land sixteen feet wide to be held by the railroad company as long as the siding remains, and to pay for every particle of material and every hour of labor that went into the track. Mr. Keimel figures that the cost of the switch was just about what they have been paying per year for teaming their coal, so that after the first year it will be just that much saved.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says that Bonnaffons are early with practically all the growers this year and he thinks they will become excellent property by Thanksgiving.

George Asmus says business was too good on West Madison street to permit him attending the St. Paul flower show.

Otto W. Frese states that Poehlmann Bros. Co. has arranged to handle the Glencoe violets this season.

Joseph Rehl, of Racine, was a visitor this week. He is preparing to open a flower store.

A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., was at the St. Paul flower show closing November 12.

At Winterson's Seed Store it is stated that an exceptionally good clean-up has been made on all fall bulbs.

N. J. Wieter is looking for an unusually strong demand for carnations for Thanksgiving and says he believes the supply will prove inadequate, taking the market as a whole.

Ted Vogel began work for Lubliner & Trinz November 9.

August F. Poehlmann and Adolph Poehlmann were at St. Paul for several days, staging the Poehlmann exhibits at the show there.

Tim Matchen, sales manager for Peter Reinberg, says that for every two customers that stop buying in this market because they build their own glass three new ones develop, so that the number of customers is greater today than ever before, and steadily increasing. He is one of the optimists.

D. E. Freres says that to make a success of pompon or single chrysanthemums they must be handled with care; the growers must see to it that stock gets to the customers in fresh and attractive condition. Too many handle the bunched mums roughly.

Ground was broken this week for twelve new houses that are to be erected as quickly as possible at Bassett & Washburn's new location at Gregg's Station. The five houses started this spring have been completed. The ones to be erected will be 28x225 feet.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says that although demand does not appear so strong as when stock was less plentiful, still total sales run well ahead of last year at this date.

WE HAVE THE STOCK

Our supply of high-grade stock is as complete as there is to be found in the Chicago market. During the six months since we entered the local field we have made rapid strides, and having proved to the trade that we are to be relied upon for square dealing and right prices at all times, we now occupy an important position in the greatest flower market of them all. We have recently taken over the cut flower business of E. H. Hunt, Inc., and have materially increased our source of supply so that you can depend on getting what you order.

WE WANT YOUR ORDERS

Our THANKSGIVING stock supply will be big—Roses, Mums, Carnations, Etc.

If you are not getting what you want when you want it, send us your order, large or small, and let us demonstrate what we can do in the way of stock, service and satisfaction. Every order is packed under the personal supervision of Mr. Charles Erne, who for sixteen years was identified with E. H. Hunt's cut flower department, and whose long experience in this line enables us to give you just that much more in value.

Harry Manheim, of Hoerber Bros., says their first Appleton mums came in November 10 and were quickly disposed of to local buyers.

Miss Ida Evert reports that the advance cut of Eaton mums came in from the establishment of her brothers, John and Nick Evert, November 11. Miss Evert is located at 32 East Randolph street this season.

A. Schefer, formerly with J. B. Deamud Co., has been added to the store staff of Erne & Klingel. The latter firm has entered on its second six months, and Mr. Erne says the first six months have more than equaled expectations. Larger quarters will be sought before long, in order to keep up with the increased shipping trade.

Local gardenia crops are on at last and John Kruchten is wearing the happy smile again. According to the growers, the cuts will be steady for some time to come.

M. C. Gunterberg says that this season is an exceptionally good one for violets and anticipates a big Thanksgiving day demand.

Phil Schupp is optimistic about the carnation crops for Thanksgiving, although just enough are being cut to fill orders at present.

Percy Jones says the supply department is busy from early to late getting shipments of holiday orders under way.

That the market is better than is usual at this time of the year is the opinion of the staff at Kyle & Foerster's.

C. W. McKellar has been having an unpleasant time with his feet, due to being on them so much. Commonly the swelling is at the other end when business begins coming good for a florist.

J. H. McNeilly, who has for months been defending himself in court against the charges of a woman former employee, is again in doubt about the path of the florist being strewn with roses. Mr. McNeilly runs a flower store in connection with a candy and soda shop. He once had quite a catering business in connection. When he has a competent florist and trade is good he thinks the flower business the finest thing he has ever tried, but when he loses his help he quickly gets to a point where he talks about selling out. At present it is a flower store without a florist.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The business seems to be affected by the weather. The warm autumn days, more like June than anything else, seem to have infected the buyers with spring fever or some such malady. There is too much stock for market requirements and as a result none of it brings returns commensurate with the real value. Chrysanthemums naturally are occupying the center of the stage. They are at their best. The rose cut has decreased in size to usable proportions and almost everything good clears nicely. There are, however, off days when roses do not move well. The Beauty cut is normal and selling well. Other offerings include the various varieties of carnations, lilies, valley, orchids, violets and sweet peas.

Various Notes.

The park department has for the last fortnight at the Eden park greenhouses given a display of pompons and other potted small mums that attracted many thousands of visitors.

L. H. Kyrk was the first wholesaler to receive mignonette this season. Geo. Kotter, of Price Hill, was the grower.

Miss White, of Lexington, Ky., on a recent business trip to this city, said that business in her town is good.

The W. R. Miller estate, of Covington, has been sending elegant pompons to E. G. Gillett.

Ellis McLean & Co. have opened a retail store at 1061 Linn street.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is finding ready sales for the carnations from Bloomhurst, Lockland.

Casper Titenberg, an old-time florist, formerly located on upper Main street, died at the Lodder home in Hamilton last week.

Dan Ruttle, of Latonia, has been sending elegant Bird mums to C. E. Critchell.

P. J. Olinger is finding a good demand for Beauties.

The J. M. McCullough's Sons Co. is receiving fine pompons from Albert McCullough's own place.

Peter Weiland has for the last several days been cutting some fine Richmond roses.

Among recent callers were G. Reising, of L. Baumann & Co., Chicago; John Guenter and Mr. Gerlach, of Piqua, O., and Mrs. and Miss Lambert, of Springfield. C. H. H.

Wm. Murphy says business is fully up to last year's November record.

BEAUTIES

Since we first handled Beauties, our supply has been increased each season. Our increase this year is the cut of 18,000 plants. We offer you the largest stock of Beauties in this market.

Philadelphia has always had a reputation for high-grade Beauties. Anyone familiar with the Philadelphia growers knows that we represent the men that have the reputation of producing them.

These are facts.

Every Retailer buys Beauties—some regularly, some once a year. We can supply them. You are 99% sure of getting them here, and you have the satisfaction of quality that may be equaled but not surpassed.

family from abroad, is again established at Covington, Ky., but has hurt his hand and is under a doctor's care, threatened with blood poisoning.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The supply of cut flowers so far exceeds the demand that prices rule low. There are occasional exceptions, where a variety is scarce or where the quality is unusually fine. It is apt to take both these conditions to make a high price possible. The market conditions can be most clearly described by the assertion that there are enough chrysanthemums to do all the business, unaided by any other varieties of flowers. While this is not literally true, the statement pretty nearly portrays the situation and shows why the market is so weak. The trading in chrysanthemums is enormous. Prices, in the opinion of good judges, average below the standard for the season. The scarcity in pink has been overcome by the arrival of Maud Dean and Dr. Enguehard in quantity, aided by a few Chadwick Supreme. White Bonnaillon and Lynnwood Hall have strengthened the whites, while Bonnaillon is good and most plentiful of the yellows. Quinola leads the pompons. It is a fine thing when well grown. Carnations are selling better than they have been, particularly the whites. Prices have not advanced. Violets are in heavy supply. They seem to lack support sufficient to make them move lively. The supply of valley is less than during most of October. At times it is in brisk demand. Bouvardia has become an every-day flower. There is a little extra fine mignonette. Good gardenias are more plentiful. Cattleya labiata is gradually giving way to Cattleya Trianae. Beauties are the only scarce roses.

eighteenth floor of the hotel, the first of its kind up there. It is a yellow dinner, arranged for about 140 guests, seated at ten round tables. Five of these tables have centerpieces of a single tall silver vase on each. Each vase contains two dozen fancy yellow chrysanthemums. The centerpieces for the other five tables are low twig handle baskets, also filled with yellow chrysanthemums.

The wedding is in the cathedral, a lofty building of great size, impressive in its solemn majesty. The chancel is decorated with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums. The long aisle is guarded by a dozen tall posts surmounted by lighted candelabra garlanded with smilax and ornamented with white chrysanthemums.

The design is for a leader in marine affairs. It is an anchor of great size, upright, on a bed of ferns. It is round and perfect in every detail, the body of small white chrysanthemums and carnations, the chains of violets.

These brief sketches are obtained through the courtesy of John P. Habermehl and of Edward Habermehl, who designed and executed the work.

P-M's Washington Home.

A new building has just been completed in the national capital that was erected especially for the selling of cut flowers, plants, greens and ribbons at wholesale. It is a handsome building, worthy in every way of the city and of the business that it represents. It is situated in the shopping district, at 1216 H street, which is within easy reach of all the leading retail stores. This building was erected by the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, for two purposes: to develop the florist business in this city and to afford better facilities for shipping to the south. The success of the business in Washington, established March 1, 1909, at 1212 New York avenue, has encouraged the belief that Washington has a great future as a flower center. Part of the stock received comes from nearby growers, part from a distance. The fact that much time can be saved by florists in the south who desire flowers quickly warrants the belief that Washington is the natural base of supplies for the southern states.

The impression given by the new building, when first seen from the sidewalk of H street, is a pleasant surprise. Mention a wholesale cut flower house and one naturally imagines a place difficult of access, on a back street, or a room in a basement. Here is a modern fireproof building of brick and stone, of attractive architecture; large window, high ceiling, every detail of arrangement carefully planned and executed. The entire ground floor, 26x100, is covered by a single room. It is lighted by an immense window in the front that affords an unobstructed view of the interior, by smaller windows in the rear, and by skylights above. The great height of the ceiling increases the impression of space. The floor is of concrete, covered with a more springy preparation that is fireproof. There are tables in the center, a large ribbon showcase on one side, an admirably built ice-box,

Regarding the Home Industrial School, 2525 Wisconsin avenue, northwest, being interested in floriculture and horticulture and therefore entitled to wholesale prices on all stock purchased, the secretary was instructed to reply to a communication received from a firm of New York nurserymen that, inasmuch as this school is a beneficiary under the government and sells its products in competition with the Washington florists, in our opinion it is not entitled to any reductions. The cause was considered a worthy one, but there are so many such institutions where young folks are taught these trades who sell flowers to the public that the members did not think they should be placed in the same class as the trade with respect to discounts.

The bowling club, according to a report by N. L. Hammer, has been formally organized and, besides Mr. Hammer, the following officers were chosen: George Dalglish, secretary, George Cooke, treasurer, and W. H. Ernest, captain. It is expected that ten bowlers will be sent to Minneapolis and it is estimated that their expenses will amount to over $500. These will be met from contributions made weekly by each of the team members and by

The Market.

With the opening of the French opera house the social events of the season were ushered in. The wealth of elegant bouquets and corsages added in a great measure to the beauty of the scene, and it is a pity that the attractive custom of the opening night is not to some extent followed throughout the season. Weddings and other social functions, as well as the funeral of one of our prominent citizens during the week, helped to dispose of a large quantity of left-over stock of chrysanthemums, as well as the regular incoming shipments of mixed cut flowers. The plant sales during the last few weeks increased considerably, owing to the restocking of many homes with fresh plants.

Club Meeting.

Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., president of the S. A. F., delivered a highly interesting lecture on the subject, "Plants and Flowers of America and Europe," in the Progressive Union hall, November 9. Hundreds of stereopticon views in natural colors added to the attractiveness of the lecture. A fair-sized audience, composed mainly of members of the New Orleans Horticultural Society and their families, was present.

At 8:30 President H. Doescher called the assembly to order and introduced C. R. Panter, the secretary of the society, as chairman. He, in turn, introduced, in his inimitable manner, the speaker of the evening, Mr. Vincent. After some introductory remarks, the lecturer dwelt on the beauty and greatness of the recent London international exposition, giving special credit to the displays of carnations and orchids. Harry Papworth, president of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., who was with Mr. Vincent during his travels in Europe, added some interesting remarks

HOLLY

I HAVE just completed my contracts with the Holly people of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia for my supply for the season of 1912. I secured my Holly this year to be cut from the swamps in the lower part of Delaware and Maryland, as it is greener and has more berries on than the upland Holly. It will be strictly first-class in every particular. I will have it packed as usual, in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and I positively guarantee it as represented. My first car will arrive here about December 1. The price on orders received during November will be $3.00 per case, f. o. b. Philadelphia.

I have my Wreaths made of the brightest dark green Holly possible to secure, wrapped with wire, on 10-inch hoops, and each Wreath has four or five spots of berries. Price, $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to weight and quality.

My Laurel Wreathing comes from New Jersey. The Laurel is gathered in the swamps, and the Wreathing is made by hand on heavy roping in 50-yard lengths. Price, 3c per yd.

The Mistletoe comes mostly from North and South Carolina and is well berried. Price, $2.50 to $4.00 per barrel; $6.00 to $10.00 per case, according to quality, about 100 lbs. to case.

Lycopodium, in 10-yard rolls, 4c to 6c per yard.

Christmas Trees, 5 to 20 feet high, 7c to $2.50 each.

Send me your orders; state the day you want it shipped, and if by freight or express and by what route or railroad.

All Christmas Greens are sold on spot cash terms, and checks must accompany all orders.

while the pictures of the orchid exhibits were thrown on the screen. The immense fields of hyacinths, tulips and narcissi at Lisse, Holland, were the lecturer's next subject. The gorgeousness of the views, with the highly interesting remarks thereon, will never be forgotten. Views from the fine exhibit at Ghent, Belgium, closed the European travels, and the address was concluded with views from Mr. Vincent's own productions of dahlias, in all their splendor of color and form.

A large bunch of outdoor-grown red roses was presented to Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr. White chrysanthemums were presented to all the ladies present, through the courtesy of President H. Doescher. The speaker was greatly applauded and New Orleans was fortunate, indeed, to have heard Mr. Vincent's talk.

Various Notes.

William Nelson disposed of his entire, large stock of mums, wholesale, at good prices.

Max Scheinuk reports a fine sale of the better grade of mums and other cut flowers. R. E.

Waynesboro, Pa.—Fire early in the morning of November 9 destroyed the greenhouses of H. Eichholz, entailing a loss estimated at $5,000, with no insurance.

Cleveland, O.—Gotthelf M. Naumann, former partner in the firm of G. M. Naumann & Son, has sold his interest to Wm. G. Naumann, who will carry on the business under his own name.

Walworth, Wis.—L. C. Bergstrom, who started business here about two years ago, has added another greenhouse to his range. This town is pleasantly situated about two miles from Lake Geneva.

Baltimore, Md.—Fleury & Willett recently were victimized by the familiar check game. The usual neatly dressed young man ordered a bouquet sent to a hospital, presented a check for $10 and received $3 change. Of course the check proved no good.

Rockford, Ill.—C. H. Woolsey, formerly in business here, is now making a tour of the Pacific coast, beginning at Seattle, Wash., and visiting various points of interest in Oregon and California. He will spend some time at the home of his daughter in Pasadena.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

While business might be much better, yet considering the heavy quantity of flowers arriving, it cannot be classed as unsatisfactory. Each year the first half of November is a period of glut, and the present season is no exception to this rule. Chrysanthemums, while less abundant than a week ago, still overtop everything else. The most prominent variety is Bonnaillon, still the most popular sort in this market, and which will sell when other varieties cannot be moved. Of this good old sort there are probably more flowers now arriving than of all others combined. Prices on these have shown little change of late. Roses, while selling a trifle better, are handicapped by the abundance of mums. Such sorts as Russell, Taft, Sunburst, Cardinal and the best Killarney move well, but there is a big quantity of short-stemmed stock which has to be cleared low.

Carnations are of fine quality, but so abundant that only a limited number rise above $2 per hundred. White Wonder, Gloriosa, Benora, Pink Delight and Beacon are leaders. Violets have never been seen in such overwhelming numbers so early in the season, and prices have ruled low on them. Some good sweet peas are coming in from several growers, and Paper White narcissi are also once more in evidence.

Lily of the valley has been rather hard to clear, and the same holds true of lilies. Snapdragon is seen on several stands and sells well, especially pink varieties. Cattleya labiata is still druggy, and there is an abundance of other orchid blooms. Gardenias are not as yet plentiful and sell well. There is an improved demand for both adiantum and asparagus, and some good smilax is coming in.

Pot plant trade is improving. Chrysanthemums, Otaheite oranges, Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, ericas, cyclamens, and ferns in variety are the leaders.

Silver Jubilee Banquet.

There was an attendance of 350 at the silver jubilee banquet of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club in Horticultural hall, November 11. The banquet was held in the main exhibition hall, the side and end walls being banked with the big plant groups and specimen chrysanthemum plants from the exhibition which closed the previous evening. The tables were beautifully decorated. Mme. Charles Russell rose was the cynosure of all eyes. Splendid Princess Dagmar carnations and other novelties were included in the wealth of flowers on the tables. Dill, of Melrose, was caterer, and the banquet left nothing to be desired.

After everyone had been satisfied, Vice-president Kennedy welcomed everyone in a few felicitous remarks, and in the absence of Judge C. W. Hoitt, introduced Alderman Walter Ballantyne, of the Boston city council, as toastmaster of the evening, a position Mr. Ballantyne filled to perfection. Alex. McGregor, of the governor's council, spoke for the commonwealth. William J. Stewart, first president of the club and largely responsible for its organization, was historian. J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, in his usual able and eloquent manner, spoke for the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of America. Adolph Farenwald, in his usual genial way, responded to the toast of the American Rose Society, and in the absence of Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, who had planned to attend, Peter Fisher gracefully responded for the American Carnation Society. Charles W. Parker, president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, extended the greetings of that society, while W. N. Craig spoke for the ladies.

A telegram of good cheer was read from Thomas Pegler.

The speeches were interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections, a ladies' orchestra furnishing splendid music at intervals, also for dancing, which was enjoyed later in the evening in the lecture hall. The dance director was W. J. Patterson. His aids were H. H. Bartsch, W. Collins, W. J. Thurston, J. L. Miller, D. Finlayson and M. F. Ruane. The committee of arrangements had done its work well, and all present spent a most delightful evening. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club was organized January 7, 1887, chartered June 24, 1892. It has had ups and downs in its career, like other organizations. Its present membership is 450.

With the Retailers.

J. Newman & Son, on Tremont street, had an attractive window decoration last week of Bonnaffon mums and bunches of the deciduous holly, Ilex verticillata. They are quite busy on funeral work.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, have had an unusually good season so far with wedding and other decorations. Tripods of white birch, from which were suspended small earthenware baskets of plants, were features in one window. In another, Bonnaffon mums, violets and cibotiums made a stunning show.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. continues to have a fine demand for the shower casket covers and receives many testimonials for its work. This is one of the few concerns putting up cheap boxes of roses and other assorted flowers.

Mrs. J. W. Rogers, on Summer street, has had a good sale for bulbs this season and now has quite an active cut flower and plant business. She is situated close to the big South Terminal and many thousands pass her store daily.

T. F. Galvin, at his Tremont street store, continues to feature the new rose, Mme. Charles Russell. He has a fine orchid display and some grand specimen mum flowers. Plant trade is active here.

Wax Bros. are an energetic firm, always full of business. Their specimen mums are noteworthy. Pansies made up in huge bunches of one color are featured here, as are single violets.

Choice fruits as well as flowers are to be seen in the big show window of MacMulkin. Mr. MacMulkin captured firsts for the floral table decoration and fruit table, and second for the large plant group and orchid group at the show, as well as several other prizes.

H. R. Comley usually has some flowers not seen in other stores. Double white violets, Daphne Indica and Lilium auratum were noted here.

F. H. Houghton does not crowd his windows as do too many of the retailers. Baskets of mums tastefully arranged, old-fashioned bouquets and cibotium ferns are featured here.

Zinn, on Park street, is being kept quite busy this season. I noted an extra fine pink snapdragon here, orchids in good variety, gladioli, bouvardias and a fine selection of pot plants.

Carbone, on Boylston street, never crowds his window or store displays.
Everything shows to the best possible advantage, and color harmony is most carefully studied. One window here was devoted to specimen plants of Ota-heite oranges. Many large ivy plants are suspended high in the windows and sprays from them hang down naturally.

Fall business is starting in satisfactorily with the W. E. Doyle Co., on Boylston street. They have an attractively arranged window in which plants are chiefly used.

The Rosary, on Boylston street, had almost an entire window devoted to Bonnaillon mums. They have had a good season up to date and anticipate brisk business the coming winter.

Various Notes.

F. L. Sly, of Stoughton, who recently started in business on his own account, is sending excellent single and double violets to D. F. Laney, at the Boston Coöperative Market. J. T. Gale, of Tewksbury, at the same stand, has some fine double violets.

Edward Wood, of Lexington, is going strong on mums at present. Enguehard and Baby pompons are two of his specialties.

W. S. Phelps, of Marlboro, is in the market with good pink and white snapdragons. He also has a large cut of mums.

Flowers for All Occasions, from Cradle to Grave

S. J. Goddard has, among other new carnations, several of English origin, including British Triumph and Lady Northcliffe. The latter, a light pink, he speaks highly of.

The Scituate Greenhouses and C. L. Pierce, of Holbrook, are growers of smilax, which is in active demand at the Boston Flower Exchange.

William H. Elliott had this season 2,500 bush chrysanthemums, mostly in 8-inch and 9-inch pots. He finds Garza the most popular variety, but Shrimpton, Mrs. Frank Beu, J. H. White, Sunderbruch and Harry are also in demand.

J. J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, W. H. Tomlinson and H. W. Vose were the earliest shippers of Paper White narcissi to the local market.

The Mishawum Flower Co., A. F. Anderson, W. S. Phelps and other large mum growers are sending a splendid assortment to J. M. Cohen at the Boston Coöperative Market. Popular sorts are Bonnaffon, Winter Cheer, Intensity, Papworth, White Bonnaffon, Enguehard and Baby pompon.

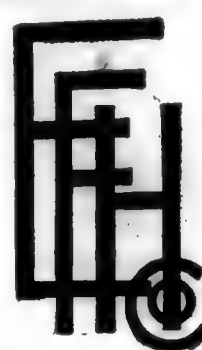

Sweet peas of excellent quality are now arriving from Malcolm Orr, of Saugus; W. P. Foley, of Mansfield; Mishawum Flower Co. and E. K. Mundy, of Reading.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has a heavy daily cut of Bonnaffon mums at present, in addition to his lily of the valley. He has a house of gardenias looking healthy, one house of 3,000 poinsettias which are just showing bracts, and 7,000 giganteum lilies being grown for Easter.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, November 19, in addition to the regular lecture, nominations of officers will be made for 1913. There is also much other business of importance to come up.

Jas. F. Delay, of Stoneham, at the Boston Coöperative Market, has a fine lot of Christmas peppers and assorted ferns.

Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, have 3,000 of their new crimson carnation, Princess Dagmar, awarded a silver medal at the show. They are growing Shasta more heavily than any other white and find nothing to equal it as a producer. Pink Delight, White Wonder, Benora, St. Nicholas and Gloriosa are all grown in quantity.

Robert Montgomery, in addition to his roses, has a grand lot of Bonnaffon mums which easily realize top-notch prices.

R. A. Washington, of North Stoughton, has at present an attractive stand with cosmos, calendulas and chrysanthemums.

G. H. Bean, of Medford, A. F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, and G. W. Foster, of Wamesit, are sending fine Bonnaffon mums to the Boston Coöperative Market.

Mann Bros., at the Boston Flower Exchange, have lilies in quantity, a large assortment of mums, cosmos and Paper White narcissi.

R. D. Kimball, of Waban, has Bonnaffon, Patty, Enguehard, Intensity and Baby pompon mums, all of fine quality.

Herman Waldecker, of Braintree, is cutting extra fine Mrs. Weeks and Bonnaffon mums.

Edgar Bros., of Waverley, have a fine assortment of pompon mums, in addition to the large single-stemmed sorts. They grow Savannah heavily as a yellow pompon.

The Westboro Greenhouses, L. C. Midgley, proprietor, have 7,000 plants of their new scarlet carnation, Eureka. This is somewhat brighter in color than Beacon, has a stiff stem and is a free and constant bloomer. As a commercial bread and butter variety, it is one of the best we have seen. They are planning to introduce it the coming season.

FANCY CUT and a Complete A FLORISTS

WE CAN HANDLE ALL YOUR ORDERS

In our Cut Flower Department we are in a position to please the most critical by those whose requirement is quantity. In our Florists' Supplies Department we have the best quality of supplies in America. Come and see them. It's worth the trip to everyone within reach.

MUMS—We Can Supply the Stock You Need in Quantity

The good late varieties are now coming in. We have them in all colors, fine stock that we can sell at from $1.00 to $2.50 per dozen—$6.00 to $15.00 per 100—and that's the kind of Mum you can sell in quantity. White, pink and yellow in all sizes. Plenty of bunched spray of fine Pompons and Singles, pink, yellow and white. Now booking orders for Thanksgiving.

FANCY ROSES

Our present crops of Roses are not only A No. 1 in quality, but are so large we can fill every order. Specially strong on the Killarney and Richmond, but also can supply all the other varieties. We believe we are conservative when we say there are no finer Roses to be had anywhere. Shall have plenty to fill your order for Thanksgiving.

HOME-GROWN ORCHIDS

Our Cattleyas are the home-grown kind. Excellent value at $5.00 and $6.00 per dozen. Once you use these you will be content with no other kind. Fancy sprays of oncidiums, yellow, $4.00 per 100 flowers. No matter what you need in Cut Flowers, order of Randall. Beauties, Violets, Lilies, Valley, Snapdragon and everything in season. We are now booking orders for Thanksgiving—and Our Prices are Right.

BOXWOOD FOR CHRISTMAS

We ask that you order some of our Boxwood now, so that you can see the quality of our stock and compare it with what you have had from others. We are sure that you will want us to supply you for Christmas. We already have booked a large number of big orders for shipment in December, but have not by any means booked up our supply, for it will be the largest ever. Order enough. Remember that you take no risk. Boxwood keeps indefinitely. If you don't use it all for Christmas, use it up in designs in January, when flowers usually are rather scarce. Per case of 50 lbs., $7.50.

WILD SMILAX

We get a daily shipment of Wild Smilax and can fill orders promptly with fresh picked stock. Larger orders shipped to you direct from the woods. Quality guaranteed. Per case of 50 lbs., $5.00.

VIOLET CORDS

There is no better value in any of our lines than on these Cords. Only our huge sales enable us to keep prices so low. A trial order is urged. You will be back for more. All colors.

- No. 1 Card Ties—per dozen, 20c; per gross, $2.00; five-gross lots, per gross, $1.50.
- No. 1 Violet Cords—per dozen, 35c; per gross, $3.50; five-gross lots, per gross, $3.00.
- No. 2 Violet Cords—per dozen, 60c; per gross, $6.00; five-gross lots, per gross, $5.00.
- No. 11 Rope Cords—per dozen (violet), $1.00; per gross (violet), $10.00; per dozen (white and pink), 75c; per gross (white and pink), $7.50.

Order $5.00 or $10.00 worth, assorted.

Write us about your order for Christmas Greens. These fluctuate in price to such an extent that it is impossible to tell what the market will be—but if you want to be assured a supply we will book your order at a guaranteed price. Or we will post you on the market any time you are ready to buy.

FANCY RUSCUS

The experienced buyer of Ruscus knows that there are fully as many qualities of Ruscus as there are houses dyeing it. Good Ruscus, bright and even in color, is about the best seller the trade has got hold of in many a day. But the dull, dirty-colored, moldy, spotted Ruscus—well, about all you can do with that kind is to ship it back to the house you got it from, and order some really good Ruscus from Randall.

Randall's Ruscus is prepared according to the celebrated Marechal method. This means supreme quality. A post card will bring you samples and prices. Send one today. You really should not buy except by sample—the price means nothing until you see the quality. Bright Christmas red, violet, green, lavender, cerise, purple, gold, silver, etc.—any color you want promptly made up to order if not in stock.

FLOWERS

Department of all Lines of

TO YOUR COMPLETE SATISFACTION

Flowers and at the same time our supply of stock is so large that we can do equally well carry every article used in the trade in complete assortment, the largest stock of Supplies in Chicago. You can save your railroad fare on even a small order.

RIBBONS AND CHIFFONS

We believe we have the largest and best selected stock in America, of Florists' Ribbons and Chiffons—not a yard of dry-goods-store stock in the house, as we sell only to Florists. For those who want the best quality we have the finest Ribbons money will buy, and for those who can use less expensive grades we have several different qualities. While all our stock is priced at the lowest rate at which that grade can be sold, the bulk of our business is on the medium-priced lines—we handle these in such enormous quantity that we are confident these are the best values ever offered the trade. Due to conditions beyond control, prices have advanced all over the world, especially on Chiffons. We foresaw this advance and made contracts with the mills, both in this country and Europe, that on many lines enable us to sell at what the same lines would cost now.

You can order by mail with perfect confidence.

VELVET POINSETTIAS

The richest looking we have ever handled. This is really an elegant line and we are so confident of your further business that all we want you to do is to see them. Dwarf size, per dozen, 65c; per gross, $6.00; medium, per dozen, $1.50; per gross, $12.00; mammoth, per dozen, $1.85; per gross, $18.00.

DOLLAR DOVES

You should try our dollar Dove (Blue label—$12.00 per dozen; $1.15 each if ordered in less than dozen lots). You will agree that it is the best value you ever have seen. Of course we have cheaper doves (Red label, $1.00 each, $10.50 per dozen; Green label, 90c each, $9.00 per dozen) that are good value and may serve your purposes, but if you want a specially good article order a dozen of our Blue label Dove at $12.00.

BEECH SPRAYS

These are splendid for designs; rich brown in color, fine leaves, little wood to waste. Once tried you will use them constantly. Order today. 25-lb. lots, 28c per lb.

WIRE RINGS

For your Christmas holly wreaths, 10-in., per 100, 45c; 11-in., 50c; 12-in., 55c; 14-in., 65c. We make everything in wire at closest prices. Write for quotations on quantities.

PLANT AND FLOWER BASKETS

We are offering some special bargains in Baskets in assortments. A great variety of sizes and styles. Put up in assortments at $5.00, $10.00, $15.00 and $25.00. Send for one of them—just give us a line on what you intend to use them for (whether for cut flowers or if should have liners for plants) and we will see to it that you get your money's worth. You can return at once at our expense any Baskets that are not in every way satisfactory.

FANCY OVAL VIOLET PIN, 5-in.

We specialize on this particular pin because it is a good one. Comes in all shades. You will make no mistake in laying in a supply. Compare the price with what you have been paying for Pins that are not in the same class as this.

RUSCUS WREATHS

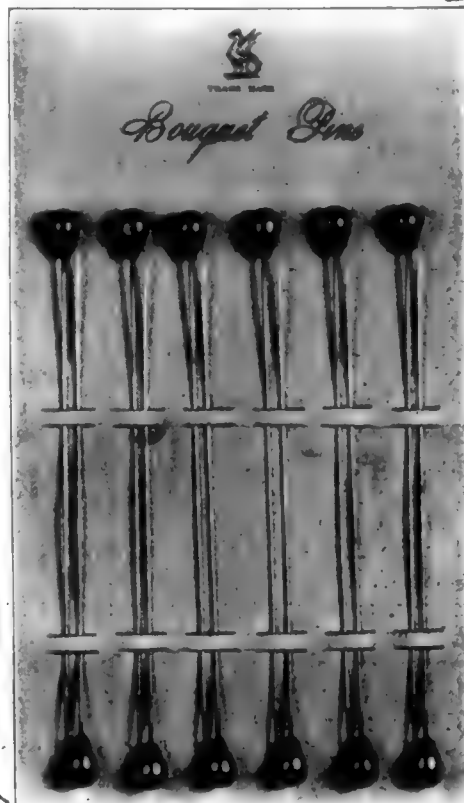

The same Ruscus is used as we send out in the loose form. When you see the Wreaths you will say they are different to any you ever saw. They are in a class by themselves. They have life and glow. Ours are the kind you will want. Send us a post card ordering a few and be convinced. Do it now. You will see at once you can sell quantities at Christmas.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE German growers have a disappointing crop of aster seed this season.

BURPEE & Co., Philadelphia, still are in doubt about offering any of their sweet pea novelties this season, because of the short crops.

DARWIN tulips certainly are enjoying a great advance in popularity. Many more could have been sold this season had they been in stock when called for.

THE Indiana Tomato Seed Co. has been incorporated at Nabb, Ind., with a capital of $15,000, by H. E. Grant, J. N. Grant and E. V. Grant.

IT is the quite general case that grass seeds this season are plentiful and garden seeds quite the opposite, with the flower seed situation mixed.

THERE is no section of the country in which the seed trade is developing faster than in the south. In the south seed selling knows no seasons and never ceases.

BEFORE the convention of the California nurserymen at Oakland, November 7, Lester L. Morse delivered an address on "The Seedsman's View of the Nursery Business."

PRACTICALLY all seedsmen now print the disclaimer beneath the salutation on their letter-heads, in accordance with the decision of the Illinois Supreme Court brought to their attention by The Review.

COLD storage valley pips are said to be pretty well cleaned up and there is a short crop this year because of too long continued rains in the Hamburg growing district, so valley is likely to be good property this season.

A NEW seed business is being started on South State street, Jackson, Miss., under the name of the Taylor Seed Store. The proprietors are S. J. Taylor and his son, Swepson E. Taylor. The younger man will act as manager.

MANY seedsmen will give the greater part of their attention, as usual, to bouquet green and holly for the next five weeks. Small quantities of green are already coming forward. It looks like another season of light supply and high prices, although the quantity will, of course, be determined more than anything else by the date of the arrival of winter in the green districts. Holly probably

¶ If you have not already tested our stocks, we cordially invite you to do so now.

We have had a first-class reputation for over 60 years as raisers and selectors of many of the leading varieties of Garden, Farm and Flower Seeds in commerce, a fact which should appeal to you when in the market.

We live in the country and farm our own land (over 300 acres under cultivation), and the majority of the stocks we offer are from selections made on our own farms at or near Langport.

Our rapidly increasing export connection with the largest and best houses on your side encourages us to solicit your inquiries and orders.

Our prices will be found exceedingly reasonable, consistent with that high quality and careful personal attention which the trade requires.

If you cannot send a trial order now, please submit a list of your requirements, with approximate quantities, either for delivery this fall or fall 1913, and you will find us prompt and attentive to your inquiries.

J. H. HELDT, of the Heldt Co., the seed firm of Evansville, Ind., is a director of the new North Side Bank, in that city, and is also prominent in the movement for street improvement and a Greater Evansville. The company has done both a wholesale and retail business in seeds and implements for twenty-six years, and occupies buildings at 1401 to 1407 Main street and at 1131 to 1133 West Franklin street.

CHARLES CLINE, the seedsman at Abingdon, Ill., has built another storehouse, 14x48 feet, on North Jefferson street. This is the fourth building that he has erected on his property at that location. His store is on East Meek street. Both the store and the warehouse are equipped with cleaning machines, which are run by electricity. Mr. Cline has been in business only a little over a year and the growth of his trade has exceeded his expectations.

DICKINSON'S PLANS.

In connection with its plans for the new plant on the forty-acre tract at Thirty-fifth street, Campbell avenue and the Michigan canal, acquired by it some time ago, the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, has secured a $500,000 loan in the form of a bond issue. The Chicago Title & Trust Co. is trustee, and the loan, which matures in twenty years, bears five per cent interest. It is secured by the property in question as well as that at the southwest corner of Clark and Sixteenth streets, belonging to the Dickinson Co., 77x263 feet, now occupied by it and which it plans to leave by July 1 of next year. While the plans for the new plant have not yet been fully decided on, it is expected it will cost upwards of $1,500,-

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

Last week found the local market in about the same condition as the week previous and still crowded with stock of all grades. Extra fancy grades always sell well, while the others are not so quickly disposed of unless in big lots and at a low price. The clear, cool weather had a good effect on all stock. The demand, they say, while not brisk was steady all through the week.

Chrysanthemums, of course, had the call and all the wholesale houses had plenty of good blooms in the leading varieties, such as Ivory, Major Bonaffon, Eaton, Appleton and Robinson. Golden Wedding and Chadwick are expected this week and these are good sellers in this market. Roses seem to be plentiful and consignments seem to be in good crop, especially so with Kilfarney and Richmond. There are also quite a few Bride, Maid, Maryland and Ivory coming in. Other varieties than those mentioned are somewhat scarce. The demand for roses has not been so good since the mum season opened. Carnations run along as usual at this time of the year, with a good call for fancies, which are not overplentiful. Short-stemmed stock is plentiful and sells slowly at a low price. This market is now in a position to supply extra good valley. Violets have commenced to sell and the market has been cleaning up on these of late at 50 cents per hundred. The bulk comes from the Kirkwood growers. There were a nice lot of Easter lilies to be had during the week.

The market is expecting to quote on Paper Whites, Romans and callas by next week. Everything in greens is plentiful at the usual prices.

Various Notes.

show house. John and Will Young, Jr., have charge of this place and they report a lively trade in plants and cut stock.

John Barnard, who runs the place recently vacated by the Ryan Floral Co., Fourteenth street and St. Louis avenue, says that he has done well so far.

The Diemer Floral Co. and Oscar Heile, of South Broadway, have had a good run of funeral work of late.

Joseph F. Dickmann, well known in local trade circles and a former seedsman, was elected sheriff on the Democratic ticket November 5.

Albert Senger's Lexington avenue place is ablaze with pot chrysanthemum plants in full bloom, on which he has a fine run of trade.

Miss Rose Windler, sister of the Windler brothers, was married Tuesday, November 5, to Edwin Guntly. The happy couple left for a four weeks' trip west.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. reports a big call for California violets last week. They also had a big supply of fancy cut mums, fine valley and excellent quality roses.

Fred Riegal, manager for Alex Siegel's place at Sixth street and Washington avenue, says trade of late has been pleasing, and especially so with transient business.

The Riessen Floral Co., on South Broadway, had a splendid window display of fancy cut mums during the week.

Leroy Smith, vice-president of the J. F. Ammann Co., Edwardsville, Ill., surprised his many friends in the trade by the announcement of his marriage to Miss Ida Epps, of St. Charles, Mo. They were married last July, but no one knew of it until he made it known November 9.

F. J. Farney, representing M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

Robert Thomson is building two large houses, 30x100, at Crescent, Mo., for John T. Milliken, a wealthy merchant, and reports that Mr. Milliken will build a large range of glass after these are completed, to grow stock for the market. John Himmer, Jr., has charge of the place.

The Engelmann Botanical Club held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, November 11, in the lecture room of the Missouri Botanic Garden.

Wasted bench space in greenhouses is the direct cause of thousands of dollars loss annually in the florist business. Even wasted space under benches is a serious loss to most growers. The man who can produce the largest crops per annum in a given space is the best grower—the most profitable grower to employ. Keep your greenhouse space, from the top of the benches down, constantly in use—use it for something. The writer knows a man in Montreal who even operates a cellar under his houses, where are produced mushrooms, etc., utilizing the same greenhouse heat. He knows the real value of greenhouse space, and is able to produce double the quantity that most growers handle in the same space and time. A journey through this man's place would be an eye-opener to many florists. Cold Storage Giganteum is an excellent article to fill in with—you can put them underneath the benches for a considerable time, then bring them on, one crop after another, all through the year. Lilies can be used profitably for many purposes and Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are dependable. Try them—you could not make a better investment. Write now.

Secretary Pring presented an illustrated talk on the Royal Gardens, Kew, London, England. Dr. Moore presided and the meeting was well attended.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. had some excellent consignments of roses, mums, carnations and fancy valley last week. The latter cleaned up pretty well daily.

Angermueller's supply department had quite a lot of shipping last week, to the southwest; also a good demand for cut stock.

The Retail Florists' Association tendered a banquet to its members Wednesday evening, November 6, at the Washington hotel. The tables were nicely decorated with flowers and the following members were seated: C. C. Sanders, Theo. Miller, Fred H. Weber, Fred C. Weber, Jr., R. J. Windler, Chas. Young, Carl Beyer, Fred H. Meinhardt, Emil Schray, C. Bergstermann, H. Young, R. Windt, Alex. Geranios and Jules Bourdet. The speakers of the evening were C. C. Sanders, R. J. Windler and F. C. Weber, Jr. Those present say they spent a most enjoyable evening. Their monthly meeting takes place next Monday evening, November 18, at 8 p. m.

Messrs. Aue, Werner and Rowe have taken to growing valley and are cutting some of extra good quality.

J. J. B.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

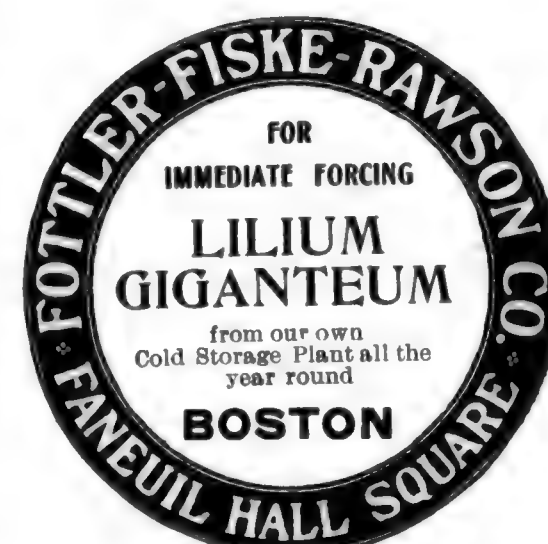

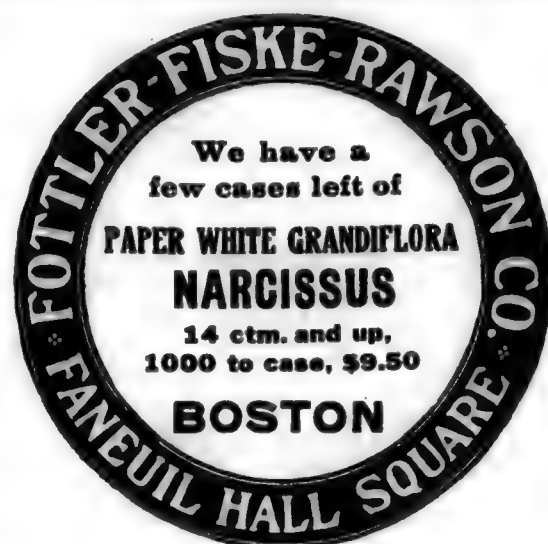

The Market.

One week ago we had our first really killing freezes, but the weather is warm again. Outdoor flowers are a thing of the past, however, and it is shown in the great increase of business. Halloween business was good, but not all that was expected. Funerals and parties, together with several weddings, served to clean up all stock, however, so all are happy. The last week has been the best for retail business that has been known here for years. Chrysanthemums are in big demand and few, if any, are going to waste. Pot mums are selling well. In fact, there has been a great deal of stock shipped in from other points to meet the demand. Carnations are plentiful at present, and the quality is good. Violets continue to have short stems, but they sell well at fair prices. Roses are still scarce, but the quality remains good. Orchids are more in evidence than they were a week ago, and of better quality. Lilies and valley are rather scarce. Ferns are selling better than they usually do at this time of year. Fall planting of trees and shrubs has started and promises to be a record breaker, as there were so many good dwellings erected this season here. Perhaps there has never been a summer in the history of Nashville when there were so many good residences erected as this year.

Various Notes.

The bursting of the city reservoir this week demolished a score of dwellings, and threatened to cut some of our growers off from a water supply for a few days, but this was fortunately averted.

At Haury & Sons' place of business the decorations were mostly single chrysanthemum plants. They have made a specialty of these pot plants and say the sales are good. Their cut mums are still in evidence, as well as their carnations.

When we called upon Mr. Geny we found everyone in the store busy. A rush of over fifty designs on top of unusually heavy out-of-town orders, received late in the afternoon, kept all on the jump, but after hard work everything was sent out on time. Mr. Geny says that business has not been as good in five years as it is right now, and a visit to his place of business certainly bears out the statement. Mums continue to be his specialty this week, although his carnations are coming in crop.

If there have ever been any prettier floral decorations sent out in this city than the Joy Floral Co. sent to Miss Keith's debutante party it has not been our good fortune to see them. The decorations consisted of American Beauty roses in one of the parlors, and the remainder of the house was decorated with chrysanthemums. The table decorations were valley, orchids and Killarneys. An elaborate basket of pink orchids, valley and Killarneys was said to be the prettiest piece ever seen in the city.

The seed business is a little slack, now that the cold has struck and planting has about ceased. The respite is needed, however, to get stock into shape

EVER-BEARING STRAWBERRIES.

In an account of a local fair I find the following: "Prominent among these displays is that of the ever-bearing strawberry, by Mr. Creep, of Middletown. This display consists of a huge barrel bored full of holes, and growing out from each is an ever-bearing strawberry plant loaded down with ripe fruit." Is this possible, and if so, could the berries be grown in a greenhouse? L. F.

It happened that in the same mail there was a sample of the fall-bearing strawberries grown by Edward W. Creep, Middletown, Pa. They were handsome fruits.

Replying to the inquiry about growing them in a greenhouse, we do not know of its having been tried, but Mr. Creep says in his letter he thinks they will bear all winter in a greenhouse. These varieties fruit outdoors in autumn until quite severe frosts arrive.

DISEASED CUCUMBERS.

I wish you would tell me what is the matter with a few cucumber plants in our houses and mention a remedy. The plants seem to be nearly all healthy until they are from one to two months old; then they seem to blight at the tips, slightly wilt for a few days and start again into growth, but the plants have some yellow streaks and spots on the leaves and the cukes have the same peculiarity. The first plant which was affected is now going ahead with a strong growth, but the leaves do not quite regain their right color. The soil is light and sandy. No manure was used this fall, but a crop of wheat and vetch was grown and turned under, and after three weeks the soil was sterilized. We grow the plants in solid beds, three and one-half feet wide, with an 18-inch path between the beds. There is a slight shade in the morning at the spot where the plants are affected. Any information will be greatly appreciated. R. E. M.

It is difficult to tell what is the matter with the plants, from the description, but I have a suspicion that it is the bacterial wilt disease which is giving cucumber growers so much trouble all over the country. If it is the wilt disease, it will spread rapidly to other plants and the crop will never pay, as so many of them will be so affected that they will finally die out without producing much of a crop. There is only one preventive and that is to pull the plants out and burn them.

In case it is not the trouble that I suspect, it may be due to insects or to some fertilizer affecting the roots of the plants. It is not due to the shade. I shall be interested in knowing later how the plants act and may be able to help you out. H. G.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is moving along in a quiet way. There is nothing special transpiring, but it is the constant business that gets results. There is plenty of stock for everybody. The dark, cloudy weather for the last few weeks has affected the roses in several ways; Maids, especially, are showing these effects. Mums are of better quality each day, with a good variety of color. For miniature and pompon varieties there has been an unusual demand; in fact, the demand exceeds the supply. Lilies are practically out of the market. Locally grown violets are scarce; the California product is useful for emergency cases. Valley and orchids are almost out of the market, though there is a brisk demand. Ferns and palms also move well as the season advances. Lorraine begonias find ready sales, being the best available blooming plants.

Various Notes.

Everything is in readiness for the flower show November 15 and 16, at the Armory. A large attendance is expected. Flowers will be sold for the benefit of the Fruit and Flower Mission, and a percentage of the other receipts will also be given to this charitable organization. E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

With the one exception of white outdoor carnations, all stock is plentiful at time of writing and by the time these notes appear the carnations may also be in the running again. Roses, both outdoor and indoor, are excellent, Winnie Davis being in magnificent shape, also the Cochetts. Beauty is more plentiful and good. My Maryland is up to its regular form and the Killarneys are improving right along. There are still large quantities of mums arriving, Jeanne Nonin, the well known white, being magnificent. Sweet sultan is fine, the varieties being clean in color and of good substance. The cactus dahlias continue fine for window and store display, while the pretty little Cecil Brunner roses are quite indispensable. Violets are better than a week or two ago, but they cut little figure in the market. Japanese growers now have this product practically to themselves and are peddling them around to all the stores, wholesale and retail. Valley runs about even with the demand, excepting when a number of weddings occur. Then Cecil Brunner roses, orchids or other small flowers have often to be substituted. Orchids continue to arrive in good condition from local men and the northern stock is also better than formerly. Among the small flowers used, Marguerite Mrs. F. Sander is again to the fore. Large quantities of artificially colored stock are being used, the red ruscus being one of the most attractive. Smilax arrives in considerable quantities, but a good deal of it is spotted from sunburn. Plumosus and Sprengerii are both plentiful and good and there is a brisk demand for huckleberry. Brake fern is scarce at times and the quality is nothing extra.

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Any florist on the Pacific coast not satisfied to do a local retail business can build up a prosperous wholesale trade by using space in The Review to let the buyers know where stock is to be found. This way:

We have found advertising in The Review to be very satisfactory. We have had orders from all parts of the United States, as well as from the Pacific coast, showing that your valued paper has a very wide circulation. At any time we have any special advertising to do we certainly shall send it to The Review.—Hogan & Kooyman, Oakland, Cal., October 3, 1912.

Various Notes.

The officers of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society evidently thought more of the election, November 5, than of the monthly meeting, for a number of members, assembled outside Kruckeberg's hall, got tired of waiting for the officers to turn up and at last gave it up and departed for home. Such an occurrence certainly is bad for the society. At least the members should have been advised of the fact that no meeting was to be held and this would have prevented several of them coming from long distances only to find a locked door with a number of their associates outside it.

The Los Angeles Evergreen and Cut Flower Supply Market is getting settled in the new quarters on Fourth street. Tony Tassano, the energetic manager, is delighted with the business done so far this season. The firm supplied the decorations at Fiesta park for the culinary show, redwood and palm leaves being used. The Roserie Flower Store had the contract for the work.

C. E. Houdyshel, of Pomona, has some attractive hybrids of German and other irises, the result of his own crosses. He is also working on hymenocallis, amaryllis and other lilaceous subjects and has achieved some interesting results already.

Inquiries of the H. N. Gage Co. seem to foreshadow a good season's business. When out-of-town retailers begin to send in Christmas orders the first week in November it looks like good business. The arrival of large importations of colored and natural immortelles kept everyone busy here this week.

R. Fenick, of Long Beach, who is a frequent buyer in this city, reports trade good.

striving director in Mr. Barnhart. The location chosen for the nursery is in the La Habra valley, thirty-three miles from Los Angeles.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. has purchased the stock, greenhouses and lease of the East Side Nursery, on North Main street, and will erect large packing sheds there to relieve the congestion at the city store. Railway facilities are also to be had there. Another recent purchase by this enterprising company is 127 acres at Arroyo Grande for seed growing and nursery purposes. M. L. Germain has made several northern trips recently in connection with the firm's interests there.

Geo. Watson reports his carnations in better shape than ever this year. Victory is a sure card always with Mr. Watson and the Enchantress varieties are also good. An order for 700 Silver Wedding mums was recently filled, about half an hour after its receipt, by the Los Angeles Flower Market.

J. L. Young, of San Gabriel, says his Purity freesias never looked better than this year.

The Redondo Floral Co. had its largest single order for the season so far November 2, the Concordia Club building being decorated from top to bottom on the occasion of a dance and banquet. Yellow mums were used in the rooms, with great quantities of palms and greens. An unusually heavy rush of funeral work the same day kept everyone busy. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We have been treated to a few showers during the last few days and everything has freshened up considerably in consequence. Business is fair, but not as lively as it might be at this time. The prospects are good, however, for plenty of trade in the near future. Violets are in heavy supply, in consequence of the weather, and have improved in quality greatly; they cost the retailers 60 cents per dozen bunches. Inside roses and carnations are not moving as well as they might, but this is on account of the heavy supplies of mums that are being brought to town daily. Of these there has been an oversupply for the last two weeks, though at present, owing to the big football match on Saturday next, they are being held somewhat higher than they were. Valley and orchids are in good quantity, without any excess being noted. Some late blooming longiflorums are seen and they move well. Other kinds of stock are about as usual.

Various Notes.

Geo. C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, at Fresno, is in town for a few days.

The Tri-City Floral Co., recently located in the Pantages theater building, Oakland, has retired from the retail business.

The Alameda County Floral Society has been organized, with J. M. Carroll, of Dimond avenue, Fruitvale, Cal., as secretary.

Podesta & Baldocchi are receiving some extra fine clusters of phalenopsis from J. A. Carbone, of West Berkeley.

The department stores are handling some bulbs, as usual, this year. They are selling them at a much closer margin than the dealers find it necessary to do, however, and certainly are content to make an infinitesimal profit.

E. H. Rust, the well known dealer of Pasadena, Cal., is in town.

The Market.

The weather of the last week has not improved matters in the flower business, but trade has been brisk, nevertheless, and there are fewer complaints heard in all the stores. Stock of most flowers is fairly plentiful. Carnations are not overabundant, though good supplies are coming in. They are mostly cleaned up every day and a good many are shipped to outside points. The outlook for the carnation market is certainly better than it was a year ago. Chrysanthemums continue plentiful and of good quality and all varieties meet with a ready sale. Outdoor flowers are over, as the rains of the last week effectually squelched any that were blooming. Violets are plentiful and the street venders must have had all they wanted during the last few days. Pot plants are selling well, with some good Lorraines and Glory of Cincinnati on sale. Greens are scarce and in heavy demand.

Various Notes.

The Queen City Floral Co., of which John Holze is managing director, has just completed the erection of a store and dwelling house at the premises on East Union street. The new buildings add quite a fine finish to this plant. The store, a glass structure, 20x36, is nicely fitted up and is heated by an independent boiler in the basement. A lot of money has been laid out at this establishment in the last year, but the company has the satisfaction of knowing that the place is now thoroughly up-to-date. The stock is all looking first-class, the cyclamens and primulas being especially noteworthy, and everything is in condition for a large business.

Miss Bessie Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., returned to Seattle November 2, after a month's vacation spent in Spokane, and she looks as if the change had been good for her. During her absence the firm has been busy enlarging the retail department and making improvements in the store which add greatly to its appearance.

John Holze has accepted an invitation to act as one of the judges at Portland's fall flower show.

Between business and politics, the managers of the Seattle Pottery have had their hands full lately. Their pots seem to be filling the bill, judging from the large numbers sold recently.

The Dutch bulb growers already are here, some of them calling on the trade last week.

J. J. Bonnell reports the opening of fall trade in the nursery business as much better than last year. He has had some extensive orders. His large stock of ornamentals is looking fine. He has about 10,000 laurels and finds the sale for them constantly increasing. His new grounds at Kirkland are proving satisfactory and he is growing large quantities of young shrubbery and general nursery stock there, finding it more profitable than European importations. He says the new restrictions on importing stock do not help the nurserymen in any way.

Miss F. M. Colley, who used to be with E. Matraia, in the Crescent Flower Shop, is now assisting him in the management of the Paris Flower Store, on Pike street.

Some of the growers have refused consignments of Japanese Lilium grandiflorum on account of late delivery. The bulbs so far received are in better condition than in recent years.

AN EFFICIENT ASSISTANT.

It always is a pleasure to know that one's efforts are appreciated:

In renewing my subscription to The Review I can say that it is an asset to everyone in the business and that I would not like to miss a single copy, although at times I can hardly get a chance to glance over more than the classified ads. I have closed some contracts that will enable me to offer the trade some values that will be appreciated in the line of imported stock, and The Review will be my assistant on the sales force. I do not mind saying that from the standpoint of an experienced advertiser The Review is a better medium for producing results than any paper known to me.—L. Rucker, Galveston, Tex., October 28, 1912.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

H. A. ALSPAGH, superintendent of parks at Sacramento, Cal., has placed before the park board a plan for the establishment of a municipal nursery.

RAY PRESTON, a nurseryman residing near Kendall, N. Y., accidentally shot and killed his 8-year-old son recently, while cleaning a gun, which he thought was unloaded.

THE Gardner Nursery Co., of Osage, Ia., has completed the erection of an addition to its buildings and will use the new space largely for the housing of everbearing strawberries.

ONE of the most important recent land projects is that of the Gibraltar Investment & Home Building Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., which has bought four tracts, totaling 1,897 acres, adjoining the town of Bloomington. This tract is being cut up into five, ten and twenty-acre orchards and planted to trees grown in the company's nurseries.

"JUDGING from the number of importers who are coming to the Department of Agriculture," says a Washington dispatch, "the plant quarantine law has begun to awaken interest. The board having charge of the enforcement of the law is meeting practically every day and it is said that frequently their deliberations are interfered with by some representative of an importer, presenting before it some individual case. In many instances these protests are carried directly to Secretary Wilson, but in no instance will the department divulge the nature of the interviews."

THIS week's obituary column contains a report of the death of two pioneer California nurserymen: J. F. C. Ludemann, of San Francisco, and Henry Gresens, of Alameda.

THE San Benito Nursery has been incorporated, with its principal place of business at Hollister, Cal. There are ten incorporators and directors. The capital stock of the company is $10,000, consisting of 100 shares at $100 a share. Of this stock $7,500 worth has already been taken by the incorporators in blocks of seven and one-half shares each. The enterprise will be in charge of the Kennedy brothers, who are practical nurserymen with years of experience.

THE NEW ENGLAND QUARANTINE.

A partial quarantine was ordered November 7 against the interstate movement of Christmas trees and other stock in New England by the Horticultural Board in the Department of Agriculture. The quarantine is to take effect November 25. Within particular areas in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island an absolute quarantine is declared on account of the gypsy moth, and out of these areas no one is to be permitted to move coniferous trees, such as spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, juniper and arbor-vitæ (known as Christmas trees), and decorative plants, such as holly and laurel.

When a certificate of inspection by federal authorities is shown, interstate shipments will be permitted from the quarantined areas of forest plant products, including logs, tan bark, posts, poles, railroad ties, cordwood and lumber and field-grown florists' stock, such as trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and other plants, excepting buds, fruit pits, seeds of fruit and ornamental trees and shrubs, field, vegetable and flower seeds, bedding plants and other herbaceous plants and roots.

ticut and Rhode Island, on account of the brown-tail moth, are restricted from sending into interstate commerce deciduous trees or shrubs, including all deciduous field-grown florists' stock, vines, cuttings, grafts and scions, unless inspected by federal inspectors and pronounced free from brown-tail moth.

A set of general regulations to prevail in New England territory was likewise promulgated by the board. These regulations require that every car, box, bale or other container must be plainly marked with addresses and bear proper certificates of inspection. Carload or bulk shipments are forbidden unless accompanied by a certificate which is to be furnished only by the Department of Agriculture, and no shipment will be permitted in interstate trade unless it bears one of these certificates of inspection. Persons desiring to make shipments are required to make application for inspection of the shipments, which inspection and certification will be furnished without payment of fees.

CATALPA BUNGEI.

Will you kindly tell me the trouble with our Catalpa Bungei? They are planted in rows and they seem to do well, but this season something is working on a couple of trees. The leaves turn yellow and dry up. Nothing can be seen outside, no trace of insect of any kind. The other trees in the same row are fine and are not affected. There must be something in the ground that does damage to the roots. What can I do to overcome this disease or insect, which must be destroyed? The trees are about six or seven years of age and have made considerable growth.

N. T.

The cause of the catalpa trees losing their foliage may not be due to any disease or insect attack at all, but rather to some substance in the soil which is not to their liking. Perhaps the soil is poor there and they do not get sufficient plant food. Are there stones or a gravelly substance where loam should be? If this is so, give the plants better soil, and water, if necessary. If worms or grubs are really at-

NEW SCARLET CARNATION The Herald

At the St. Paul Show, November 11, 1912, First in its color, defeating all reds, and sweepstakes for Best New Carnation in the Show.

We ask you to kindly take into consideration the many strong points of this new Scarlet Carnation which we offer for January, 1913, delivery. Three strong, perfect points of The Herald: Large, 3½-inch perfectly formed flowers on long, strong stems. Perfect calyx; never bursts. Free and continuous bloomer, giving a heavy, continuous crop of perfect flowers the entire season. No Waiting until the end of the season to get flowers with long stems, but have plenty of them all the time. The plants are strong and vigorous, free from disease, easy to propagate. Cuttings struck in March make large plants for benching in July. Habit somewhat on the order of Enchantress, more vigorous and productive.

The Herald is one of our own originations. Have grown it the past four years, and have not only convinced ourselves of its sterling worth, but have booked orders the past two years from conservative carnation growers, who have watched the variety and wanted their order placed for early delivery no matter when disseminated.

Stock will be ready January 1, 1913.

PROPAGATION OF BERBERIS.

Please state in The Review how and when to start berberis. O. P. M. C.

Berberis can be propagated in several ways—from seed, green cuttings, mature cuttings, layers and division of the roots. The best method, however, is from seed, which can be sown either as soon as ripe, or stratified over winter in sand and sown in spring. The majority of berberis come true from seed, but if it is desired to propagate from cuttings, take them early in August, either in a close frame or greenhouse.

HYDRANGEA FOLIAGE MILDEWED.

What makes my hydrangeas mildew and what shall I do for them? C. G.

Give the plants the fullest sunshine and keep them cool. Never mind if the temperature goes a little below freezing. Keep the plants comparatively dry at the root and do not spray overhead at all and the mildewing should disappear. You have probably been keeping them too dark and damp.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners will be held at Newark, N. J., November 18 and 19. The business meeting will take place at 81 Orange street at 2 p. m. November 19. Following routine business and election of officers, the meeting will be addressed by the following speakers: Robert Craig, Philadelphia, "A Talk to Gardeners"; Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., "International Flower Show of 1912"; Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus, of the Delaware Agricultural College, Newark, Del., "Problems of Plant Diseases that Confront the Gardener"; Harry A. Bunyard, of New York, lecture presenting seventy stereopticon views of the International show in London.

Following immediately after the meeting, a banquet will be given at the Continental hotel. Patrick O'Mara will preside as toastmaster.

The team bowling tournament will take place Monday evening, November 18, at the Tuxedo Academy alleys, on Halsey street, one block from Broad and Market streets, Newark. The tournament for individual bowlers will take place Tuesday, November 19, at 9 a. m.

SPANISH IRIS OUTDOORS.

Can Spanish iris be grown successfully outdoors here, in the latitude of southern Wisconsin? How late can they be planted? Should they be planted early enough to give them time to make some growth. W. E.

Spanish iris may be safely planted until just before the ground freezes up solid. It is not necessary for them to make any growth before cold weather sets in, although even when they appear above ground before winter the most severe frost does not seem to harm them. They have stood 20 to 25 degrees below zero uninjured. They should be planted on ground which is well drained, or the bulbs are liable to rot. C. W.

Ligonier, Ind.—Otto F. Schrock has installed a Kroeschell boiler at his new greenhouses.

J. D. THOMPSON CARNATION CO.

JOLIET, ILL.

ROGERS, ARK.

The Frank P. Stout Floral Co. is erecting a range of three houses, amounting to about 6,000 square feet of glass. Owing to the late start, no attempt will be made to grow cut flowers this season, with the exception of bulbous stock. The work of building is being rushed and the range will be planted to lettuce as soon as completed. Next season the new concern will grow carnations and make a specialty of the wholesale plant and cuttings business. If business comes up to expectations, the size of the range will be doubled the coming summer.

Mrs. J. A. Fraser, of the Rogers greenhouses, was chosen as judge for the Eureka Springs flower show last week, and her work gave general satisfaction. Mrs. Fraser has two houses of chrysanthemums, and her carnations, which are just coming into crop, are looking especially fine. She is working up a nice business here and expects to increase her area of glass soon.

Cromwell, Conn.—It is reported that Salvatore Barone, formerly employed at the greenhouses of A. N. Pierson, Inc., was arrested recently at Quincy, Mass., on the charge of having assaulted Anton Olsen, the foreman under whom he was working. The accused man had been missing since the assault, which took place last July. Becoming angry over some question about his pay, he had attacked Mr. Olsen, it is said, with an iron bar. Mr. Olsen's skull was fractured and the injury was at first believed to be fatal, but he is now recovering.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Club Meeting.

"Guests of the Ferncliff Floral Co., banquet, Commercial Club, Monday, November 11, 1912." That was the announcement which called together the members of the Florists' Club for its regular monthly meeting.

C. Pearl Bethard and A. S. Finrock did the honors as hosts. A splendid supper was served. After coffee had been quaffed and cigars lighted, the gathering assumed the form of a re-installation of officers, the staff for the past year having been re-elected at the October meeting. President-elect Christian Binning appointed chairmen of standing committees for the ensuing year as follows: Program, Chas. C. Leedle; entertainment, Chas. W. Schmidt; membership, Geo. H. Mellen; grievance, Opha Jackson; publicity, Geo. D. Leedle, Arthur J. Todd and Geo. H. Mellen.

Arthur J. Todd presented a resolution referring to the planting of the yards of all public schools by the members of the club, free of charge. The resolution was carried after a discussion as to the recent awarding of a $694 contract for what the club members consider about a $200 job of landscape planting and shrubbery.

After the business had been disposed of, a general flow of after-dinner oratory was enjoyed, participated in by Leman Bradford, Chas. C. Leedle, Chas. W. Schmidt, B. C. Blake, Arthur C. Leedle, Geo. H. Mellen, Arthur J. Todd, Albert Schaefer, Geo. D. Leedle, C. Pearl Bethard and W. H. Brown. J. B. Malone, as a guest of the club, spoke briefly, eulogizing the mission of flowers and florists in a beautiful manner, which President Binning commented upon as expressing thoughts which he had often felt but had been unable to formulate into language.

As a result of an election wager made between Leman Bradford and Arthur J.

Cyclamen and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine ARE TWO OF OUR SPECIALTIES

We have one house of Cyclamen, 200 feet long, with fine plants in 4-in. and 6-in. pots, well budded, in bloom now and for later blooming, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in. pots, $6.00, $9.00 and $12.00 per doz.

Begonia Lorraine, one house, 1500 plants in fine shape now, but will make specimen stock for Christmas, 6-in. pots, $6.00 and $9.00 per doz.

Primula Obconica, the finest strain; 4-in. pots, $1.20 per doz.; 5-in. pots, $2.00 per doz.

Primula Chinensis, 5-in. pots, $2.00 per doz. In bud and bloom now.

Pot Chrysanthemums, in 6-in. pots Major Bonnaillon and White Ivory, $3.00 per doz.

Dracaena Terminalis, 4-in., fine plants, 35c each.

Latania Borbonica, 3-in. pots, fine for fern dishes, $1.00 doz.

Florists Look! Prosperity! Prosperity! Prosperity!

PREPARE FOR THANKSGIVING AND THE HOLIDAYS

Election is now over, the country is settled, Godfrey Aschmann elected with a big majority. At last prosperity has arrived. Fill and stock up your houses now with the best for the Holidays; turn your pennies into dollars.

WHEN THE VOTE WAS COUNTED.

When they counted the vote there could be no mistake,
Godfrey Aschmann was at head of the poll.
The Bull Moose was nowhere and Debs was a fake,
While Taft was left in a hole.

Not one of lot ever knew how to pot
Up a plant in the way it should grow.
The contest was hot. Who said it was not?
No one else had a ghost of a show.

And they sing, as they go, "Our old friend is not slow,
He's on top of the heap, all his rivals below."

Aschmann showed us his charms, then back to their farms
His competitors scurried in haste,
His Araucarias, Ferns, Azaleas and Palms
Appealed to all who had taste.

Said the Florists all around, "None better are found,
We're for Aschmann down to our last cent."
With volumes of sound to his house they're bound
To stock up with the best, their intent.

Look and see what Mr. Fred J. Michell, of the so well-known firm, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has to say about our plant, Sept. 14, 1912:

"I have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me. I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Ferns of all sizes and varieties and prices, Rubbers, Palms, Azaleas and all other seasonable plants ready for shipment, as are at present at Mr. Godfrey Aschmann's."

"Saskatchewan Greenhouses, E. J. Coster, Prop., Prince Albert, Sask., Can., Oct. 29, 1912. Godfrey Aschmann, Esq., Philadelphia, Pa. Dear sir: Your shipment of $33.60 worth of ferns Oct. 23rd arrived in first-class shape, and I beg to state that I never bought as good ferns at the price in my life, and I have been buying them for over sixteen years. Now I am coming back to you for some more stuff, if you treat me as well as you have done this last time. Yours truly, E. J. COSTER."

ARAUCARIAS

Areca Lutescens, 4-in. pots, 3 plants in a pot, 25c; 5½-in. pots, 3 plants, 30c.

AZALEA INDICA

New importation, unpacked and in first-class condition, full of buds. We have the finest Petrick, the best early pink, full of buds, as round as an apple, a child can bring them into bloom for Christmas, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, double white, Simon Mardner, double pink, Vervaeana, double rose variegated (one of the best old standard varieties), Pharailde Mathilde, white, rose striped, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. For later and for Easter blooming we only imported the well known American varieties, such as Mme. Vander Cruyssen, Paul Weber, Niobe, John Llewellyn, Apollo, DeSchriviana and a few others (the Christmas varieties also can be kept for Easter very easily), 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

HINTS TO AZALEA BUYERS. Our azaleas are invoiced at the Philadelphia custom house, 10x12, 12x14, 14x16, 16x18, 18x20, 20x22. But look, here is the critical point. If we should sell azaleas by measurement, and then ship them to buyers under measurement given to the custom house, most of the parties would not accept them. Azaleas are not grown in a mould, all differ in size under the same measurement. One party expects a big bunch for his money, another is satisfied with a medium size; some parties take their measurements differently from others and measure 12 in. head for 8 or 10 in. A medium size azalea, full of buds, is certainly worth as much as a large unshapely one with only a few buds. Therefore we use our own judgment in selling azaleas; we price them according to their appearance. We do justice to all by giving them good value for their money without giving them the measurements. For example, you send us 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 or more, you shall get the full value for your money. But look, Brother, the importing of azaleas is no more profitable, fully 50 to 60% is paid on their arrival for duty, freight, hauling (packing charges, $2.00 to $2.50 for every 100 azaleas), duty on packing, etc., our free packing here, and our employees want their money on Saturday; therefore the running of our business costs money. So, kindly excuse us if we ask you to send check with the order as we absolutely dare not run any chances with imported goods like azaleas, on which there is so little profit. Only old customers of long standing are excused. The rule applies to both dormant and blooming azaleas.

MISCELLANEOUS PLANTS

Ficus Elastica (rubber plant), Belgian or American stock, 5½, 5½, 6-in. pots, 30c, 40c, 50c; 7-in., 75c.

Aspidistras, 7, 8, 9 to 10 leaves to a plant. Variegated, 6-in. pots, 15c per leaf; green, 6-in. pots, 10c per leaf.

TOLEDO, O.The Market.

Business during the last week has been exceptionally good, with a great deal of funeral work, besides many orders for debutante parties. The cut flowers are excellent in quality, and a great deal of stock is coming, although it has not gone begging for a buyer. Chrysanthemums are exceptionally good and are bringing good prices. Carnations have been scarce, as most of the large growers are off crop. Any of the blooms that reach the market bring good prices and find ready sale. The weather has been unusually warm for this time of the year; in fact, a little too warm for carnations, making them a little soft. Still it is true that business, on the whole, has been excellent, and it has picked up wonderfully since the garden flowers have gone. There was a good demand for flowers for All Saints' day, the weather being quite favorable.

Various Notes.

Mr. Magee, of the Scottwood Greenhouses, has had several large decorations for debutante parties, which have been held in the beautiful ball room of the Secor hotel. One of the largest parties of the season was given November 8, for Miss Backus. In the decorations for this affair, Mr. Magee used large quantities of Bonnaillon chrysanthemums. He reports business good this season, and he has several large weddings booked for this month. His greenhouses are situated in the best residence district of the city and he receives a large percentage of the trade in that locality.

Mr. Kaminski, of Lagrange street, has some fine chrysanthemums this year, for which he finds ready sale. He reports having ten weddings for the first of the week.

Emil Kuhnke has been sending in some excellent pompons and he also has a nice stock of Boston and Whitmani ferns.

The marriage of Miss Mary Helmar and Edward Repp took place at the home of the bride, in West Toledo, November 6. The members of the trade extend their congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. Ziems has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife's mother, who was burned so terribly that she died from the shock. H. F. P.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When In Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

CARNATIONS.

The following entirely unsolicited testimonial came to me with an order under date of Sept. 5, 1912:—"I want to say for the good of the trade and for your benefit, also, that your plants last year were the best I ever handled. I bought 2,200 plants and did not lose one in the whole lot. You may use these few words above as you see fit, if of any benefit to you."—Wm. E. Mosher, New Bedford, Mass.

This man was pleased with his stock and is only one of a great number of satisfied customers. The stock I have left is in cold frames, protected from frost. I guarantee satisfaction at the following low prices; No. 2 stock is bright, thrifty and has been topped carefully, serviceable stock, good as No. 1 in every way but size.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Special attention to long distance orders. Lowest express rates and delivery in good condition guaranteed to any part of the country. Some of many testimonials: "I had 8000 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants last fall. They began to bloom in February, and from then on were a sight; immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 for next fall and possibly more of the same giant mixture." F. H. Peckham, Norwick, Conn. "Pansy plants are strong, sturdy, well rooted; have bought of you for the last four years and never saw such a variety of colors. I used to buy the very best seeds and plants possible, but have never had any to equal yours." C. C. Wonneman, Mexico, Mo. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Cash.

STORM-TIGHT AND RAIN-PROOF IN... 30 SECONDS!

This is the famous "Blizzard" Front in actual use, while a furious storm is raging. With the handy "Blizzard" in place, you can drive in comfort, regardless of snow, rain, wind or cold.

It will keep out every drop of rain and no matter if it is zero weather, the heat of your body will keep the inside of the buggy as comfortable as your "den" at home. No foot-warmers or extra robes necessary. Notice the large window. It is 12x20 inches and made of tough, transparent celluloid, and a side light on each side.

The line pocket is 14 inches wide, and so strongly reinforced with metal that it cannot tear out or sag. Allows you perfect control of the horse.

You can quickly open the "Blizzard" at either side and get in or out with ease.

THE "BLIZZARD" FRONT

equalizes the strain on the buggy top and prevents it from rattling. It is made of Blizzard Cloth and will last as long as the top.

Why risk the dangers of exposure—Rheumatism, Colds, Pneumonia? Why not drive in comfort?

The "Blizzard" Front sells for $3.50. If your dealer cannot supply you, we will ship you one on receipt of price. Your money refunded if not exactly as represented. Write for attractive "Blizzard" booklet today. We send it free.

NATURAL GAS.

The numerous greenhouse men, especially in the southwest and in Ohio and Indiana, who rely on natural gas for fuel, will be interested in a report just issued by the U. S. Geological Survey, which says in part:

"Additional investments have been sufficient to continue the normal increase in quantity of natural gas produced and its total value. Thus, in 1910, the quantity of gas usefully produced in the United States was 509,155,309,000 cubic feet, valued in first hands at $70,756,158. In 1911 the quantity was practically the same, 508,353,241,000 cubic feet, but its value increased to $74,127,534, a gain of 4.76 per cent.

"The increase in demand for natural gas from consumers of all kinds makes the supply of gas a matter of growing seriousness. Beyond question the natural gas that can be furnished in many of the fields of the United States is simply a function of the capital invested in natural gas lines, and especially in power plants for pumping the gas. Unfortunately, the safety of such large investments decreases in proportion as the increased demand becomes indicative of a failing supply. In Ohio and Indiana the yield has decreased so rapidly as to stop the investment of the further capital necessary to stimulate production. It is evident, in those states, that no reasonable amount of investment could adequately offset the decline.

"One important feature of the productive conditions of natural gas during 1911 was the excessive demand for it in Kansas City. This caused the Board of Public Utilities to create a commission headed by Erasmus Harworth, state geologist of Kansas, to investigate the probable duration of

The only way to stop leaks in pipe lines for good is to apply Emergency Pipe Clamps.

STEAM TRAPS

ARE USED BY

Progressive Florists Everywhere

If your lines are sluggish and do not drain well;
if your houses are not of uniform temperature, then you need an installation of the "Morehead System" of Steam Drainage and Boiler Feeding.

Make inquiry of brother florists in your district regarding the saving and general all-round satisfaction resulting from the use of the "Morehead System."

We will send you a trap on trial,

That's the class you want. Attach this simple device to the steam main just inside of your greenhouse and obtain the exact temperature desired by turning the adjusting nut "K" (see illustration) to the "right" for greater heat, to the "left" for less. At whatever pressure the valve is "set," the pressure at all times will be absolutely constant. Sizes $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch to 2-inch have composition bodies; larger sizes, to and including 10-inch, iron body; composition mounted.

As an expert in your line, let us talk it over, as experts in ours. We recommend, we aid you in the selection of the proper size, and should you require higher pressure than 15 lbs., the most suitable type of our other styles of pressure Regulators would be recommended.

the supply of gas to Kansas City. Harworth expresses the view in his report that a supply of natural gas sufficient for the needs of the city is not possible for longer than three or four years. It is assumed that this opinion is based on the productive capacity of the known fields and those which, in his judgment, are likely to be discovered. This agitation of the question of a natural gas supply for domestic consumption and for manufacturing in eastern Kansas makes this region the center of study of the problems of investment in gas production and of the prevention of waste of this fuel."

TO CREATE A PRESSURE.

We have an elevated water tank, about thirty-five or forty feet above the level of the boiler, which is a Kroeschell No. 5. Would it be advisable to connect to this tank through our water system as an expansion tank, or should we use a separate tank? The water in this tank freezes over, but the pipes leading to it are always open. Would putting this much pressure on the boiler be equal to the use of a mercury generator, such as is often put on hot water systems to create a pressure? If we were to use a separate tank, placed inside to avoid freezing, we could place it only a few feet higher than our heating pipes.

C. L. J. & S.

If the pipes leading to the tank are positively frostproof, the tank can be used to good advantage as the expansion tank for the heating system, provided no more than two inches of ice forms in the tank. This would furnish a pressure of probably fifteen pounds on the coils and would make it possible to raise the temperature of the water quite a number of degrees, thus improving the circulation. While the effect would be similar to that secured by using a mercury generator, it would be less marked.

HEATS TOO SLOWLY.

My boiler has a capacity of twelve horse-power and holds three or four barrels of water. Will it heat two houses, one of them 23x75, twelve feet high to the ridge and five feet to the gutters, and the other 11x75, eight feet to the ridge and five feet to the gutters? The gables are glass. The north wall of the large house is boarded. The south wall of the small house contains eighteen inches of glass.

The large house is heated with sixteen $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch pipes, eight on each side. From the boiler dome a 6-inch flow runs two feet inside the house, where it feeds one 3-inch flow along the north side and one 4-inch flow along the east end of the house; then it enters the 11-foot house, returns to the 23-foot house and feeds eight 1½-inch returns. How many runs of 2-inch pipe should be needed to heat the 11-foot house to 40 degrees when the outside temperature is slightly below zero? All of the coils empty into a 3-inch return, and the 3-inch enters a 6-inch that leads to the boiler. Last winter I fed the coils with two 2-inch overhead flows, but I changed these to two 3-inch flows under the benches. The 6-inch, 3-inch and 4-inch flows are all four or five inches above the returns. However, since I made the change the same boiler does not heat the water so hot or so quickly as when there were only two 2-inch flows and two 2-inch returns. Can you tell me what is the reason? My location is western Missouri. B. P. M.

As neither the temperature desired in the large house nor the area of the surface of the grate is stated, a positive answer as to the capacity of the boiler to heat the houses cannot be given. If the desired temperature for the house 23x75 is not higher than 60 degrees, and if the grate has a diameter of twenty-four or twenty-five inches, the heater should answer for the two houses. Nothing is said regarding the height of the boiler as compared with that of the coils, but it is possible that the trouble is caused by the coils being lower than the top of the heater.

To heat the wide house to 60 degrees, three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns should be used. If 1½-inch returns are to be used, fourteen will be needed. For 50 degrees, only eight 2-inch or ten 1½-inch returns will be required. If the returns are not much below the top of the boiler, and if one flow is carried on each plate and the other under the ridge, a good circulation can be secured. For the house 11x75 a temperature of 40 degrees can be obtained by using one 2½-inch flow and either four 2-inch or five 1½-inch returns.

In case the present flow pipes are to be used, it will probably be advisable to place one on each wall of the 23-foot house and to suspend one under the ridge in the other house.

THE COAL MARKET.

While those who are dealing with contracts made earlier in the season may find the situation a little easier, the florist who is doing belated buying still finds himself rather up against it. Cars are a little more plentiful, but not enough so to permit the mines to produce more coal than is needed for shipment on contracts. Extremely small quantities of free coal are coming forward. This is especially true of Pocahontas and the other smokeless coals so popular for greenhouse use. Large concerns, those producing great quantities of these coals and supplying large growers, find themselves so behind on their deliveries that they have practically no coal to offer for immediate shipment. It may take several weeks to catch up. Unfortunately, the method by which coal is mined and handled does not permit accumulation of a large supply at the mines. It can come out of the ground only so fast as cars are placed to receive it, so that production has been curtailed by the car shortage, and still is being held down. Also, as soon as real winter sets in the movement of cars will become slower and there is little prospect of the mines running full capacity at any time this season.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business showed a slight increase last week, accelerated by the influx of chrysanthemums, which almost flooded the local market. Big blooms maintained a price of from 25 to 50 cents each, while smaller ones sold down as low as 50 cents a dozen. Roses were of good quality and quantity, as were carnations. Weddings furnished much work, while funerals, of which there

What We Say:

Wilks Boilers are ideal for the man who owns a small greenhouse, who does his own firing and needs a boiler that can be relied on at all times.

Wilks Boilers are self-feeding. Fill the magazine with fuel in the evening and an even, continuous fire will be maintained until morning without any attention.

Wilks Boilers will heat as much as 3,000 square feet of glass to 65 degrees in zero weather. They are made of the best quality of steel, strongly riveted and calked, with no cast-iron sections to crack.

Our Catalogue is yours for the asking. It tells all about our heaters, shows their economy, and gives a plan for heating a model greenhouse.

Dear Sirs:—I am so well pleased with the self-feeding boiler I bought of you last Fall that I feel it is my duty to tell you so. It is heating 400 ft. of 2-inch pipe O. K. I have had the time, also the zero weather, to give it a good test and it proved all you claim for it. I did not lose a minute's sleep this Winter so far. I fill up the magazine about 9 o'clock in the evening and never look after it till 5 or 6 o'clock next morning and always find the fire in good shape.

TRAVIS GREENHOUSE ROCKER GRATES

Do you understand the advantages Rocker grates have over stationary grates? Practical Rocker grates will open all air spaces at will, giving complete combustion of gases. Cinders and ashes collect soon after fires are started and they should be removed. Just as you can check your fire by closing the damper, so you can check it by allowing the grate openings to become filled with cinders and ashes. Do you know how easy it is to hold steam and what a small amount of coal is required the first hour after cleaning your grates? You can fire all night on our grates and the effect will be nearly the same throughout the night. Practically all new furnaces are now equipped with rocker grates. They have been made for 40 years, but many are using stationary grates because they have tried some make of rocker grate and been disappointed. Our grates make friends and where once used, others follow. Greenhouse operators over the entire country are now using our grates and great numbers have been installed in Illinois, to which state we have given special attention.

The Design of your Rocker Grates is just as important as that of your boiler or any other attachments you may have. Some Rocker Grates are better than others and the difference in service will surprise you. We fit any size or style of furnace without making any changes. Prompt shipments. For prices, give size of furnace.

The Market.

Between weddings, coming-out parties and funeral work, business last week kept pace with the ever-increasing supply of mums, roses, carnations, etc. The daily receipts in most lines have increased considerably with the mild weather which followed the first killing frost, November 1. Everything seems to sell of late. Business for the new season has been fine so far, and we trust will continue so.

Various Notes.

One of the most discussed topics of late has been the St. Paul flower show. N. Zweifel, C. C. Pollworth Co. and Holton & Hunkel Co. exhibited some choice stock there and, from reports, were well rewarded. Holton & Hunkel Co. made a fine rose showing, while the Pollworth Co. came in first on mums. No reports have as yet been received as to the carnations exhibited by N. Zweifel.

Fred Holton went to St. Paul November 8, to remain through the show.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pollworth left St. Paul Sunday night, November 10, to spend the week at Powell, Wis., on their annual hunting trip.

W. Currie, of the Currie Bros. Co., and J. Livingston, gardener at the Vogel estate, attended the flower show at Lake Geneva, Wis., November 8 and 9, and say that it was fine.

At the store of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. a busy week is reported, and in the history of that firm they never experienced better business and collections so near presidential election time.

Mr. Farquhar, president-elect of the S. A. F., spent Thursday, November 7, in our city as guest of Wm. Currie. After visiting places of interest he expressed himself as highly pleased with the Cream City.

Roy Currie attended the football game at Madison, Wis., last week.

Loeffler & Behnke, of Watertown, Wis., are shipping some fine double violets to Holton & Hunkel Co.

Louis Holly, of late with the Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., is the new foreman in charge of the N. Zweifel carnation range.

While a good many growers discarded Victory for Beacon carnations, one would not think the former a has-been at the houses of the Heitman-Oestreich Co. With good, long stems and good substance, Victory is still in the race.

Visitors for the week: Peter Oberlin, Kenosha; J. H. Criddle, Stoughton, and J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia. E. O.

KING GUTTER MADE OF WOOD

"LEST YOU FORGET,"

we want you to know that we make a wood gutter, and a good one, too. It combines all the good points of other wood gutters,

"AND THEN SOME"

NOTE that the condensation and drip run down the sides and sloping bottom to a drip pan placed under the gutter, where it makes no shade

We know it will do that, for we have tried it. This gutter lends itself to an outside wall as an eave most admirably

Double-Glass Double Profits

The old single layer hot-bed sash are better than none, but they must be covered, and boards, mats or shutters are pure waste. The new Sunlight Double Glass Sash with two layers of glass enclosing an air space, are Complete in Themselves.

They eliminate covers and half the labor; they admit all the light to store warmth in the bed and then save the warmth at night. They make plants strong and early. They double net profits. Every practical gardener or florist will see the value of this.

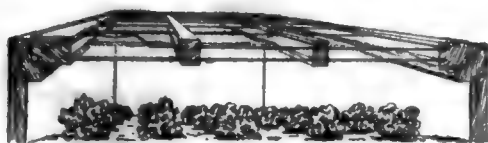

It is good business for you to get our free catalogue.

Write your address plainly and send it today. The hot-bed season is not far off. Prof.

All of our Tree Tubs are made of Selected, Everlasting Virginia White Cedar. There is nothing better for the purpose. We put QUALITY in our goods. Tubs are nicely painted, inside and out, with best oil paints and are trimmed with heavy steel hoops on some styles, and with galvanized electric welded wire hoops on the others. Our tubs are handsome and add much to the appearance of the plant, thereby helping the sale of the plants they contain. We invite correspondence, and are ready to serve you with the very best goods at the lowest prices.

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

THE AUTUMN FLOWER SHOWS

CLEVELAND.

As things have turned out, the flower show at Cleveland November 14 to 17 was probably the most successful of the year. It was given under the auspices of the Ohio Horticultural Society, a body of flower lovers, with the assistance of the Cleveland florists. It was the first show at Cleveland in sixteen years. While much effort had been expended on the arrangements, the results exceeded expectations. The show brought out a larger quantity of material than had been expected, all of excellent quality, and the attendance was so large that, instead of closing Saturday night, as had been intended, the show was opened Sunday afternoon for four hours, and there was a total attendance of 38,000.

The chrysanthemums were staged on the opening day, November 14, with the second day given specially to carnations, and the third day to roses. The chrysanthemums were excellent, representing the best stock of the leading growers of the middle west and some of the extreme east. C. H. Totty brought, among his numerous exhibits, six blooms of Queen Mary, a large reflexed white, these same six blooms having been exhibited in London, England, October 29, by W. Wells & Co., who afterward shipped them to Mr. Totty. They arrived in New York in excellent condition, and, being brought to Cleveland, stood the four days on exhibition, showing only a little bruising around the edge of the flowers. Both in carnations and roses the competition was extremely keen and the prizes were well distributed.

As has been noted at other exhibitions given by the trade, no matter how much attention was attracted by the growers' exhibits, the retailers' displays proved the center of attraction. It all goes to show that fine flowers are many times more attractive to the public when finely arranged. The Cleveland retail florists appreciated their opportunity to interest the public, and those of the trade visitors who have attended many shows agreed that they never have seen a retail section that beat what was to be seen at Cleveland, either in the number or quality of the exhibits. In the class for tables of chrysanthemums there were six entries. In the class for brides' bouquets there were eight entries. In the class for corsage bouquets there were ten entries, and seven handle baskets were shown. Knoble Bros., J. M. Gasser Co., Jones-Russell Co. and Smith & Fetters Co. each had display booths in which to demonstrate their ideas of the artistic arrangement of flowers. There were no premiums to be awarded to these booths, and it is well that there were not, for it would have been a difficult matter to have decided between them. Each booth was maintained with fresh stock from day to day.

Roses.

The roses were staged on the final day, but really constituted the most notable showing of the exhibition. The quality was splendid; there was not one entry which was not worth a prize, and there were fifty-eight vases for the judges to consider. The sweepstakes in the classes for twenty-five blooms went to Double Pink Killarney, a really notable bunch of blooms on 4-foot stems. Totty's Mrs. Shawyer took the sweepstakes in the classes for fifty blooms, and the exhibit was fine. The showing of new roses included three. Mrs. Charles Russell carried off the premier honors, but the vases of Milady and Mrs. Shawyer shown by Pierson and Totty also were of much interest to the growers. The awards in the rose classes were:

Twenty-five Beauty—Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first.

Twenty-five Double Pink Killarney—J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Twenty-five Double White Killarney—J. M. Gasser Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Seedling roses, best twenty-five blooms not in commerce—Alex. Montgomery, Waban, Mass., the Bowler & Burdick cup, on Mrs. Chas. Russell. Mrs. Geo. Shawyer and Milady also were shown.

Carnations.

An autumn exhibition seldom sees a better showing of carnations. The stock came from the best growers in the country, all the way from Long Island to Chicago. There was such keen competition that the prizes were divided Sweepstakes, best seedlings entered in seedling classes—C. Hagenburger Co., the Advance cup, on unnamed red seedling.

Retailers' Work.

The retailers took the keenest interest in the classes for table decorations, baskets and bouquets. The first day the tables were to be decorated with chrysanthemums and there were six entries, Knoble Bros. securing first with the use of yellow pompon chrysanthemums, the centerpiece being made in the shape of a tree four feet high, with a base three feet wide, rising to a point ten inches high where it joined the trunk of the tree. The decoration was entirely in yellow. The other exhibitors were the J. M. Gasser Co., A. Graham & Son, Smith & Feters Co., Jones-Russell Co. and C. M. Wagner. On the day roses were used the table decorations were by C. M. Wagner, E. G. Wilson, Jones-Russell Co., J. M. Gasser Co., Knoble Bros., F. W. Griffin and Smith & Feters Co. On bride's bouquet there were eight entries, ten in the class for corsages, and seven on handle baskets. The awards in this section were as follows:

Chrysanthemum table decoration—Knoble Bros., first; J. M. Gasser Co., second.

TORONTO.

The Ontario Horticultural Exhibition was held last week in the Horticultural building at Exhibition park and proved the most successful affair of its kind that has ever taken place in Canada.

The directors have been handicapped during previous years through not being able to secure a convenient building for the show, but the civic authorities came to their assistance this year and affairs have been placed on a new basis; in fact, if prognostications prove correct, next year's show will help largely to make up for what little setbacks have occurred at other times, and bring about such results as have long been hoped for by the energetic management.

The opening days of the show were handicapped somewhat by disagreeable weather; Thursday and Friday, however, brought out society people in larger numbers than ever before. This was probably due to the newspaper advertising, which was a great improvement on previous years; also to the magnificent quality of the stock exhibited.

Sir Henry Pellatt has done more than any other flower lover in Toronto to give admirers their money's worth in grouped effects, and on this occasion his grower, T. McVettie, again took first prize for the most attractive display in the exhibition.

A fine new refrigerating plant had been installed in the building, and proved the best thing possible for the designs and orchids, roses, etc., that showed to special advantage on this occasion. It goes without saying that this piece of furniture proved an indispensable adjunct, and no flower show will be complete without it.

A striking feature of the show of chrysanthemums was a new single white called Dorothy Duggan, originated and shown by the Dale Estate, Brampton, for which they won first prize in this class. The biggest bloom in the show was a Wm. Turner, twenty-two and one-half inches in circumference, shown by Richard Jennings, also of Brampton. Sir Henry Pellatt took first prize for the vase of twelve mums, any variety or varieties, with R. Jennings taking first prize for yellow, and the Dale Estate carried off all the first prizes for the remaining entries in the mum section.

The awards for carnations were:

Twelve any color—Sir. H. M. Pellatt, first; Dale Estate, second; R. Jennings, third.
 Twenty-five white—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Miller & Sons, third.
 Twenty-five red—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Miller & Sons, third.
 Twenty-five light pink—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second; Miller & Sons, third.
 Twenty-five pink, darker than Winsor—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second; Miller & Sons, third.
 Twenty-five crimson—R. Jennings, first; Berlin Floral Co., second; Dale Estate, third.
 Fifty, one variety—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Miller & Sons, third.
 Fifty, any variety—Dale Estate, first; R. Jennings, second; Miller & Sons, third.
 One hundred blooms, any variety—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Miller & Sons, third; Berlin Floral Co., fourth.

Three vases, fifty in vase—R. Jennings, first; Dale Estate, second; Miller & Sons, third.

The awards on roses were:

Yellow—Dale Estate, first; North Toronto Floral Co., second; Miller & Sons, third.
 White—Miller & Sons, first; Dale Estate, second; North Toronto Floral Co., third; Bedford Park Floral Co., fourth.
 Dark pink—Bedford Park Floral Co., first; Dale Estate, second.
 Twelve American Beauties—Dale Estate, first; G. D. Manton, second.
 Twenty-five Beauties—Dale Estate, first; Bedford Park Floral Co., second; G. D. Manton, third.
 Vase of fifty—Dale Estate, first; Miller & Sons, second; Bedford Park Floral Co., third.
 New introduction—Dale Estate, with Lady Hillington, first; Bedford Park Floral Co., with Edward Mauley, second.
 Red—Dale Estate, first; Bedford Park Floral Co., second.
 Pink—Miller & Sons, first; Dale Estate, second; North Toronto Floral Co., third.

The awards on miscellaneous cut flowers and design work were:

Lily of the valley—Dale Estate, first; Miller & Sons, second.
 Violet—W. E. Calvert, first; Dale Estate, second; J. J. Milligan, third.
 Bride's bouquet—Charles E. Lewis, first; Berlin Floral Co., second; T. Manton, third.
 Funeral design—A. S. Jennings & Son, first; Berlin Floral Co., second; T. Manton, third; Charles E. Lewis, fourth.
 Basket of mums—Charles E. Lewis, first; T. Manton, second; G. D. Manton, third.
 Centerpiece of mums for table—Charles E. Lewis, first; T. Manton, second; G. D. Manton, third.

The judges were E. Mepsted, of Ottawa, and George Robinson, of Montreal.

Among exhibits not for competition was a fine vase of Milady rose, from A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., described as intermediate between American Beauty and Richmond. It was given a certificate of merit. W. G. P.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The flower show at the Armory, November 15 to 17, under the auspices of the Fruit and Flower Mission, was the most successful ever participated in by the trade in Portland. The awards on cut chrysanthemums were:

Twenty-five yellow—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.
 Twenty-five white—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second; City Park, third, and honorable mention.
 Twenty-five pink—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Tonseth Floral Co., second.
 Twenty-five red—Martin & Forbes Co., first.
 Any other color—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Rahn & Herbert, second.
 Twelve yellow—Niklas & Son, first; Clarke Bros., second.
 Twelve white—Niklas & Son, first; Rahn & Herbert, second.
 Twelve pink—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Niklas & Son, second.
 Twelve red—Clarke Bros., first.
 Collection of thirty-six, twelve vases—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.
 Collection of seventy-five, twenty-five vases—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.
 Best collection—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.
 Best specimen plant—Gustave J. Burkhardt, first; Rahn & Herbert, second.
 Best display plants in pots—Clarke Bros., first; Gustave J. Burkhardt, second.
 Best specimen grafted plant—Swiss Floral Co., first.

The awards on cut carnations were:

One hundred white—Clarke Bros., first.
 One hundred light pink—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.
 One hundred rose pink—Fred Weideman, first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.
 One hundred dark pink—Martin & Forbes Co., first.
 One hundred red—Martin & Forbes Co., first on new J. N. Teal; Fred Weideman, second.
 Fifty white—Vankirk Floral Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.
 Fifty light pink—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Vankirk Floral Co., second.
 Fifty rose pink—Fred Weideman, first; Vankirk Floral Co., second.
 Fifty dark pink—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.
 Fifty crimson—Fred Weideman, one-half first prize, on twenty-five.
 Fifty red—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Vankirk Floral Co., second.
 Fifty variegated—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.
 Display arranged for effect—Clarke Bros., first.

The awards on cut roses were:

Fifty American Beauty—Martin & Forbes Co., first.
 Fifty white—Martin & Forbes Co., first; W. S. Sibson, second.

Fifty pink—Martin & Forbes Co., first; W. S. Sibson, second.

Fifty yellow—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.

Fifty red—Martin & Forbes Co., first; W. S. Sibson, second.

Display for effect—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.

The awards on floral arrangements were:

One hundred chrysanthemums in basket—Tonseth Floral Co., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second; Clarke Bros., third.

Three hundred carnations in basket—Clarke Bros., first.

One hundred roses in basket—Tonseth Floral Co., first.

Bride's bouquet of roses—Max M. Smith, first; S. G. Lubliner, second.

Bride's bouquet of lily of the valley—Tonseth Floral Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.

Corsage bouquet—Tonseth Floral Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.

Table decoration—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Clarke Bros., second; Niklas & Son, third.

The awards on miscellaneous cut flower and plant exhibits were:

Double violets—A. Byron, first.

Single violets—Niklas & Son, first; Guisipee Caspagoll, second.

One hundred lily of the valley—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.

Display of orchids—Clarke Bros., first; Martin & Forbes Co., second.

Twelve Lorraine begonias—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Rahn & Herbert, second.

Twenty-five cyclamen plants—Max M. Smith, first; Clarke Bros., second.

Group of palms and foliage plants—Clarke Bros., first; Rahn & Herbert, second.

Collection ferns—R. L. Scott, first.

General display cut flowers and plants—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Tonseth Floral Co., second; Max M. Smith, third.

Boston fern—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Rahn & Herbert, second.

Basket Sprengerii—Mountain View Floral Co., first; R. L. Scott, second.

Specimen Whitman fern—Martin & Forbes Co., first; Rahn & Herbert, second.

Specimen pandanus—Tonseth Floral Co., first; Clarke Bros., second.

Specimen cibotium—Martin & Forbes Co., first.

Collection hardy perennials—Zimmerman Bros., blue ribbon and honorable mention.

Nursery stock—J. B. Pilkington, first; Julius Dossche, second.

Display dormant bulbs and seeds—Portland Seed Co., first; Routledge Seed & Flower Co., second.

Landscape drawings—H. E. Weed, first; Julius Dossche, second; Thomas Hawks, honorable mention.

Winter blooming pansy—P. Riegelmen, blue ribbon, honorable mention.

Portland grown sweet pea seed—Captain Pope, blue ribbon and honorable mention.

BUFFALO.

The Buffalo flower show, reported in last week's issue of The Review, has passed into history. It was a success and a failure—a success from an artistic point of view, a failure from a financial one. It was acknowledged by all who saw the splendid exhibition of the florists' skill, and the artistically laid out Italian garden plan of the designer, George W. McClure, that the show deserved a better financial fate. But the florists' task of educating the public to a higher appreciation of their art is not completed yet.

The Buffalo parks responded finely to the call of the local club for exhibits. Beautiful groups of chrysanthemums and foliage plants, artistically arranged to harmonize with the general plan, were exhibited by Delaware park, Humboldt park and South park. Indeed, it is safe to say that without the coöperation of the park department the show would not have been the success it was. And this ought to be a pointer for other cities.

Among the private exhibitors the display of J. J. Albright stood unrivaled. His head gardener, Chas. Sandiford, excelled himself this year. His blooms of Wm. Turner, Wells' Late Pink, Broomhead, Yellow Eaton and Mary Donnellan could not be beaten.

The display of W. J. Palmer & Son formed a perfect bower of beauty.

Their vases of Chrysanthemum Merry Jane, Wells' Late Pink, Mrs. Syme and Papworth were marvels even to the professional florist; and, one word more, Col. D. Appleton can not be beaten yet, so long as it can be grown as well as Palmer & Son grow it. Their table decorations were more than decorations; they were pictures. Among their roses, a large vase of American Beauty proves that this fine old rose still occupies the topmost niche. Lady Hillingdon, Irish Fire Flame, Safrano, Bon Silene, and the new competitor for American Beauty's place, Milady, were up to the same standard of excellence.

S. A. Anderson's display was greatly admired, and his showing of Gloire de Lorraine begonia, of which he makes a specialty, was the finest in the hall.

The Wm. F. Kasting Co. had a grand display of cut flowers, chrysanthemums and roses. Among them a vase of the new rose, Mrs. George Shawyer, attracted general attention. It seems a glorified Bridesmaid. Their Killarney, in several varieties, were the finished products of skillful growers.

W. C. Stroh had a large bank of foliage and flowering plants, tastefully arranged and demonstrating the artistic value of autumn foliage plus a good decorator. The Wm. Scott Co. also showed the public what fine effects can be produced by autumn foliage, electric light and a skillful artist to combine them. L. H. Neubeck had an attractive group of foliage and flowering plants and a large vase of fine Maud Dean chrysanthemums.

The show was a revelation of beauty and taste to thousands and was creditable to the skill and energy of the Buffalo Florists' Club.

CARNATION PRINCESS DAGMAR.

Princess Dagmar is the crimson carnation which secured for its originators, M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., the silver medal of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at the Boston show, November 7 to 10. Patten & Co. describe the variety as follows: "It is a cross between Genevieve, a large white seedling, and an unnamed crimson seedling. The color is a fine deep crimson—not too dark. Flowers large, averaging three and one-half to four inches, borne on strong, stiff stems, which hold the bloom perfectly erect at all times. The calyx seldom splits. Plants are perfectly healthy in every respect, a strong grower and propagates easily. An average bloomer and one that attracts instant attention."

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

The comment in The Review of November 14, regarding civil service examinations, I feel will be misconstrued and may do harm. You say, "Simply because a man may be an excellent craftsman without being much with the pen, and because equally good jobs are to be had with less effort."

Sincere efforts are being made to put the examinations on an absolutely fair basis, that is, fair to the applicant and fair to the employer. The idea should not go out that these examinations require the ordinary craftsman to be "much with the pen." The basis of credit marks is generally divided into three portions. First, strong credit is given for previous experience. Second, credits are based on an oral examination which is made to cover such points as may be properly handled in that way. The third part of the examination is a written one. In examinations for ordinary employees, the papers are marked, not on the basis of their literary merit, but simply as to whether they show whether the man knows what he is talking about or not. Even in the most badly spelled and poorly expressed papers, it is easily possible to read somewhat between the lines and to form an opinion as to whether the man really knows or not. In all examinations an endeavor is made to honestly and fairly ascertain the man's fitness and to mark him proportionately.

Of course when it comes to an examination for head gardener, the requirements are different. It will be admitted by anyone, the writer thinks, that in a position of that kind the applicant should be able to write intelligently and certainly should be able to properly spell the names of ordinary plants which he will have to handle and to label. In the head gardener examination, considerable weight is therefore properly given to the composition and especially to the spelling of the written report. Having taken part last year in the examinations for the Chicago West Parks, and being much interested in the modern movement for better civil service, the writer was led to look into the matter somewhat carefully. In those examinations, at least, the positions are not difficult to get for those apparently competent to fill them. The writer believes that a thoroughly honest effort is being made by Mr. Heuchling, of the West Parks, to make his examinations efficient and fair with a sole view to selecting the most competent men for the positions. No attempt whatever is made to influence the markings in individual cases, and the final marks of the applicants were given them just as I should place them were they applying for positions in my employ.

The steady demand of the public for better things in our civil service is producing a class of men like Mr. Heuchling, who are specializing on that particular work, and using every effort to make themselves thorough and efficient. The movement is a good one and should be supported by every public-spirited person. In the old regime, as we all know, employees were largely political favorites and a position in a public park was anything but a desirable one for the good man. We are approaching better things. The civil service job today, as demonstrated in the West Parks, is a good job. The employee has shorter working hours and much better working conditions (I speak now of the average greenhouse employee) than he does in a commercial place, and the pay will probably average better for the same class of work.

We should not belittle these efforts which are being made to better conditions; but, on the other hand, where we see a man honestly endeavoring to obtain good service for the public and to put public employees in a position where they cannot be disturbed by petty politics, both the horticultural press and the members of the trade should do all in their power to help the good work along.

ROSE IRISH FIRE FLAME.

A few years ago it was noticed in London that people of taste showed a marked preference for single roses. Whenever obtainable they were used in their table decorations, in their house decorations and as gifts. To meet this demand, the leading hybridizers abroad devoted thought and skill to the production of a class of single roses that would combine grace, color and durability in the blooms. Vigor, freedom of bloom and immunity from disease were less difficult of attainment from the very nature of the class.

Irish Fire Flame is the most striking variety of this class. It won the gold medal at the national rose show at London, but its introduction into this country is due to a visit of Alexander B. Scott to the rose growing establishment of Alexander Dickson & Sons, at Newtownards, near Belfast, Ireland, in the summer of 1910. In their trial grounds Mr. Scott first saw Irish Fire Flame. The rose charmed him. It had the growing qualities and its color was unique. The long, pointed buds were bright scarlet. The open flower was a coppery salmon. The keeping qualities of Irish Fire Flame are remarkable for a single rose with only five petals, due partly to the great substance of those petals. Possessed with the idea that such a rose would appeal to those of his friends who had true artistic discernment, Mr. Scott imported fifty plants of Irish Fire Flame. Today he has 3,000 plants. The house in which they are growing, on his place at Sharon Hill, Pa., is a beautiful sight. The plants are a picture of health, producing their attractive buds in profusion. The buds of Irish Fire Flame are in demand among the leading florists. Mr. Scott's representative, the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., is said to obtain $10 a hundred for this novelty in a market that is much lower on almost all other varieties. It is said Irish Fire Flame will be disseminated next spring. MCGREDY'S NEW ROSES.

At the September exhibition of the National Rose Society, London, England, the new variety, Mrs. Charles E. Pearson, received the gold medal. The exhibit is shown in the accompanying illustration. Mrs. Charles E. Pearson is a hybrid tea raised by Samuel McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland, who believe it is one of the best things they thus far have produced. They state that it had been constantly in bloom since June. They had only one line of it in the nursery this season and worked quite 5,000 stock from it, besides cutting blooms for all the principal exhibitions. So sanguine are they that they believe the variety will be the most popular bedding rose in existence when it becomes known. The color is a deep orange apricot, flamed crimson. The originators assert that it is a great improvement on the celebrated Lyon rose, surpassing it in effectiveness, as the color never varies. The bloom is held rigidly upright and is produced with a freedom rarely equaled among hybrid teas. The originators say it is twice as free flowering as the Lyon and that it holds its foliage as in a true hybrid tea.

Concluding their letter to The Review, McGredy & Son say: "You will no doubt get a good turn of our new rose Colleen, on which the E. G. Hill Co. has secured the American rights. This is a great improvement on Killarney, being a better grower, freer blooming and twice as double, with a greater depth of petal, brighter and more beautiful in color. There is no other rose in cultivation that has the grandeur of form that this rose has. The impressiveness of the flower, even in old blooms, is marvelous. It never goes off color, and retains its lovely shape and form in good condition longer than any variety we are acquainted with. It makes strong canes and holds its blooms rigidly upright. The E. G. Hill Co. gave it a semi-test last year and Mr. Hill was so impressed with its value as a forcing rose that he is giving it full test this year, and believes it will supersede every other variety in your country for forcing purposes, and as a bread and butter winner will take the lead as a market variety. You will no doubt get a good turn in this rose, once it is in shape for issuing." From which it will be seen that these, like other seedling raisers, have the modesty of the violet.

THE LEADING ROSARIAN.

Alexander B. Scott takes issue with his friend, E. Gurney Hill, on the statement that the name of Pernet-Ducher is entitled to first place in the list of producers of new roses of merit. While Mr. Scott frankly admits the force of all that Mr. Hill says in favor of the great French hybridizer, he is confident in the belief that the name of Dickson ranks that of his rival from sunny France. The facts that Mr. Scott gives in support of his claim for the supremacy of the Irish rosarian are formidable: Alexander Dickson & Sons, of Newtownards, Ireland, originated the great rose Killarney. What florist in this country does not owe them an immense debt of gratitude for this single achievement? They produced Liberty, a grand rose that enabled Mr. Hill to give us his superb Richmond, the rose that was selected to be presented to the President of the United States by the American Rose Society in Washington, D. C., March 14, 1907. They have produced Harry Kirk, considered one of the best outdoor varieties of the day, and many, many more. This year they won the championship and the 100 guinea challenge cup at the national show held in London; July 9, not to mention many gold medals and some fifty first prizes. They received the highest award for the finest exhibit of autumn roses ever made in London, at the fall show held September 24. Can Mr. Hill's enthusiasm over the great new rose Sunburst outweigh these solid facts, or has he varieties of equal merit and honors of equal brilliancy to pit against them?

THE OLD-FASHIONED BOUQUET.

It is the new fashions in old-fashioned bouquets that occasion their present popularity. The accompanying illustration shows one of these arrangements by the London Flower Shop, Philadelphia. It is called an old-fashioned bouquet, but not even the flowers used are old-fashioned, for the most popular flowers for this purpose are the buds of the newer varieties of roses. Mrs. Aaron Ward is a prime favorite. Also, the lace holders are the latest development of the supply dealers' art. The addition of the ribbon adds still further to the newness of the old-fashioned bouquet.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners was held at Newark, N. J., November 18 and 19. The following officers were elected:

President—W. H. Waite, Yonkers, N. Y.

Vice-president—A. J. Smith, Lake Geneva, Wis.

Secretary—M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.

Treasurer—James Stuart, Mamaronck, N. Y.

Trustees—Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; Peter Duff, Orange, N. J., and Alex. Mackenzie, Glen Cove, N. Y.

An invitation to meet in San Francisco in 1915 was accepted.

Following routine business and election of officers, the meeting was addressed by the following speakers: Robert Craig, Philadelphia, "A Talk to Gardeners;" Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., "International Flower Show of 1912;" Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus, of the Delaware Agricultural College, Newark, Del., "Problems of Plant Diseases that Confront the Gardener;" Harry A. Bunyard, of New York, lecture presenting seventy stereopticon views of the International show in London.

In the evening there was a banquet at the Continental hotel, at which about 140 sat down. Patrick O'Mara acted as toastmaster, and found time for more than twenty speakers, all of whom confined themselves to brief remarks.

Certificates were given for the following exhibits: Salmon Beauty, Wm. Eccles, Commodore, Northport and Hughes' seedling carnations; Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Sawyer, Lady Stanley and Milady roses; Meehan's hardy plants, Pfaff's solanum, Dreer's Gloriosa and Vinca aurea.

Special mention was made of Manda's display of ferns and foliage plants, A. N. Pierson's new chrysanthemums and C. H. Totty's Sunburst roses.

In the annual team bowling tournament, November 18, Philadelphia defeated New York, Elberon, Orange, Westchester and Madison. The individual contest in the morning of No-

ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Striking the Market Right.

The orchid houses now have a goodly display of flowers. It is perhaps regrettable, in some respects, that so many varieties are in season thus early. While chrysanthemums are so abundant, the demand is not so robust as could be wished, although for the fall exhibitions they certainly prove useful. In the particular case of Cattleya labiata, it pays growers well to have them early and late, but midseason ones are rather druggy when nearly every grower is sending them in. From Thanksgiving until the middle of January cattleyas are none too abundant and the grower who can strike the market right will be pretty sure to get good prices. Cattleya labiata can easily be held back, but it is too late to start to do it now. The house must be run moderately cool. As low as 50 to 55 degrees at night in September and October is better than 60 degrees, but do not keep the night temperature too low while the buds are pushing up in the sheaths or while they are expanding, or they are liable to become stunted and will not open at all.

Shading.

There is now no need of any shade whatever on cattleyas, except it may be where plants are in flower. The latter should be kept together and a trifle cooler than the rest of the plants, in order to keep them in good condition as long as possible. Cypripediums should not be fully exposed to the sun, or the foliage, while it may not burn, will take on a yellowish hue. Phalaenopsis is one orchid which always needs some shade; even the winter sun should not be allowed to strike the leaves. The leaves, while apparently tough, are really easily scorched, and if once they become disfigured the real beauty of the plants is gone. Celogynes, odontoglossums, miltonias, dendrobies and other orchids will stand all the sun we shall have for the next two or three months and be benefited thereby.

Watering.

While we have had clear skies this fall, we are liable to have long, dark, rainy spells at any time now, and this is when careful watering counts. It is also a great advantage during such periods to have clear glass over the plants. With shading on, the foliage may keep a darker color, but the plants are softer, and in the case of cattleyas and laelias will not flower as well as when grown in stronger light.

Watering should be done fairly early in the morning, so that the moisture dropped on foliage and benches will dry up before nightfall. Syringing overhead should be gradually discontinued. When done at all, let it be on the mornings of clear days. Do not play the hose directly on the plants, as this makes too heavy a stream. Always use a fine, misty spray. A decreased water supply all around will be necessary now. It is always safe to underwater rather than overwater. Probably you have noticed that plants allowed to become quite dry keep their roots sound, whereas those more heavily soaked rot badly. Feeding should be discontinued except where the Cookson formula salts are used. These can safely be applied the year around, except when the plants are nearly dormant. They seem to provide just a little something which the plants need and they work well on plants which will simply not tolerate any form of liquid animal manure, even in mild doses.

Ventilating.

Cattleyas and laelias, above all the orchids, enjoy plenty of fresh air. There are really but few days in the year when neither top nor bottom ventilators can be opened. In the case of strong winds, enough will get between the laps of glass to satisfy them, but on all calm nights they should have one or both ventilators open. If they are kept closed down tightly and the air is heavily charged with humidity to counteract the drying influence of fire heat, the result will be that the plants, instead of sending their roots down into the compost of the various receptacles, will send them over the sides, and plants in this condition, while they may receive the encomiums of those who know little of their culture, will soon present a half shriveled appearance and will flower disappointingly.

While cattleyas love air, it is rather otherwise with the East Indian family of cypripediums, phalaenopsis, vandas, saccolabiums, angraecums and others. These plants do not want actual coddling and need some fresh air daily, but the bulk of them are most at home in rather small, stuffy houses, where no current of air is ever felt and where a close, humid atmosphere is maintained. Then, again, the really cool orchids, like odontoglossums, masdevallias, some oncidiums, restrepias and others, like plenty of air at all seasons.

This question of ventilation is not half considered. It is the rock on which many would-be orchid growers perish. Too many still persist in keeping orchids too hot and stuffy. Outside of the purely East Indian, tropical kinds, all like air in abundance.

BLIGHTED CYPRIPEDIUM BUDS.

I write for information concerning my failure to produce good blooms on Cypripedium insigne. Two years is the limit of my experience with them. I keep them in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. They are good-sized plants in 7-inch pots. The foliage is a dark green, healthy color. They throw out the buds, but when they get to a certain stage—say when the stems are three or four inches long—the stems get limp or soft and the buds turn brown or blight and die. I have been able to carry along a few plants with blooms, but these are inferior. A friend suggested that the atmosphere might be at fault, but I ventilate freely. The plants are within two feet of the glass and right under the ventilation. It was also suggested that too much moisture, from giving them more water than is necessary, might be the cause. Any information on this subject would be greatly appreciated, as I have had this trouble two years in succession. The plants are potted in half peat fiber and half rotted sod. I have not fed them with any fertilizer. C. D. H.

Your temperature seems to be all right, and if the plants are within two feet of the glass they are in an ideal location. Cypripediums like a genial, moist atmosphere, while some other orchids, such as cattleyas, need a drier and airier one. The plants should not stand where they will get any direct current of air from the ventilators. I think the most likely cause of the spikes going off is too much water at the roots. Though cypripediums are terrestrial orchids and never have a resting period, yet they are more injured by an oversupply of water than the reverse. If you water your plants twice a week, it should suffice at this season. If they are much matted with roots or are in compost which is sour and soggy, they should be pulled to pieces and repotted when the flowering season is over. Use a compost of fibrous loam with the fine particles shaken out, some lumpy charcoal, a little old, well-dried cow manure and some sharp sand. Keep quite close and shaded from the direct sun after pottings, and water quite sparingly until root action is active. C. W.

BASSETT & WASHBURN'S PLANT.

Interest attaches to the new establishment of Bassett & Washburn, at Gregg's Station, Ill., for a number of reasons. While Bassett & Washburn have been building up one of the largest greenhouse establishments in the west, the town of Hinsdale has been growing just as rapidly, and now the older range of greenhouses is completely surrounded by handsome dwellings, the owners of which do not especially enjoy the greenhouses as neighbors. The disadvantages of the old location have resulted in the new plant at Gregg's Station. Here there is abundant room, with plenty of cheap land, comparatively speaking, and side-track facilities which it is estimated will save in cartage a sum equivalent to the investment necessary to effect the eventual removal of the older plant.

When the new location was secured it already was late in the season, and a record was made in the erection of the five houses shown in the accompanying illustration. These houses each are 34x599, the material having been supplied by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, and the erecting done by William Mailander, of Morton Grove. At the time of the S. A. F. convention in Chicago only one of the houses had been erected. Now carnations are being cut in all of them. The type of construction is what is known as the steel flat rafter house, with steel gutters. The sashbars are only $1\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{3}{4}$, and carry comparatively little of the strain, the strength of the house being in the steel frame. In these houses, thirty-four feet wide, there are only two lines of purlin supports.

One of the interesting features is the boiler house with its tall stack of reinforced concrete. The building of this stack was one of the big tasks of putting up the range in record time. The work was done by the Fehr Construction Co., Chicago, who used on the job nearly 250 barrels of Universal Portland cement.

Bassett & Washburn last week began work on an addition to this range, to consist of twelve houses, each 28x225 feet.

A START IN GLADIOLI.

I made an attempt to grow a few gladioli between rows of carnations last year and it was a failure. I have some spare room and should like to try it again, and shall be obliged if you will tell me what treatment they require, stating the temperature and the length of time required for them to bloom. J. L. S.

It does not pay to attempt the culture of gladioli among carnations. One crop only spoils the other. They are all right where plants have died out, however, as a catch crop. Bulbs of the large flowering varieties, such as May, Augusta, Shakespeare, America and Mrs. Francis King, can be planted as soon as received. Do not use any fresh manure in the compost for them. They like a good soil, such as will grow good roses or carnations, and a night temperature of 50 degrees. They will do well in a lower temperature, but should not have over 52 degrees at night in winter.

The planting made early in December will flower during the first half of April. Some may be later. You can plant a succession batch in January to follow these, and for Memorial day trade the end of February is sufficiently early to plant. Cover the corms three inches.

The small bulbed gladioli of the Colvillei and nanus types, such as Colvillei The Bride, Peach Blossom, Blushing Bride and others, arrive here about October 1. Planted at that time, they do not bloom before the latter part of March. While they can be planted in benches, they do equally well in flats containing four or five inches of soil, and the latter is the more economical way to handle them.

C. W.

CALLA LEAVES SPOTTED.

Will you please tell me why my calla leaves get brown and white spots on them and what to do for them?

C. G.

Probably some defective squares of glass have caused the spots on the leaves. Try to locate these and either remove them or give them a light coating of shading to prevent further burning.

C. W.

BULBS ROOTING POORLY.

I have my bulbs all potted and they seem to grow above ground without making much root growth. They are stored in a cool cellar, which is quite close and which is opened from the top every night to change the air. Several varieties of tulips have made one and one-half inches. All the tulips are planted in flats in four or four and one-half inches of soil and placed on racks. They were well watered when planted, which was about four weeks ago. Today I broke vent holes in the wall of the cellar and gave more water. Up to the present time the temperature has been about 40 to 44 degrees. I am in hopes that the temperature will be lowered now. What other remedy would you suggest for holding the bulbs back?

W. E. J.

The plan you have adopted of stacking your bulb flats in racks is not one that I can recommend. They should rather be on the floor of a cellar, pit or coldframe, standing on sand or cinders, and after being well soaked with water they should be given a covering of three or four inches of loam, sand or fine coal ashes. I like the latter in a cellar, as it is more cleanly than loam, but in coldframes the loam covering answers well. Of course, all bulbs do not need covering. Paper White narcissi, gladioli, Spanish iris, ixias, sparaxis, tritonias and sweet-scented jonquils are exceptions, but all tulips and hyacinths and practically all narcissi like a cool bottom and a covering of some kind over the tops of the flats or pans. Bulbs treated thus have a more uniform moisture at the roots and are also cooler than when stacked up in tiers. The soil in your flats will dry out too much and no doubt needs another soaking watering now. I would advise standing them on the cellar floor; or, if that cannot be done, dig a pit outside where water will not stand and, after watering, cover with soil. Later protect with leaves or straw to exclude frost.

DAPHNE INDICA.

Can you or any of your readers inform me where I can procure plants or cuttings of the greenhouse daphne? I mean Daphne odorata. I have asked several florists and looked through all the catalogues I have, but cannot find it. Surely someone still grows it.

H. J. S.

The greenhouse daphne, usually called Indica, but also D. odorata, is not offered in any American catalogue, so far as I have searched. A number of European firms, however, offer it, including James Veitch & Sons, Chelsea, London, England; Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield, England, and V. B. Gauntlett & Co., Chiddingfold, Surrey, England.

This delightfully scented old plant is occasionally seen here in florists' stores, where it is quickly sold. In the west and southwest of England and also in parts of the west of Scotland and Ireland this plant is found growing outdoors in sheltered locations, where it blooms as early as January.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Last week's business was somewhat of an improvement over the week previous. Chrysanthemums seem to carry the day, while roses and carnations in many respects are compelled to take a back seat. Chrysanthemums in the pompon varieties will be over with this week, but the extremely large varieties are just coming in. It is generally expected that until the chrysanthemum season closes, stock in other lines will be in poor demand. Giganteum lilies, though not overabundant, are in good supply and sell well. An improvement in the quality of violets is quite noticeable, while sweet peas are again putting in their appearance.

Various Notes.

George Bartholomew, who for the last ten years has been manager of the Miami Floral Co., expects to go into business for himself. Mr. Bartholomew came to Dayton from Chicago, where he was employed by the George Wittbold Co., while previous to his connection with this company he was engaged in business at Irving Park, Chicago. J. W. Rodgers, who for the last seven years was superintendent of the Cincinnati parks, has bought a controlling interest in the company and will become its manager.

Finlay Neibert has just moved into his fine new home on Sprague street.

Miss Amy Ewing, who has been ailing for the last several months, is again able to be back at her post.

George Lampert, of Xenia, while out hunting last week sprained his ankle.

C. F. Mahan has recently purchased fifteen acres of land, which he will devote to growing flowers and vegetables.

Mrs. Elizabeth Young is again able to sit up a little each day.

Jos. I. Schaeffer and Elmer Jenkins took a few days off last week and combined business and pleasure. They visited P. O. Coblenz, of New Madison, O., who is the originator of three of our best gladioli—Mrs. Francis King, Velvet King and Idella. The pleasure part of their trip was a turtle hunt, which resulted in the capture of eleven turtles.

M. Anderson spent several days at his store in Cleveland this week.

H. H. Ritter is convalescing from a severe attack of the grip.

Arno Hendrich has just returned from an extended eastern trip.

Claude Leslie, who for the last three years has been with the Miami Floral Co., has taken a position with the National Cash Register Co.

Visitors: Henry Ehrhardt, of Sidney, O.; A. J. Eckert, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, Cleveland; E. W. Mendenhall, deputy nursery inspector, Columbus; I. Rosnosky, of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia; A. F. Longren, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Indian summer played another week to "capacity" houses. In other words, it was not until November 16 that the curtain was rung down on the most open fall the New York cut flower market has ever known. All day Saturday the legitimate trade, the Brooklyn plungers and the department stores were carting away wagon loads of flowers, and yet there were oceans of them left, especially chrysanthemums. Even the football game at Princeton seemed to have had no special influence on the abnormal supply of mums and violets. Finer stock of both never reached New York, and yet values were far below the prices that prevailed a year ago. Now that clear, crisp, seasonable weather is here, if it stays, a steady improvement is anticipated and, with the aid of the publicity methods, an old-time Thanksgiving is expected. There will be an abundance of everything for the holiday.

This week we have the horse show, and society should lift orchid values from the rut. The opera season has begun, numberless weddings, dinners, receptions and debutante dances are announced, and the leading retailers all declare they are busy. There seems nothing in the way of a brilliant fall and winter for the florist.

Retail windows everywhere in the big city are ablaze with color, and made seductively enchanting by artistic blendings and daily changes. Never has the value of attractive window dressing been so emphasized.

Prices of everything are at bottom levels. The change must be for the better and upward. A few of the prize 50-cent mums, unnamed, or of this year's introduction, are still arriving, the fall flower shows being over and the market the only outlet for them. Violets are now arriving in unlimited quantity, and the quality is tiptop; there must have been over a million of them here Saturday. Some of the specialists received over forty boxes. Single violets have grown in popularity this season. The call for autumn foliage has been persistent all the fall. Wreathing of it has been immensely popular. Narcissi and mignonette are arriving freely. Where do all the orchids come from? Splendid orchids are now coming in great quantity. With the exception of a few novelties, $2 per hundred seems top for carnations. Prices for American Beauties are steady. All other roses are cheap.

Various Notes.

The seedsmen all declare this to have been a record year. The wonderfully open fall has kept the trade humming.

By January 1 the MacNiff Co. will be settled in its new store at 56 Vesey street, occupying the whole of the five-story and basement building.

Geo. F. Ditzenberger, whose severe illness was reported in this column last week, died in the Hackensack hospital. A large number of his friends in the trade attended the funeral, and the floral tributes to his memory filled many coaches. His most intimate friend, J. J. Coan, was one of the pallbearers.

Enchantress Supreme, the new carnation now being introduced by Dailledouze Bros., of Flatbush, after a four years' test, is a light salmon pink.

Charles W. Eaton, of New Castle, N. H., has purchased the greenhouses formerly owned by Clarence Fraser and will grow carnations only. Charles H. Craig, the foreman, formerly was with W. Langdon, of Portsmouth, N. H.

Colin Ogston, of the Kimball Conservatories, Rochester, N. Y., was in the city last week, the guest of Henry Siebrecht.

A decoration last week in the large ballroom of the Hotel Astor, for the Canadian Club, was made by Louis M. Groffman, formerly in business on Staten Island. The flowers used were American Beauty roses, Bonnaffon chrysanthemums and William Eccles carnations.

Many New Yorkers were at Newark early this week to attend the convention of the National Association of Gardeners.

J. B. Nugent, Sr., now in his ninety-second year, has been seriously ill, but at last accounts was convalescing.

W. G. Badgley, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, was in the city November 16. He is not allowing his municipal obligations to interfere with business.

James Coyle has added a new office to his other conveniences.

R. G. Wilson and Hugo Jahn, over in Brooklyn, say the wedding bookings are many and the City of Churches will have an old-time season.

J. Austin Shaw.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Italian garden room of the Tyler hotel was the scene, November 14, of a banquet given by the Kentucky Society of Florists in honor of Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., president of the Society of American Florists. Plates were laid for fifty, including members of the society and their guests. The table was artistically decorated with American Beauties, marguerites, chrysanthemums and white roses. Anders Rasmussen presided as toastmaster and introduced the following speakers: H. Kleinstark, who spoke on "Society of American Florists;" George Schulz, whose subject was "Kentucky Society of Florists;" Mrs. Quarels, who discussed "The Ladies' Society of American Florists;" William Mann, whose topic was "Those Present;" Herbert Walker, who spoke on "Our Guests," and August Baumer, whose subject was "The Ladies."

Previous to the banquet Mr. Vincent gave a lecture on the international flower show at London, England, which was illustrated with colored stereopticon views. In the neighborhood of 300 persons attended the lecture.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

The wholesale market is pretty dead. There seems to be a surplus of about everything except roses, and they are shy. The late and early mums are coming in together and flooding the market. For this market condition the weather is largely blamed, and a change of weather is anxiously looked for, in the hope that it will open up the market.

Various Notes.

Highland park, under the direction of Assistant Superintendent Dunbar, has been giving a show of chrysanthemums in the park conservatory. Though the show is not large, it is well worth seeing. There are about 130 varieties of mums, arranged artistically, according to color and size. Besides the well grown collection of show flowers, the exhibition was especially strong in pompons and anemones, including quite a number of seedlings in these classes. An adjoining house contains over 300 species and varieties of succulents. This is a notable collection. Among the many things to which special attention could well be called are a fine specimen of Euphorbia splendens, and a half dozen specimens of spineless cacti gathered in the Mediterranean district and sent here from the Department of Plant Industry at Washington. The other show house contains a general collection of orchids, nepenthes, stove plants, etc. The propagating houses at the conservatory are largely filled at present with begonias, acacias and heaths. The clean, thrifty stock showed skillful work on the part of Mr. Dukelow, the greenhouse foreman.

At a meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association, held November 11, the finance committee showed that the flower show was a success in every way. Owing to the bad weather, however, they did not clear as much as was expected. Of the total expenses about twenty per cent was for advertising, over fifty per cent for decoration and over twenty per cent for music. The ladies' auxiliary cleared a substantial sum from the tea room.

George Boucher is about to make a notable increase in his store space. The store he occupies has a frontage on two streets, but a circulating library has been using one end of it. He is now going to extend his display the entire length of the store, about 150 feet. This will give him large show windows on each of two prominent streets. To fill this additional space, he has been acquiring a fine lot of display plants while prices were low. These he has been keeping at his greenhouses. His well arranged, white store is always attractively decorated in a style that is characteristic of his work. His window and store never have a crowded appearance, but are always neat and artistic. Mr. Boucher has, by his personality and hard work, built up a nice retail trade. Business has increased to a point where he has had to buy an additional auto delivery car. He has also bought a new pleasure car for himself.

H. P. Neun had his window filled with a large, odd shaped bank of Maud Dean mums. He had many more coming in.

The greenhouses of Jacob Thomann & Sons are again in good shape, after some repair work has been done on them. He has one house of carnations that promise to be extra fine. In his display house he has, among other things, two benches of Boston ferns and one bench of dracaenas. Outside he has a large bed of pansies in full bloom. Arthur Cowee has taken over the sale of his entire lot of Rochester White gladioli.

W. Logan, of Crosman Bros. Co., who has for many years devoted a great deal of attention to lawn grasses, has been remarkably successful in producing lawns under unusual conditions.

S. A.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Warm weather last week had its effect upon trade conditions, somewhat deterring business. Chrysanthemums are in great profusion, but rather soft. A few cold nights will bring them back to their own, however, and a big demand is expected for Thanksgiving. Prices were a little off this week and stock moved slowly.

Various Notes.

Stewart Ritchie is erecting a new greenhouse at 68 Bliss road, Middletown.

L. Engel, manager of the flower department for the Shepard Co., introduced a novelty last week by having a young girl, in Venetian costume, selling violets tied with a violet cord and tassel, at 50 cents a bunch.

James A. Budlong, II., of Cranston, has registered a Pope-Hartford automobile with the State Board of Public Roads.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, was in Boston on business last week.

The firemen were called to the greenhouses of Arthur P. Kupfer, 231 Potter avenue, November 13, where a brisk blaze had started from an overheated stove. Considerable damage was done to glass and plants.

Max Villars, formerly with Johnston Bros., is now with Henry Pfister at Washington, D. C.

Henry A. C. Taylor is having six new houses erected on Annandale road, Newport.

William Hay, of Oaklawn, attended the New York flower show last week.

Edward Brookes, of T. J. Johnston & Co., has just purchased a fine house on Hope street, east side.

At the meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society last week, a new variety of Solanum Capsicastrum was exhibited by George Melvin, of South Framingham, Mass., who grew it and named it Melvini. The plant is notable for its crinkled leaves, which allow the berries to show to better advantage than on the older variety. The berries are conical instead of being round. The society awarded its gold medal to Mr. Melvin.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, arrived home last week from Maine, where they have been spending the last four weeks as members of a hunting party.

A bad leak in one of the boilers at Mrs. Conley's greenhouses last week caused considerable damage.

Many friends assembled at the Second United Presbyterian Church November 15 for the wedding of Miss Lillian E. Macrae, daughter of the late Farquhar Macrae, and sister of the members of the firm of F. Macrae Sons Co., to Walter A. Briggs. The decorations, principally chrysanthemums, were among the best ever seen in this city. Walter S. Macrae gave the bride away and Alexander Macrae and F. Arthur Macrae were ushers. W. H. M.

DETROIT.

The Market.

The market for the last week was good in all lines outside of Bonnaffon mums, which have been long for some time. There is an immense quantity of these being grown locally this year, and it has been a big task to keep them all moving. The oversupply in this line has brought the price of other yellow mums down. Other mums have been selling well, and a shortage is noted in medium and large white. The poorer stock in all colors has been hard to move. Pompons have been selling well, with the call running heaviest on good, stiff-stemmed yellow, bronze and white. The singles do not do well in this market.

Roses have been selling well and are cleaned up daily, with the exception of white, which has been rather long for some time. Carnations are picking up right along and the supply is just about equal to the demand. Eastern double violets are being received daily, but do not sell as well as in other seasons, owing to the choice singles being shipped in by the Mt. Clemens growers. Sweet peas are being received in small quantities and clean up well. Valley is in heavy supply. Easter lilies are not selling well, and the same is true of callas. Stevia is being received in limited quantities.

The season so far has been good here, and the prospects are bright for the future. It is the wish of the trade that business will hold up as it has started out; then we will have no complaints to make.

Various Notes.

Thos. Browne, of Greenfield, is busy marketing his mums. One can see him any morning, with his Ford loaded to the roof with boxes of mums, headed for the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange.

Albert Pochelon has no complaints to offer, except of too much business to handle with comfort.

Walter Taepke cannot take time to report at the market these days, owing to the steady trade at the store.

E. A. Feters has purchased another delivery car and is ready for the rush.

Philip Breitmeyer is a busy man these days, taking care of the debutante bouquets.

Albert Stahelin is heavy on Bonnaffon this season, and is also cutting some fine carnations.

Geo. Browne has his new movable house ready, and we expect to hear from him right along now with some fine carnations.

Robert Klagge, of Mt. Clemens, is sending in his usual variety of stock, and has some nice carnations and roses.

J. E. Carey, of Mt. Clemens, has finished a fine crop of Killarneys and has another crop in sight.

Sidney Tinkler, the new grower at Mt. Clemens, is getting a fine start this season and has bright hopes for the future.

Fred Breitmeyer is having a good season in all lines.

A. Van Beversluys, of Mt. Clemens, is starting in with his peas and they are fine. He also has some choice mums and carnations.

Leo Mallast is late in starting this season, but says he will be on hand when the mums are gone.

Carl Baer, of Archbold, O., has his usual high grade of carnations and mums and is consigning his cut to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange.

H. S.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Business last week was nothing of which we care to boast, although Saturday the retailers had about all they could do to fill the orders for chrysanthemums, occasioned by the Georgetown-Virginia football game. The average price during the week for chrysanthemums was from $4 to $6 per hundred for the small ones and $2 to $3 per dozen for the fancy stock. Inasmuch as chrysanthemums now dominate the market, the sale of other flowers is comparatively small. There is a fair demand for American Beauty roses. Carnations cannot be said to be plentiful, and several days during the week orders for them had to be refused. Roses are in much better shape now, and the same can be said of violets, both single and double. Among the late arrivals is snapdragon; also pink and white sweet peas and a limited supply of lupines have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

The annual flower show, held last week by Gude Bros. Co., was a marked success, and exceeded the firm's expectations. The attendance was gratifying, although on several occasions the press of visitors almost prevented the proper carrying on of the business. A novel feature was the singing of nightingales apparently from among the palms and ferns. This was simulated by five graphophones from records especially prepared.

O. A. C. Oehmler had a novel window display at his store on G street, northwest, on the occasion of the Georgetown-Virginia football game, in which was used the effigy of a husky football player on a miniature gridiron.

Among the visitors last week were George Watson, of Philadelphia, Pa.; J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, and Mr. Skidelsky, Jr., of Philadelphia.

The Florists' Exchange is again at its old quarters at 1214 H street, N. W., but in what is now an entirely new building. The front of the store is of glass, metal and cement. The fixtures are all of mahogany and the ceiling is of art metal set with a number of high power electric lamps. The office is at the rear of the store. In the cellar is an ice-box 6x16 and space for storage purposes. A large showing of palms and ferns was made at the opening. Albert Snell is the manager.

Antone Stocké, of Berlin, Germany, has entered the employ of Gude Bros. Co. C. L. L.

OBITUARY.

Walter S. Nichol.

Walter S. Nichol, one of the best known florists of Rhode Island, died at his home at Hampden Meadows, Barrington, November 12. He was stricken with paralysis October 30.

Walter S. Nichol was born in Yorkshire, England, sixty years ago, coming to this country when a boy. His father, George Nichol, settled at Providence, R. I., being one of the first florists in that city, and remained in the business for upwards of forty-five years. Walter Nichol, with his two brothers, Robert and Thomas, was employed by his father, and took over the business after his death. In 1890 Mr. Nichol went to Barrington, R. I., where he started in the florists' business, establishing a model range of houses which he devoted largely to carnations and violets. He was one of the charter members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, and at the time of the big convention of the Society of American Florists, at Providence, in 1894, was a member of the executive committee in charge of arrangements. He was a constant attendant at the club meetings for several years and always had something of interest to offer.

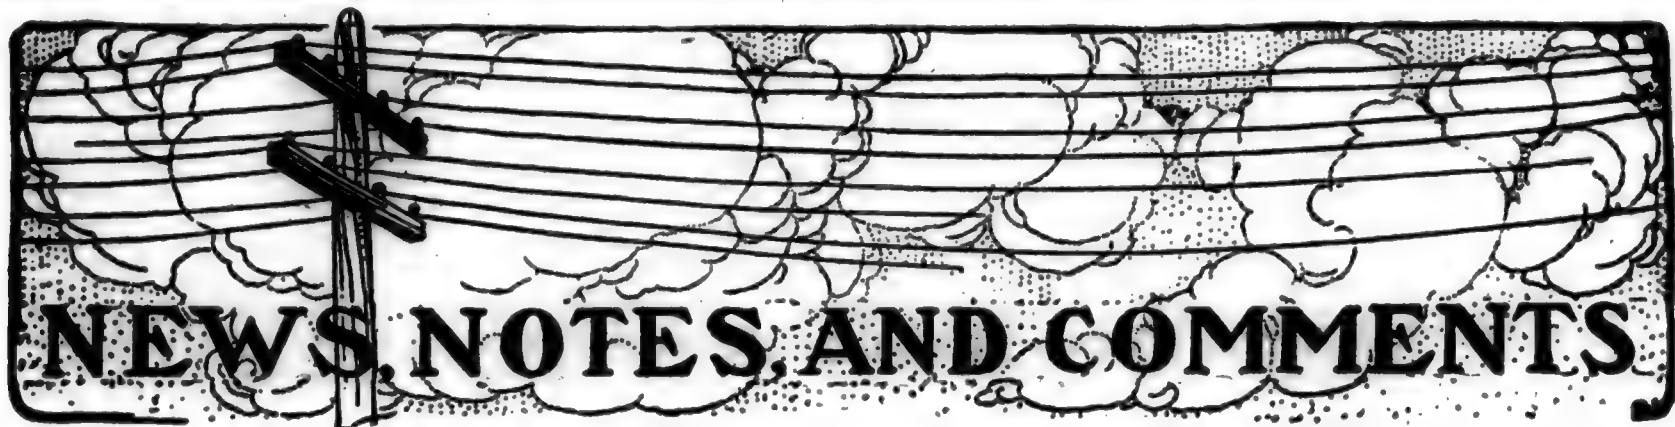

Mrs. Nichol, who died six years ago, could trace her ancestry back to Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island. Mr. Nichol is survived by three daughters, Bessie, Edna and May Nichol, all of whom lived with their father. Mr. Nichol was widely known and well liked, as he was of a genial disposition, with a smile at all times. A number of the florists from various parts of the state attended his funeral, which took place Friday afternoon, November 15.

George F. Ditzenberger.

George F. Ditzenberger, of Woodcliff, N. J., died November 11, in the hospital of Hackensack, N. J., of cerebro-spinal meningitis. He was 32 years of age and leaves a widow and daughter. In 1904 he established the Woodcliff Floral Co. Interment was at Woodcliff Lake cemetery, Woodcliff Lake, N. J.

Arthur Harbison.

Arthur Harbison, of Harrodsburg, Ky., died in that town November 10. On the following day the body was taken to the residence of his father-in-law, John S. Shannon, in Shelbyville, Ky., where the funeral was conducted November 12. Mr. Harbison was born and reared in Shelbyville, and moved about six years ago to Harrodsburg, where he engaged in the florists' business. He was the youngest son of the late George W. Harbison, one of Shelby county's most prominent farmers. He married Miss Millie Shannon, who, with two children, survives him. He leaves two brothers and two sisters—Marshall Harbison, of Danville; Eugene Harbison and Mrs. Jordan Harris, of Shelbyville, and Mrs. Henry Willis, of Louisville.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

Walpole, Mass.—W. E. May has closed his greenhouses and gone to Daytona, Fla.

Plattsburgh, Neb.—Thomas L. McDonald is starting in the greenhouse business here.

Worcester, Mass.—The Ross Bros. Co. will erect a greenhouse, 28x100, at 84 West Boylston street. The materials will be furnished by the King Construction Co.

Austin, Minn.—A. N. Kinsman and family are in Florida, having made the trip by motor. They will return the same way and expect to reach home about December 10.

Boyertown, Pa.—Abraham Bros. have erected a greenhouse at Fourth and Berks streets and have stocked it with a general line of plants, intending to cater chiefly to the Reading market.

Tampa, Fla.—W. T. Knull, proprietor of the Knull Floral Co., who has been spending the summer in the mountains of North Carolina, has returned. He made the trip both ways by automobile.

Fredonia, N. Y.—A barn owned by the Larder Floral Co., on Free street, was recently destroyed by fire. A horse and some carriages were saved, but several tons of hay were burned. The loss was $2,500, partly covered by insurance.

Bad Axe, Mich.—Alfred Deady, it is said, has been taking a course of practical instruction in floriculture, preparatory to engaging in the trade. Next spring he, in company with his father, G. M. Deady, will erect greenhouses near the new Grand Trunk station.

Allentown, Pa.—Marcus De Long, who resides in the suburb known as Sterlingworth, is making preparations to start in the florists' business. He owns five lots at Thirty-eighth and Linden streets, and to this property he has removed the houses which formerly belonged to A. B. Ellsworth and were located at Fourth and Tilghman streets. Mr. De Long expects to have the houses rebuilt and ready for use in time for the spring business.

New Haven, Conn.—It is reported that Charles Conte, the florist on South End road, was recently obliged to sell the entire stock of his greenhouses at a great sacrifice, owing to the fact that the gas company, while blasting through the road to lay a main, had cracked and disjointed some of the heating pipes in the houses. This condition of the pipes, it is said, was not discovered by Mr. Conte until he was starting the boiler for the winter, when the damage could not be repaired in time to save the plants.

Rochester, N. Y.—Lord & Burnham Co., New York, has opened a branch office here, in the Granite building, Main and St. Paul streets, in charge of H. E. Bates. The company now has branches at Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Rochester.

Easthampton, Mass.—Thomas Copson has purchased the greenhouses on School street, which were conducted during the summer by S. S. Hitchcock. Mr. Copson will move the houses to his property on Chapman avenue and will grow flowers there for the market.

Newport, R. I.—Several greenhouses, of Hitchings construction, are being erected on the estate of Henry A. C. Taylor, on Parker avenue. The plans include two grape houses, two peach houses, one rose house and three houses for gardenias and carnations, besides two propagating houses.

Angola, Ind.—R. Ford Carpenter has installed a large new boiler and is making preparations to build another greenhouse for carnations. Business is first-class.

Zanesville, O.—G. L. Humphrey had the work for all the Masonic bodies at the funeral of Dr. C. C. Knapp, making one of the largest orders for funeral work ever given here.

Waterbury, Conn.—Alexander Dallas, of A. Dallas & Son., was so unfortunate recently as to shoot off two of his fingers while hunting. The charge struck his left hand, tearing off the second and third fingers.

Richmond, Va.—A company has been incorporated, with $25,000 capital stock, to continue the business of John L. Ratcliffe. Mr. Ratcliffe is president; William Catlin, vice-president, and A. C. Woolridge, secretary-treasurer.

Nampa, Idaho.—H. M. Bouser, formerly with the Boise Floral Co., has purchased a block of ground here and will build greenhouses. He expects to grow vegetables for the local market this winter, and if the business proves successful he will branch out into the handling of cut flowers and plants next year.

Pensacola, Fla.—Andrew Hauge, who for some years has had charge of the greenhouses of John L. Parker, at Birmingham, Ala., has secured a tract of land in this city and has begun the erection of a range of greenhouses. He will also open a retail store in the San Carlos hotel. The store will be under the personal management of Mrs. Hauge.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The Tomlinson-Key Floral Co., formerly at the corner of Ocean and Forsyth streets, has removed to its new store at 203 Main street, which is much more commodious and suitable than the old quarters. Though the company has been in business only a little over a year, the increase in trade had already made this enlarged space a necessity. In addition to the store, the firm has greenhouses and grounds at 18 West Eighteenth street.

Houston, Tex.—The Henk Dirken Floral Co. was recently organized here, with headquarters at Bell and Caroline streets. Dr. E. P. Daviss is president of the company and H. Dirken is sales manager. Though they handle a general line of florists' stock, they make a specialty of bulbs and ornamental trees. They have already imported considerable quantities of bulbs from Holland and France, and fancy trees and plants from Belgium and Japan. They have made some large contracts for the sale of their stock and the prospects are encouraging.

DON'T MISS IT

Wheeling, W. Va.—Arthur Langhans has been awarded the contract to decorate the booth of the West Virginia State Board of Trade at the indoor carnival and exposition of the Scottish Rite Guard, to be held in the Wheeling temple in the last part of November.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.—Adolph Donart, proprietor of the Coeur d'Alene Greenhouses, has sold a half interest in the business to M. C. Louis, of Aberdeen, Wash. The new firm has secured Miss Mary Mitchell, an expert florist of Seattle, to take charge of the downtown store. Mr. Louis has for the last six years conducted greenhouses at Aberdeen.

The Review brings results.

WHY is it so many florists are constantly striving for cheapness and quantity instead of quality? Why not look up, instead of down?

A SUMMARY of the New England plant quarantine order of the Federal Horticultural Board appeared on pages 90 and 92 of last week's issue of The Review.

FROM the number of handsome blotters enclosed with The Review's incoming mail, it appears that the ink absorber is a favorite method of advertising with the average retailer.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves
the bother of annual renewal by sending
The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-
two visits of the paper.

CAPABLE assistants are in request in all departments of the horticultural trades, but in most other lines as well it is necessary to select wisely, educate slowly and pay well to get and hold a competent staff.

E. WIENHOEBER, Chicago, whose trade is among the best class of flower buyers, says he already can note the waning popularity of the single and pompon mums. He thinks it due to their having been used so universally this season and last.

WHY is it the fellow whose service is nowhere near so good as yours still gets some trade, perhaps some trade you ought to get but don't? It's because he is a busy little hunter for buyers who either don't know or don't care what they do with their money.

WHEN a florist can clean up his debts once each month and have a surplus he then is ready to expand his business, building on a firm foundation. Until he can pay current bills promptly he should curtail his expenditures and look carefully to his own credits and collections.

A MAN who says he has information on the subject asserts that the quantity of ruscus imported this year and available for dyeing is four times the quantity available last year, while the demand certainly is ten times stronger.
Furthermore, as much ruscus as was used last year at Christmas has already been consumed this season.

STEEL FILINGS IN THE SOIL.

A gentleman here has asked me whether steel filings put in the ground around hydrangeas would change their color. He said a traveling man had told him that is why the growers get so beautiful a color in hydrangeas around Baltimore. He had heard this from a florist. Can you enlighten me on the subject, so I can tell him whether there is any truth in the statement or not?

G. D. R.

Some growers claim that, by the use of iron or steel filings in the soil, pink hydrangeas can be changed to blue. I have not verified this myself, but it seems to be quite generally agreed that the presence of iron in some form in the soil does heighten or change the color of the flowers. Alum has also been used for the same purpose with similar results. I would suggest mixing some of the steel filings in your soil and marking the pots containing them, so as to test the correctness of this theory.

WHY ADVERTISING PAYS.

We once heard of a publisher whose edition was one copy for each advertiser—and we were told that his advertisers, though not numerous, were satisfied—but nowadays most advertisers want to know not only how many copies are printed, but what the readers think of a publication. Here is what four subscribers to The Review had to say when they sent in renewals one day last week:

I count The Review among my best friends and would dislike to miss a single copy.—W. M.
Vary, College Park, Ga., November 11, 1912.

The Review grows better with each issue and I would feel lost without its weekly visit.—Nellie Goodge, Evansville, Ind., November 11, 1912.

A greenhouse without The Review would be like a ship without a rudder.—F. Rhodes, Hartford, Wis., November 11, 1912.

I am one of the subscribers who have received every issue of The Review. The paper shows what rapid strides our business in general has made. I am most distinctly pleased with the foremost trade paper.—F. J. Fillmore, St. Louis, Mo., November 11, 1912.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The most important change in the market during the last week has been the gradual decline in the average prices returned to the growers. The volume of business increased toward the end of last week but the receipts were so heavy that prices were below what have been recorded thus far during the chrysanthemum season. The present week opened with no improvement in the demand and such large supplies of stock that prices scarcely could be said to be holding steady. There may be three exceptions to the story of declining averages. Most important of these is Beauties, which are not in specially large supply, and for which excellent prices are being received; indeed, it is doubtful if Beauties ever brought better prices in quantity during the height of the chrysanthemum season. Also, the price of orchids is firm. The heaviest of the autumn crop is off, though there still are plenty of fancy cattleyas for those who are willing to pay the prices that were considered usual in the days before orchids became so heavily grown as they now are. Also, violets show no special decline in price, due more to prices already having been on rock bottom rather than to any special increase in the demand. The supply rather exceeds the call.

Chrysanthemums which, early in the season, were realizing better prices than in recent years, have retrograded to the point where values are about the

FOR THANKSGIVING YOU NEED THESE

MUMS!

EATON

YELLOW BONNAFFON WHITE

The best Chrysanthemums just before Thanksgiving are Eaton, Chadwick and the Bonnaffons. These are the varieties that every flower store can sell at a profit. There is no waste if the stock comes from a grower who knows how to do these varieties right. Our growers are specialists—no catch-crop Mums handled here. Our Eatons, Chadwicks and Bonnaffons are in the special fancy class—we have smaller Mums, but there are none better than we offer in these three varieties. The supply is large now, and it will be still larger at the opening of next week, when you will want your Thanksgiving supplies.

ORCHIDS

Our Cattleyas are coming in stronger just as the general autumn crop throughout the country is passing off. We shall have fine Cattleyas in increasing quantity from now on. You always can get Cattleyas if you order here.

VIOLETS

If you are not getting your share of the corsage work, probably it is because you do not use our Violets. There are none better to be had, and unless your competitor uses ours probably his Violets are not so good as yours will be if you order of us.

CARNATIONS

We can furnish all the Carnations your trade demands. The stock is good. The flowers are the equal of anything to be found in this section and the stems are all that you would ask. From now on our Carnations should occupy a prominent place in your store.

FANCY ROSES

There are three strong reasons why the thinking buyers are ordering their Roses of us this season: In the first place, it is well known that better Roses cannot be grown; in the second place, we have a full line—the largest in the market; and, thirdly, we have this year fully doubled our supply—from new glass—so can take good care of a large number of new customers.

lowest ever known. It takes really first-class chrysanthemums to bring above $2 per dozen. The market is badly overloaded with the medium and low grade stock. Strictly fancy chrysanthemums are not in particularly large supply and there are those who say they can get better prices for the fancy blooms than the same stock realized last year. This is not true, however, of Bonnaillon or the other varieties in largest supply. Pompons never were so abundant as now and they never have sold so cheaply.

The weather has been favorable for the production of roses and prices have weakened, except, perhaps, on some of the specialties. The so-called new roses are in light supply compared to Killarney and White Killarney. There is now a great abundance of long-stemmed, fancy flowers. It takes an excellent rose to realize 8 cents.

Carnations have receded from the strong position they held at the beginning of last week and prices now are distinctly low for this season of the year. The greater part of the receipts this year appear to be white and there is a good sale, comparatively, for the colored varieties.

Sweet peas have begun to come in but are not yet a factor to be reckoned with. Stevia has arrived. Not many Paper Whites are coming in. Valley is in steady supply and request. Easter lilies are not abundant but still are equal to all the demands. A few callas are to be seen.

The market is well supplied on practically all greens, even asparagus strings and smilax being fairly abundant. New boxwood is coming in heavily. It is difficult to hold the price on ferns, many dealers considering themselves overstocked.

Various Notes.

The Chicago Florists' Club gave a banquet and informal dance to its members and their ladies at the Sherman house Thursday evening, November 14, the attendance exceeding 100. The menu was excellent and following the repast the crystal room was cleared for the dance. There was no speech-making, but between the dances professional entertainers amused the crowd. The affair was under the management of Guy W. French, chairman of the committee on the good of the club, and was thoroughly successful.

Miss L. A. Tonner has returned from her trip to Georgia, on which she was accompanied by her mother, the first time Mrs. Tonner has made a long journey in forty years. Miss Tonner now makes her headquarters with the Jackson Pecan Groves Co., 29 South LaSalle street.

W. H. Hilton reports excellent business at his store on East Fifty-third street. A recent illustrated article in the Hyde Park News says Mr. Hilton started in business in this city in 1880.

The Cook County Florists' Association will meet at the Tavern tonight, November 21. Walter Scott, of La Grange, will give a talk on "Character as a Factor in Business Success." December 4 the association will give a dance at Bush Temple. Secretary Pyfer announces that J. K. M. L. Farquhar, president-elect of the S. A. F., will be in Chicago in December and will give a lecture before the association.

FLOWER BULLETIN No. 6

Our series of Flower Bulletins are designed to advise you of the stock we can supply at lowest market prices. You will want to watch for these Bulletins, as they are going to mean something to you. Send us an order for any of the items listed and learn why.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

We have an enormous supply of Chrysanthemums, all kinds, colors and prices, but what we want especially to call attention to now, and for Thanksgiving, is our supply of popular Whites and Yellows. In White we have White Bonnaillon, Ivory and Eaton in quantity. There are no other Whites that approach these in popularity. Can furnish fine stock in quantity at $10.00 to $15.00 per hundred. In Yellow there is nothing that approaches the good old Major Bonnaillon as a seller. We assert without fear of successful contradiction that there is no other supply that can compare with ours. Splendid stock at from $10.00 to $15.00 per hundred, fine, clean, well-finished, big flowers on long stems with perfect foliage.

We also have the Bunched Mums in great assortment at from 50 cents to 75 cents per bunch.

Our supply of all these will last until after Thanksgiving. You can get all the Mums you need at prices that will give you a chance to sell at good profit if you order your Thanksgiving supply of us. Do it now and have it settled.

CATTLEYAS—ORCHIDS.

Our cattleyas are home-grown and are, we believe, not to be equaled by any other Cattleyas to be had anywhere in the United States. Certainly there are none better. If your trade appreciates stock that is a little better stock than your competitor handles, use our Cattleyas.

FANCY ROSES.

We have large crops of Roses, especially in the fancy grades: Killarney, White Killarney and extra fancy Richmond. This is stock you will find it a pleasure to handle.

CARNATIONS.

Our Carnation crops now are coming in heavily. Prices this week, $2.00 to $3.00 per hundred. Our Carnations now are as good as anybody will ask. Fine, clean, big flowers and long, strong stems.

If you have not received our Thanksgiving price list, send us a wire. Don't order elsewhere until it comes.

SUPPLY SPECIALTIES RUSCUS

The experienced buyer of Ruscus knows that there are fully as many qualities of Ruscus as there are houses dyeing it. Good Ruscus, bright and even in color, is about the best seller the trade has got hold of in many a day. But the dull, dirty-colored, moldy, spotted Ruscus—well, about all you can do with that kind is to ship it back to the house you got it from, and order some really good Ruscus from Randall. Randall's Ruscus is prepared according to the celebrated Marechal method. This means supreme quality. A post card will bring you samples and prices. Send one today. You really should not buy except by sample—the price means nothing until you see the quality. Bright Christmas red, violet, green, lavender, cerise, purple, gold, silver, etc.—any color you want promptly made up to order if not in stock.

DOLLAR DOVES.

You should try our dollar Dove (Blue label—$12.00 per dozen; $1.15 each if ordered in less than dozen lots). You will agree that it is the best value you ever have seen. Of course we have cheaper doves (Red label, $1.00 each, $10.50 per dozen; Green label, 90c each, $9.00 per dozen) that are good value and may serve your purposes, but if you want a specially good article order a dozen of our Blue label Dove at $12.00.

BEECH SPRAYS.

These are splendid for designs; rich brown in color, fine leaves, little wood to waste. Once tried you will use them constantly. Order today. 25-lb. lots, 26c per lb.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street, reports business excellent. The debutantes now are occupying attention and in the last few days there has been heavy funeral work. In anticipation of a good Christmas, a stock of accessories much larger than usual has been put in.

William Timme is back at his old position as a member of the shipping staff of A. L. Vaughan & Co.

Peter Reinberg returned November 15 from a shooting trip in Iowa and started out on another Sunday night, November 17.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, came down from the St. Paul show and went to Cleveland as bodyguard for A. T. Pyfer, of the Chicago Carnation Co.

John F. Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is a strong advocate of the newly organized credit association and says that every firm in Chicago should accept the chance to improve the old method of handling credits.

N. J. Wietor and Henry Wietor were in court November 18 as witnesses for one of their coal dealers.

E. F. Kurowski, of the John C. Moninger Co., and W. L. Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., were at Cleveland last week to see the florists at the show.

Ed Armstrong no longer is with Kenicott Bros. Co.

E. C. Amling Co. states its opinion that any shortening up in supplies at the opening of this week was due only to the efforts of the growers to hold back a little for the extra demand expected early next week.

The Fleischman Floral Co., on Jackson boulevard, is doing a record business. During the summer the basement space, where all work is done, was practically doubled by taking in the rooms under adjoining stores, and a large new refrigerator was put in for the storage of stock, cooled by an ice machine that also handles the two display boxes in the store. George Wienhoeber says they are now in shape to turn out $1,000 worth of work each day without inconvenience; also that the advertising appropriation this season has been considerably increased.

Winterson's Seed Store reports the arrival of the second shipment of auratum, Melpomene and iris from Japan, November 18.

of the growers will be disappointed at the way pompons are selling this year and will give less space to them next season.

Harry Manheim, with Hoerber Bros., took a trip to the greenhouses at Des Plaines last Sunday and reports the crops looking excellent, especially carnations and roses.

John Zech, of Zech & Mann, went to Joliet on business November 19.

The Southwestern Market.

The local market has had another good week so far as supply is concerned, and business was quite steady at all the wholesale houses.

The mum season is at its height and some splendid stock is coming in. Fancy pompons have had a good call, for the west end retailers are making a specialty of them. The rose consignments last week were large and the stock of excellent color, foliage and stem. The first and second grades were in abundant supply, while specials met with a good demand. Prices on roses so far this season have not been high, and the same may be said as to carnations. Of these there are a great many more of the lower grades than of the fancy. The latter always sell well in this market at this season of the year.

per lb. Sizes "F" fine, "FF" medium, and "FFF" coarse.

JOHN C. MEYER & CO., Lowell Thread Mills, 1495 Middlesex St., LOWELL, MASS.

Silkline also is made in all leading colors, as Violet, for bunching violets, and also for tying fancy boxes.

Mention The Review when you write.

Fancy Beauties are somewhat scarce, but on the lower grades the market is well supplied. Violets were in good demand all last week, but the supply was equal to the call. These are becoming better each week in color and stem. This market now has fancy valley at all times, the supply coming from local growers. Quite a few Easter lilies were seen last week. Paper Whites are in, but Romans have not made their appearance. In greens the market is well supplied.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held Thursday afternoon, November 14, in Odd Fellows' building, with President Weber in the chair and twenty-five members present. Applications for membership were received from Adolph Jaenicke, head gardener at the Missouri Botanic Garden; Albert

J. Windler, president of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.; Oliver K. Sanders, of the Sanders Nursery, and Frank Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly. Fred Alves, manager at Angermueller's, and August H. Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., were elected to membership.

Arrangements for the reception to President R. Vincent, Jr., of the S. A. F., at the December meeting were placed in charge of the trustees. For state vice-president for eastern Missouri, Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, was named.

J. J. Karins, A. Jaenicke and A. H. Hummert made short talks.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. showed five well-grown yellow mums and asked that the name be given. A committee consisting of Messrs. Bourdet, Ogle and Held decided that they were Dolly Dimple.

Resolutions on the death of Charles E. Schoenle were prepared by F. J. Fillmore, C. C. Young and W. E. Ogle.

Various Notes.

J. E. Muldoon reports that the stork left a handsome baby boy at his home in Kirkwood last week.

R. J. Windler, the well-known South Grand avenue florist, has taken his brother, J. J. Windler, as a partner in his business.

The annual banquet to florists, gardeners and nurserymen, as provided for in the will of the late Henry Shaw, takes place Thursday, December 12. Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the S. A. F., will give an illustrated lecture on the London flower show. The Florists' Club meets the same afternoon, and Mr. Vincent will be the principal speaker there also.

Large crowds are visiting the free mum show at the Missouri Botanic Garden. Mr. Jaenicke says that from 4,000 to 5,000 persons attend each day.

Gov. Hadley has appointed H. C. Irish as a member of the State Board of Horticulture. Mr. Irish is a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club and in 1907 served as its president. The appointment is a good one and pleases the members of the club.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. reports a good call for violets and fancy mums. Wm. Ossick, the secretary, says business has been good in all lines of late.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, is on a six weeks' hunting trip with a party of friends.

At George H. Angermueller's they say red ruscus and prepared magnolia leaves are in special demand.

Fred Foster reports a good week in funeral work. November 16 he had several large, costly pieces to make up.

Frank Windler, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., says his concern had quite a big run on fancy valley last week, indicating numerous weddings.

H. G. Berning says best quality stock is cleaning up daily.

The chrysanthemum, queen of the autumn, is also queen of the market, for mums are abundant, as well as superb in quality and color. Chadwick Enguehard, Bonnaffon and Eaton are among the best. It is predicted that there will be an abundance of mums for Thanksgiving, and they will be in splendid condition because of the cooler weather. Carnations are good, but they are rather scarce and have gone up in price. Because of the great quantities of mums in the market, roses are beginning to pile up, though they are of good quality. Killarney and White Killarney are both much better than they have been. Mrs. Aaron Ward and Mrs. Taft roses are excellent.

Valley is good. Cypridium orchids are coming in, but are not selling well. Violets have gone up in price and they are in fine condition. Harrisii lilies are scarce. Cyclamens are on sale in some of the shops. Boxwood, asparagus, hardy ferns and adiantums are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Meacham & Hassell, on State street, are showing some good cyclamens. They have some artistic baskets on display in their show window.

A great quantity of chrysanthemums is still flooding the market and the daily sales do not move even a fraction of those brought in. is a necessity in your business, Mr. Florist.

There are many reasons why, too numerous to tell in this space, but here are four:—

1. Reduction of refrigerating expense to one-half that of using ice.

2. Increased life of your stock, being kept in dry cold air at the proper temperature.

3. Doing away with the muss attending the putting in of ice.

4. Increased profits, as the quality of your stock will demand a better price.

We can tell you many more should you so desire, but the four above should convince you. Drop us a line now.

The Rising Eastern Market.

With the week ending November 20 a crisis has been passed. The load of chrysanthemums has been greater than at any time this season, or any other season. Now it is growing lighter. Such vast quantities of chrysanthemums have been hard to sell at paying prices. When there is so much stock the buyers bear heavily, with marked effect. Prices have been extremely low, particularly so on Bonnaffon, a variety that seems to be in every shipment. The wholesale house that could dispose of all its chrysanthemums at a modest average price had cause for satisfaction. The fancy blooms of some fine varieties frequently realized $3, and occasionally $4, per dozen, but the moment that variety became plentiful or the quality went to select or ordinary, down went the prices. There was no telling where they would stop. Yellow is the leading color. Appleton is almost unheard of today, but Bonnaffon is everywhere. Unfortunately, the mild weather is not best suited for this variety, giving the buyers much cause for complaint. Golden Chadwick is probably the finest orange yellow. Golden Wedding, Golden Eagle and Yellow Eaton are all good. Jeanne Nonin has made its appearance. Chadwick, Timothy Eaton and White Bonnaffon form the white brigade. Maud Dean is not generally in form this year. Chadwick Supreme is the best pink. Dr. Enguehard, over with many growers, is just coming in with a few. Then there are

The Market.

There now is a decided improvement all around in market conditions. The approach of Thanksgiving may be partly accountable for this, but nice, seasonable weather now prevails and flowers are opening more slowly. The bulk of the chrysanthemums are over and, although a good many are being held for Thanksgiving, they will from this time on cut less figure in the market. Bonnaillon is still the mum par excellence, but Eaton, Jeanne Nonin, Maud Dean, Mrs. Jerome Jones, Intensity, Patty and a number of other sorts are still obtainable. Prices are ruling better on these. Roses have stiffened up considerably and there is now a marked shortage of short-stemmed stock. Mrs. Charles Russell is, of course, the leader, and the supply of this is far below the demand. Killarney, Richmond, Sunburst and Hillingdon are all selling well, as are Beauties. There seems to be a tendency to overdo the yellow varieties; every rose specialist is now forcing at least a bench or two of them.

Carnations are showing up more strongly and prices are better. The quality is now approaching midwinter excellence. There are still large quantities of both White Enchantress and Enchantress, although Pink Delight is now the real leader in the light pink class, with White Wonder and White Enchantress sharing honors as whites. Beacon leads as a scarlet and Fenn is not yet displaced as a crimson. Single violets far exceed doubles in numbers and sell better. Prices on these show an improvement. Valley is selling well, also longiflorum lilies.

Quite a few Paper White narcissi are arriving. Stevia is also coming from several growers. There is still a fine supply of Lady Lenox cosmos, candy-tuft and bachelor's buttons.

Cattleya labiata is less abundant, as several growers now have almost finished cutting. Of cypripediums and other orchids there is an adequate supply. Gardenias are still rather scarce; growers complain of buds dropping heavily. There is an improved demand for all kinds of green stock.

Club Meeting.

There was an excellent attendance at the club meeting November 19. The speaker of the evening was Professor E. A. White, of the floricultural department of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, on "Education for the Gardener and Florist." The lecturer read an able paper and brought out his points in a lucid and convincing manner. There are some who view college education with suspicion, but Mr. White easily disarmed all opposition of this sort and had his audience with him from the start. His paper gave rise to an animated discussion, participated in by Messrs. Palmer, Downs, Craig, Cameron, Finlayson, Holmes and Westwood. A rising vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer at the close.

The banquet committee made a most satisfactory report, all bills being paid and a small balance on hand.

Nominations for officers for 1913 were made as follows: President, W. J. Kennedy; vice-president, H. H. Bartsch and Eber Holmes; secretary, W. N. Craig; treasurer, Peter Fisher; executive committee, John Reid, W. J. Patterson, F. E. Palmer, Henry Penn, D. Finlayson, A. K. Rogers, J. Van Leeuwen, R. S. Edgar, P. M. Miller, J. L. Miller, J. Lawson and W. C. Rust.

F. E. Palmer was made chairman of the publicity committee. Mr. Farquhar spoke of his western trip.

The exhibits of the evening included Winter Cheer begonias from Wm. Downs, awarded a report of merit; a collection of flowering plants from W. W. Edgar Co., finely grown; Carnation Princess Dagmar, from M. A. Patten & Co., awarded a report of merit, and Carnation Gloria, from H. W. Field, awarded a report of merit.

HOLLY

I HAVE just completed my contracts with the Holly people of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia for my supply for the season of 1912. I secured my Holly this year to be cut from the swamps in the lower part of Delaware and Maryland, as it is greener and has more berries on than the upland Holly. It will be strictly first-class in every particular. I will have it packed as usual, in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and I positively guarantee it as represented. My first car will arrive here about December 1. The price on orders received during November will be $3.00 [per case, f. o. b. Philadelphia.

I have my Wreaths made of the brightest dark green Holly possible to secure, wrapped with wire, on 10-inch hoops, and each Wreath has four or five spots of berries. Price, $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to weight and quality.

My Laurel Wreathing comes from New Jersey. The Laurel is gathered in the swamps, and the Wreathing is made by hand on heavy roping in 50-yard lengths. Price, 3c per yd.

The Mistletoe comes mostly from North and South Carolina and is well berried. Price, $2.50 to $4.00 per barrel; $6.00 to $10.00 per case, according to quality, about 100 lbs. to case.

Lycopodium, in 10-yard rolls, 4c to 6c per yard.

Christmas Trees, 5 to 20 feet high, 75c to $2.50 each.

Send me your orders; state the day you want it shipped, and if by freight or express and by what route or railroad.

All Christmas Greens are sold on spot cash terms, and checks must accompany all orders.

and the quality is right up to their usual high standard.

Inquiries at the several seed stores show that Dutch bulbs are now quite low, and in many varieties entirely sold out. The season has been a satisfactory one.

Kameyama & Serada, of Stoneham, were unfortunate enough to lose a house of 600 dozen mums, owing to the cold snap. A bursting steam pipe completely spoiled the entire crop.

W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, and W. H. Homlinson, of Dorchester, are shipping in fine batches of Mme. Petrick and other early azaleas to the Boston Flower Exchange.

The E. Sutermeister Estate, of Readville, was the first to send in stevia. They still have a fine lot of candytuft and have a big lot of bulbous stock coming along.

Pierce Bros., of Waltham, have this season five large houses of roses, the entire cut being handled by the Flower Growers' Sales Co. Varieties grown are Killarney, White Killarney, Hillingdon and Richmond.

J. N. Leach & Son's new light pink carnation, Pink Supreme, is doing splendidly with them this season, and J. M. Cohen, who handles Messrs. Leach's flowers, says that the demand for it is far in excess of the supply.

Stanley R. Fisher, son of Peter Fisher, was quietly married last month to Miss Jennie Hubbard, of Norwood. The young couple have returned from a two weeks' honeymoon and are ensconced in a fine new house just completed near Mr. Fisher, Sr. A host of friends wish the young couple every success in life. Mr. Fisher, Jr., is associated with his father in business.

John K. M. L. Farquhar is home from his Minneapolis trip enthusiastic over the outlook for the S. A. F. convention there next August. He praises the St. Paul show highly. Mr. Farquhar now has two presidencies, each calling for much of his time and labor, viz., the S. A. F. and Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The weather is ideal for growing, the days being bright and the nights cold. Roses are thriving particularly well, and the prospects for heavy cuts for Thanksgiving are excellent. My Maryland is scarce, but Killarney can take care of all the demand for pink roses.

U S Budlong's E Blue Ribbon Valley

Some fine Killarney Queen are coming in, on long stems. Lady Hillingdon is the best yellow. Aaron Ward is also good, but the stems are short. American Beauties are scarce. The growers are holding them back for Christmas. Carnations are good; the cool weather has hardened them and they meet with a fair demand. White Wonder seems to be about the best white and is more than holding its own with White Enchantress and White Perfection. Mums are plentiful; in fact, there are more than enough. The best flowers sell well, but the poorer grades are only a drag on the market. Violets are good and meet with a fair demand. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii clean up, with adiantum a good second. Smilax is scarce.

Various Notes.

John Coombs reports business excellent, and anticipates a good trade for Thanksgiving.

G. McClunie was kept busy last week with funeral work and decorations.

Joseph Intraviva has opened a flower store on Main street, Middletown, and is doing well.

Emil Koenig has gone to take a position in Roanoke, Va.

The plant of A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., is in fine shape. This concern grows 65,000 carnations, and they are giving an excellent cut. The roses also are looking good. Killarney Queen is a splendid grower. Dark Pink Killarney is good since the weather became cool. Their new rose, Milady, is attracting wide attention and is getting better and better as the season advances. Anton Olson is back at his old position as gardenia grower, having now recovered from the wounds received when he was attacked by an Italian employed under him.

Recent visitors: Mr. Peters and son, of Hempstead, L. I.; Adolph Farenwald, Philadelphia; Robert Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass. W. S. Clark.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

The Market.

Plenty of sunshine and crisp, frosty nights, followed by delightful days, has been the order for the last week. A rain would be quite acceptable, though we are not really suffering. The crop of mums is just at its crest and there is plenty to meet the heaviest demand ever known here. The sunshine is bringing the carnations here in liberal quantities, and they are of good quality at last. The cold nights are improving the quality of the violets, and they are in fair supply, with demand enough to keep them pretty well cleaned up. The local supply of orchids is about done for a while. Valley is abundant, while lilies are scarce. Roses are in better supply than they were a week or two ago, and will be abundant for Thanksgiving.

The Dutch bulbs are about cleaned up, though some are ordering wherever they can find a supply in this country, to fill late orders. This seems strange, as bulbs were selling freely last year until the last of January, our open winters making those planted at that late date do almost as well as those of the earlier planting. Many who are accustomed to wait till late to do their planting will be disappointed.

There have been unusually large numbers of social functions in the last ten days, and the decorations at many of them were elaborate. There were several important funerals last week, one of which used about $1,000 worth of flowers. This is a rather large amount for a funeral here.

The seed trade is quiet. We have an abundance of holly and mistletoe in our woods, and the farmers bring it in large loads and sell it on the streets, so none of the seedsmen attempt to handle it.

STEAMER ORDERS, BEST ATTENTION and was surprised at the large quantity of first-class stock on hand for Thanksgiving. The first interesting sight, just at the entrance, was about a dozen men busy unpacking a shipment of stock from Holland. There were pot-grown shrubs of all sorts, including even double-flowering crabs and cherries. Several hundred rhododendrons were being unpacked and potted, and a fine lot they were.

A noteworthy feature of the shipment was a bunch of about the heaviest berried English holly ever seen in this market.

Several large houses are full of mums that are just ready to cut. As none had been taken as yet, they presented a beautiful sight. I was particularly impressed with the appearance of one of the largest houses on the place, which was filled with yellows and whites that would average nearly ten inches in diameter. One house is full to overflowing with as healthy a lot of cyclamens as one would care to see, just about ready for the market. Mr. Joy will have no shortage of greens, as two of his largest houses are full of Asparagus plumosus nanus, many of them eighteen to twenty feet long and all of them limited only by the height of the house. He has not yet begun cutting on these.

The propagating house was about half filled with carnation cuttings that should be in early next season. In all the thousands of feet devoted to roses, we did not see a diseased plant. Present appearances indicate that the firm will have a phenomenally heavy cut of long-stemmed Beauties and Killarney for Christmas. These were being held back as much as possible for that time. This is said to be the largest establishment south of the Ohio river devoted exclusively to cut flowers. Whether this be true or not, we could but wonder who buys all the flowers we saw in the several acres under glass.

Various Notes.

to receiving the bulk of their seeds. They say business is dull just now, but that if it were not dull they would never have been able to get ready for the new stock, as they have been rushed all of the time till the last few days. They are out of almost all varieties of bulbs.

A visit to the greenhouses of the Mount Olivet Cemetery Co. found them almost sold out of everything. The firm must either enlarge the plant or see much of the business go elsewhere. Things were looking well, however, and it is always a good omen to be sold out when a good crop has been grown.

McIntyre Bros. have about completed their new flower store, and it will be one of the most roomy and best arranged of the retail shops of the town. It is located away from the business part of the town, on one of the principal residence streets. We shall be interested to see if the location proves a success.

Haury & Sons report the best business ever. They have been running a retail wagon to handle their pot mums, as well as doing more than the normal amount of business from their store.

Geny Bros. continue to have all the business they can attend to. Their windows contain the best decorations seen there for a long time, and that is saying a great deal. They believe in a good, artistic window display, and the way every one is working every time we happen in is evidence that it pays.

The first day of last week started in good shape and was good until evening, but when the wholesalers opened for Tuesday's business something happened, or rather failed to happen. The demand dropped off suddenly, and in order to effect clearances, if possible, large sacrifices in price were necessary. This was especially true of chrysanthemums. The slump even struck some other lines which have been especially popular, such as American Beauties. Friday and Saturday tried their best to redeem the week's business. They managed to clean up the rose and carnation supply and a large part of the mums, but they could not quite reach all. When the large and excellent supply is considered, along with the inactive demand, the word "rotten" best de-

On Monday, November 11, the Florists' Club held its regular meeting at the club rooms. A. C. Heckman, Jr., Ray Murphy and Chas. H. Hoffmeister were appointed by President Gus Adrian to arrange for a banquet on the night of December 9, when Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the S. A. F., will be with us to give us an illustrated talk on the international flower show.
The committee has selected the Burnet House as the place for the affair, and the time will be 8 p. m.

After the regular meeting was over, the members enjoyed a Dutch lunch and smoker. Frank Volz entertained with character and popular songs.

The next regular meeting will be De-also, so we can almost see the end of the mum season, as Thanksgiving, no doubt, will clean up the most of them. Carnations are fine and are about sufficient in quantity to fill all demands. A few times in the last two weeks there were hardly enough to go the rounds, but as a rule the supply is about equal to the demand. Roses are also good, and the demand keeps them about cleaned up at all times. The demand for Beauties varies, and there is not a great quantity on the market, as mums largely take their place at present. Sweet peas are more plentiful and find a ready sale. Violets are good sellers, and several times the supply was exhausted in the last week or so.

There have been considerable numbers of weddings lately, which have used up a good deal of stock and created quite a demand for valley. Funeral orders have been heavy for the last week or so and have used lots of mums. The plant trade has been rather light and there is not a great deal of plant stock on the market at present. Pot mums are not grown extensively here this season, and other blooming plants have not made their appearance in quantity.

Various Notes.

The Livingston Seed Co. held its annual mum show last week and had a good crowd of spectators and patrons.

E. Metzmaier reports heavy business on funeral orders, with mums cleaned up daily.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

STRICTLY fancy holly will be none too plentiful this season, but there will be an abundance of the kind that one makes up with the Michigan red berries.

A SUMMARY of the New England plant quarantine order of the Federal Horticultural Board appeared on pages 90 and 92 of last week's issue of The Review.

E. W. FEE, the seedsman of Albuquerque, N. M., who was shot five times by a discharged Mexican employee September 17, has fully recovered and is attending to business as usual.

AN annual "canned goods week" is being organized by the canning and grocery trades and the assistance of wholesale seedsmen will be asked. It is proposed to get all possible publicity for canned foods for one week early in each year for the purpose of increasing the consumption of these products.

It is proving a favorable season for picking bouquet green—frequently snow has covered the ground before this date. Were it not for this, the supply would have been short, as it is necessary to go farther and farther into the woods each year. It does not look as though green ever again would sell at the old prices.

L. DÆNFELDT, Odense, Denmark, sends The Review a pamphlet of views and descriptions of the different departments of his establishment, with the statement that it was first published in the Danish language for distribution at an exhibition in Copenhagen, and met with such success that he had it reprinted in English.

OTTO BOFINGER, formerly of Lawrence, Kan., has removed to Oklahoma City, Okla., to take charge of the business of the Barteldes Seed Co. there. Mr. Bofinger for some time has been in charge of the company's house at Lawrence, and is transferred to Okla-

ENFORCING THE QUARANTINE.

The government appears to be having more or less difficulty in enforcing the quarantine against potatoes from countries that may send disease with the potatoes; the customs officials do not appear to take the matter seriously. The Treasury Department therefore has issued instructions for the guidance of customs officers in coöperation with the Department of Agriculture for the purpose of enforcing the plant quarantine act, which was approved August 20, 1912, as follows:

"Under section 7 of the act, importation from certain countries of the common or Irish potato was prohibited, and in quarantine notice No. 3 the Secretary of Agriculture prohibited the importation of Irish potatoes from Germany.

"Collectors are informed that the promulgation of a notice of prohibition

WESTERN CANNERS IN SESSION.

The meeting of the Western Canners' Association has called a number of seedsmen's representatives to Chicago for November 21. The program outlined is as follows:

Special feature of business, the disbanding of the Western Canners' Association; discussion of canned food week; the establishing of a canners' clearing house. Open discussion on the condition of the following articles, led by the appointed committee:

Corn, E. F. Trego, Illinois; E. E. Man-hard, Iowa; E. E. Smith, Ohio.

Tomatoes, C. W. MacReynolds, Indiana; J. Ed. Gunther, Kentucky; Thomas W. Potter, Illinois.

Peas, W. C. Leitsch, Wisconsin; Charles Latchem, Indiana; E. P. Daggett, Michigan.

As this will be the last meeting of the western states canners before the national canners' convention at Louisville, next February, a large attendance is expected, especially in view of the proposed disbandment of the Western Canners' Association.

I Want to Get in Touch with a Big, Broad Man in the Seed Trade Who Isn't Happy in His Job

I want to hear from the best seedsman in America who wants a bigger, broader, richer future than his present position or business holds.

This man is needed by one of the oldest seed businesses in America—a house with an enviable reputation, built up by fair dealing, consistent advertising, and honest seeds.

The business is big and steady; it is in a large eastern city, but its trade extends from coast to coast. It can be made much greater—it ought to be doubled. It is on the up-grade now.

For the man who can take hold and help put this seed business where it ought to be, there is an unusual opening. If he measures up to requirements, he will have an opportunity at once to acquire an interest in the business.

A man with capital—possibly a manager or a partner in another concern—is preferred. The business is paying and additional capital is not needed, but it is felt that an investment by the right man will cause more rapid growth.

This is a big thing, and I can give the details only in person. If you think you're the right man, write me fully, telling what you are doing, what you have done, and whether you would consider an investment after investigation had shown it advisable. Address me in confidence—no one else will see your letter without your permission.

JEFFERSON THOMAS

Vice-President and Manager, The McFarland Publicity Service

HARRISBURG, PA.

I know, too, of several good openings in the nursery trade, and invite letters from expert growers, shipping foremen, correspondents, etc. Tell in your first letter what you have done, to whom you can refer, and what salary you command.

The Market.

The weather has been warm for this time of year. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and of good quality, commanding good prices. The store fronts are unusually attractive at this time, on account of the quantities of autumn foliage to be had.

Club Meeting.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held November 11 at the Florists' Exchange hall, with the president, Wm. Christie, in the chair. A permanent entertainment committee was appointed, consisting of F. C. Bauer, J. A. Nuth, A. G. Fiedler, J. L. Towner and C. H. Wagner. The concession for selling flowers at the show at the Armory November 19 to 23 was auctioned off, M. Hilbert being the successful bidder.

Some fine chrysanthemums were on exhibition. Ed. Herrmann, of Belair road, had a good white seedling. A vase of fine Yellow Jones was shown by Mathias Thau, of Govanstown. James Hamilton brought Patty and Chadwick, and Philip B. Welsh showed excellent Golden Eagle. S. W.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Officers of the Minnesota State Florists' Association were hosts at a dinner November 13 to John K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, Mass., president-elect of the S. A. F. An informal discussion of the annual convention in Minneapolis in 1913 was held. The Minnesota association is now devising

The edible bulbs produced in Japan are the Auratum, Platyphyllum and the Tigrinum chiefly, which are boiled and eaten like the common French artichoke. The Magnificum, Rubrum and Roseum are broken up and the scales dried, after which they are exported to China, for eating purposes. Formosa lily bulb scales are also soaked, and then made into a powdered starch, which is cooked and eaten in the shape of cookies, cakes and other goodies for everyone. So do not think that all bulbs are used solely for flowering purposes. Those which are used by the florist, however, must be of superior quality to those that are eaten. In all sorts of merchandise, in things to wear, in things to eat, or in things for the home, there are a few names denoting either maker or brand, which stand for quality. These names are isolated from a hundred inferior products, simply because they have been tested in the laboratory of public opinion and stamped with the seal of public approval. In the lily bulb line the name Horseshoe Brand is distinctive in itself, and denotes the best there is during the current season. You can safely buy that brand and be assured that you are getting the best that is possible to buy. There are none better and many not as good. Horseshoe Brand Cold Storage Giganteum is a good investment just now—and a good investment is always the best to speculate on. They are always an absolute necessity to a progressive florist. STORING CELERY.

Will you please inform me as to the best method of storing table celery, the Giant Pascal variety, for the winter? For three winters I have planted it in loam, in the barn cellar, and it has always commenced to rot soon after being planted there. I think the reason for its rotting off is the lack of sufficient light and air, as there are only two small windows in the cellar, but it is the only cellar I can use for the purpose. Any advice you can give me will be highly appreciated. R. R.

Preparatory to storing the celery, it should be partly bleached. It should be stored as late as possible in the fall, in trenches about six inches wide and ten or twelve inches deep. Place a cap made of boards on the trench, with an opening at every length for ventilation. Be sure to have an air space over the celery tops, and do not cover the boards with soil until it is quite necessary on account of frost. Cover the trench with soil and later put on straw or marsh hay, as the weather becomes cooler.

Giant Pascal is a difficult variety to keep; there are other varieties that keep a great deal better. A cellar is all right for keeping celery, provided you can get enough air into it and keep the celery far enough apart in the rows so that it will be thoroughly ventilated. M. L. Ruetenik.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Last week proved a banner one for the retailers. Debutante and various other functions kept them busy all week, and at the same time kept stock of all kinds cleaned up for the wholesaler. There being plenty of good stock, it was a satisfactory week indeed. The warm fall brought in chrysanthemums a little early. They are already getting on the short side, and by the end of this week all chances of a glut will be over. This will be a record year for chrysanthemums. There has not been a glut and all stock has brought fair prices. Even if not high, the average must be better than other years.

Lilies have been in ample supply this week. Beauties are a little scarce and prices have gone up. Sweet peas have made their appearance, but do not seem to move. Calendula is another flower which does not seem to go well in this market. Violets are improving right along, and are beginning to sell better. Carnations have been on the short side.

Various Notes.

The chrysanthemum shows, both in

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

With the presidential election over, those of the florists who became Progressive and otherwise may now settle down to business again. Trade has been good, but there seems to be an oversupply of the midseason varieties of mums, some of the growers going in too heavily for some of these varieties. Consequently the prices are hardly holding up to those of former years. Carnations are none too plentiful, but are of good quality. Violets are becoming more abundant. Roses are scarce and bring good prices.

Various Notes.

The Woodland Floral Co. is sending in a fine lot of mums.

Mrs. Watson is starting a new store on C street, in the Chamber of Commerce building. The old store in the Public Market will be continued under the management of Miss Watson.

The Fife Floral Co. has opened a retail store in the D Street Market and will do a general flower business there.

The California Florists have just finished extensive improvements at their store on Pacific avenue.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting November 7. Much business came before the meeting. A visit was planned to the greenhouses of the Hollywood Gardens, November 24. The following papers are to be read at the next regular meeting, December 5: "The Growing of Chrysanthemums," by Ed Goldsack; "How to Grow Lilies," by Mr. Sanford. All members are requested to be present on that date, for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Business for the first part of November has been good and, while there have not been so many good funeral orders to fall back on, yet the cash sales have been better. But it has been hard to get what good stock is worth. Chrysanthemums have been plentiful in all grades and colors and the local supply has more than been enough to supply the demand. Carnations have been none too plentiful and every day uses up the supply. Home-grown violets are beginning to be more plentiful and can always be sold in preference to the California product. Roses have been a little off crop and, with the exception of white, have not been overplentiful.

Various Notes.

A. Rahn, of Portland, spent a day visiting the greenhouses and carried home a few nice orders. Incidentally he was boosting for the big flower show pulled off in Portland.

H. G. Evans, recently of Chicago, has taken the position of designer and decorator with H. E. Reimers, and the windows of the Reimers' Floral Art Shop show a decided improvement.

Mr. Donart and Mr. Lewis, of Coeur

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Any florist on the Pacific coast not satisfied to do a local retail business can build up a prosperous wholesale trade by using space in The Review to let the buyers know where stock is to be found. This way:

We have found advertising in The Review to be very satisfactory. We have had orders from all parts of the United States, as well as from the Pacific coast, showing that your valued paper has a very wide circulation. At any time we have any special advertising to do we certainly shall send it to The Review.—Hogan & Kooyman, Oakland, Cal., October 3, 1912.

D'Alene, were recent visitors. Mr. Lewis has just purchased an interest with Mr. Donart, and is a recent arrival from Aberdeen, Wash. Mr. Donart has just completed a range of four houses 32 x 140 feet and will start out with a crop of vegetables and plant to flowers next season.

The Spokane Greenhouses are sending in some fine cyclamen plants and cut chrysanthemums. They report trade brisk for such a young organization.

The Spokane Florist Co. has the new automobile delivery wagon out. It is painted in a light green with silver lettering, and is quite conspicuous on the street.

Eugene Szuchiewicz, of the Spokane Florist Co., has been wearing a broad smile of late, the occasion being the arrival of a fine baby girl at his home.

J. P. Brittan, representative of the Asiatic Export & Import Co., of Seattle, was calling on the trade taking orders for baskets, etc.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Stock has been plentiful in all varieties, but it cleans up well and there has been no glut. Indoor chrysanthemums are practically over for the season in this locality, but they continue to arrive from the north. Outdoor mums are useful for filling in for funeral work, centaureas at 50 cents per dozen not covering enough space in the cheaper class of trade. Indoor roses are not particularly good for the season, except in a few cases. Beauties are poor in color, but the foliage is good. Gardenias are in fair supply, the quality being good, but the stems short as yet. The outdoor carnations are elegant, the Choate variety especially being attractive, while Fair Maid, with large flowers and stems sixteen inches long, are surely good for outside stock in November. There is more variety in orchids, but the number of flowers to be had is limited. I recently noticed fine blooms of the good old Lælia grandis tenebrosa in a retailer's window, and it attracted considerable attention, but I question if it is suitable for use as a cut flower. Cattleya labiata is not plentiful or particularly good this season. Valley is in good shape and cleans up well. Centaureas are particularly good now, the color clear and bright and the flowers large. The violet situation is about as last reported; eastern visitors do not buy them as freely as they used to, and local people care little for them. California is a fine variety, well done by the Japanese growers in the neighborhood of Long Beach. A few outdoor Paper White narcissus and Chinese lily are seen, but not enough yet to cut any figure. Fir, cypress and redwood wreathing are all selling well, and the demand keeps brisk for all kind of greens. Sweet peas continue scarce, the high price of seed preventing some growers sowing so large an acreage, while the quality of the seed sown was not in all cases the best.

Various Notes.

At the postponed meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, held November 12, about sixty members were present, and in the absence of Secretary Kruckeberg, who was in the north at the nurserymen's convention, J. Reeves, of Beverly, acted as scribe. Four new members were admitted, and Wm. Woods, the new horticultural commissioner, presented his paper, "Injurious Insects on Street Trees." In the discussion which followed, G. M. Grant, J. Reeves, Dr. Houghton and others took part, but the discussion, as is usual when this kind of subject is brought up, soon veered to politics. It is high time that finis be written to the political wrangling in the club and something else brought up. Mr. Wood contends that $1,500,000 damage is done to the orchards in Los Angeles county by scale, but gives no inkling as to how this total was obtained.

Charlie Morton, manager of the Los Angeles Flower Market, made a flying trip to San Francisco November 12. Business keeps up well with him.

The H. N. Gage Co. began cutting the first Paper White narcissi from the Montebello ranch November 10, from bulbs planted in September.

houses of the firm is excellent. Tom Wright, has been in the hospital for a slight operation.

R. Neubronner has made a fine garden at the Insurance building, corner of Sixth and Olive streets. He was, for a number of years, connected with the Roserie.

The Jas. B. Mills Orchards Co., Wil-lows, has 15,000 acres of land, 10,000 of which is to be planted to orchard and the rest to nursery stock. Of olives alone 500 acres will be grown, and large areas are to be planted to citrus and deciduous fruits, ornamentals and herbaceous stock. Mr. Mills says he will build houses for his men and eventually schools and other conveniences, so that altogether this is a pretty large project.

The Superior Nursery is sending in excellent Primula obconica, the colors rich and varied, the plants well grown and altogether creditable.

The fact that the land on which George Watson's houses stand has been sold has given rise to all kinds of rumors. One of these was that Morris Goldenson and Mr. Watson were going to build a large plant on the former's land east of the city. There is absolutely no foundation for these rumors. In speaking with Mr. Goldenson, I gleaned the fact that negotiations are in progress with the new owners of the land for an extension of the lease, and that if these go through the place will be continued as heretofore. Mr. Goldenson says that if they are not successful, almost anything might happen.

Albert Goldenson, brother of Morris, was held up and severely handled near Pasadena the night of November 13. He had little money on him, but feels pretty badly about it.

The Freeman-Lewis store passed its first milestone November 4. Both partners say that the business done during the year has far exceeded their expectations.

Captain Gray, of the Ingleside Floral Co., says business keeps up remarkably well.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We have been treated to several showers in the last few days and everything has begun to have a wintry look. There have been enough intervals of bright weather, however, to produce plenty of stock. Mums are at their height and the prices are reasonable enough to suit anyone. The finest outside Bonnaffons can be bought by the retailers at 75 cents per dozen. There was a slight advance during the big football games last week, but that was over in a couple of days and things resumed their regular appearance again. It will take a spell of frost or a few days of continued heavy rain to make any change in present prices. In carnations the supply is abundant for immediate requirements, with many houses of young stock coming on. There has been practically no change in the growers' figures for the last two months. In roses, also, there seems to be an overabundance, especially of the short-stemmed stock. This is a rather unusual occurrence at this time. In fancy stock, however, there is but a limited supply and good prices prevail.

Christmas berries have already made a showing, reminding us that the holiday season will soon be here. They are not as bright colored as they will be as soon as the frost strikes them. Other lines of stock have not shown any great change, with the exception of gladioli and dahlias, and these are over for the season. Business is only fair, with prospects of plenty in a couple of weeks.

The California Association of Nurserymen closed a most successful convention in Oakland, November 12. About 100 of the principal growers on the coast were in attendance for three days and items of considerable interest to the trade were discussed. The next convention will be held in Fresno. Resolutions were adopted recommending better legislation, especially in regard to the inspection law. A vote of thanks was given to the Chamber of Commerce of Oakland, Mayor Mott and the individuals who had entertained the delegates, and especially to Lester Morse, who gave an elaborate banquet to the members on the evening of November 11.

SEATTLE.

The Market.

Business has been about the average during the last week. With inclement weather, the transient trade is hardly so good as usual at this season, but several good wedding decorations have helped considerably, and funeral work has been rather above the normal. Extra fine chrysanthemums are now being offered and the local product is without competition at present. The large blooms are selling well and there is an unabated demand for the single and pompon varieties. The prices of large flowers are hardly so good as they used to be, on account of the influx of the California stock early in the season. Carnations are plentiful, with the demand none too good, and there has been talk of cutting prices, but the small surplus at present should be overcome with increasing trade toward the holidays. Cattleyas continue in good supply and violets are, like the poor, always with us. The sale of ferns, palms and flowering plants is good. Cyclamens and primulas are bringing good prices.

Various Notes.

The Hollywood Gardens held their annual chrysanthemum show, at their premises on Second avenue, at the end of last week.

A number of local florists went to Portland, Ore., to attend the fall show.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club the question of getting some restriction on the street hawkers came up and it was decided to see what could be done in the matter. A committee was appointed to make necessary arrangements for the club ball, to be held about December 10. After the business was disposed of, the members adjourned to the bowling alleys and a pleasant game between retailers and growers resulted in favor of the former. Mr. and Mrs. Felix Rosaia returned last week from a protracted visit to California. He says that "the flower business down there hasn't got any points over ours."

At the greenhouses of Andrew Mathiesen and Risdon & Son, at Brighton, the roses are looking well and they are cutting some nice blooms.

last ten years. So far we have had hardly any frost and the excess of temperature for the year is 207 degrees.

The car shortage is being felt here and consumers of coal are having difficulty in getting their orders filled. Several growers are using wood for fuel and are finding it in some cases cheaper than coal.

A number of growers have put in fall sowings of sweet peas this year, as the early flowers have proved in past years to be most profitable. The ground has not been in good condition for sowing the seed and there will be complaints of poor seed, no doubt, a little later.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is rushing. The counter trade is brisk, funeral work is active, there are numerous weddings, and decorations are in demand. The continuous rainy weather is having its effect on stock, for roses are shortening up and the color is poor, especially in Maid and Killarney. Richmond seems to stand the conditions best of all. Carnations are not so good as they would be with bright skies. Chrysanthemums are in their prime, Bonnaffon and Golden Eagle just coming into crop. The shipping demand has been steady, stock going in all directions, even as far as Vancouver.

Flower Show.

The flower show given in the Armory November 15 and 16 under the auspices of the Fruit and Flower Mission was a grand success. The big hall was turned into a fairyland, every available foot being occupied by the exhibits.

The Tonseth exhibit was a general display of chrysanthemums, carnations and roses, with a fountain effect and several large baskets of mums and Beauties. This exhibitor also showed bride's bouquets and table decorations. Julius Schnapp came from Seattle to help with this exhibit, C. Tonseth being still laid up by his recent accident.

Martin & Forbes Co. had a fine display of orchids arranged in a rustic stand surmounted by a fine Cibotium Schiedeii, also a general display of ferns and begonias, cut mums, roses and carnations, also decorations and wedding flowers.

Clarke Bros. had an extremely well arranged group of orchids and adiantums, also a general display of mums, roses, carnations and pot plants. Their basket arrangements, table decorations and wedding flowers were especially good.

Max Smith had an excellent display of chrysanthemums, carnations, ferns, cyclamens and basket arrangements. Niklas & Son had a group of chrysanthemums and carnations. The Portland Seed Co. showed bulbs, seeds, nursery stock and supplies. J. B. Pilkington made a general display of nursery stock. The Routledge Seed & Floral Co.

A SUMMARY of the New England plant quarantine order of the Federal Horticultural Board appeared on pages 90 and 92 of last week's issue of The Review.

THIS has been an especially good autumn season for the nursery trade. Planting still is going on in many of the sections where the volume of business is heaviest.

At Chicago this season practically everyone in the nursery business has had to decline orders because of the impossibility of getting competent labor. Even day laborers have been scarce.

A STOREHOUSE on the grounds of the Jewell Nursery Co., at Lake City, Minn., was recently burned to the ground. Among the contents of the building, which were also destroyed, were many boxes of choice Wealthy apples, which were intended for exhibition at the state and national fruit shows.

GEORGE A. H. FARMER, son of an English barrister, has purchased the land and stock of the Tokio Nursery, near Terra Bella, Cal., and will expend a liberal sum of money in the improvement of the property, which comprises a quarantine if deemed advisable. The following summary is by Wm. Pitkin, chairman of the A. A. N. legislative committee:

"Your chairman has been advised by Dr. H. T. Fernald, state nursery inspector of Massachusetts, that a new law was passed by the Massachusetts legislature a short time ago which will make considerable change. The law, however, does not go into effect until December 1, 1912.

"The new law omits the requirement for official Massachusetts tags to be attached to each shipment going into the state. Under the new law the ordinary inspection certificate of another state will be sufficient, and it will not be necessary to send to Massachusetts for their official tags.

"Under the old law the Massachusetts inspectors had no discretion in the handling of stock shipped into the state which was found infested. Under that law they were obliged to either destroy or return the entire shipment, whether one box or one carload, and were not permitted to destroy, treat or return an infested portion and allow the good portion to be used.

"Under the new law they will be permitted to treat or destroy the infested portion, and the good stock can be used, thus placing proper discretionary powers in the hands of the inspectors. This is a decided improvement in the Massachusetts law and situation.

"A new section has been added to the law, empowering the state nursery inspector, with the approval of the secretary of the state board of agriculture, to prohibit, for such periods and under such conditions as in his judgment may seem necessary, the delivery within the state of nursery stock from any other state, when, in his opinion, such nursery stock is liable to be infested with insect pests or diseases not already present in the state; or, in other words, the law provides for state quarantine powers."

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Miss Margaret Norberg, formerly employed by Henry Smith, is now with the Grand Rapids Floral Co., at 18 Monroe avenue.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The MacNiff Horticultural Co.

62 Vesey Street, New York City will move on January 1, 1913, to their new five-story building at 66 Vesey Street.

The store floor, basement and second floor will be used for the Auction Department; the third, fourth and fifth floors are for the Seed Department.

Owing to the immense increase in both the Seed and Auction Departments, we have found it necessary to find a more suitable building, and when alterations are completed we will have the finest Horticultural Auction Rooms in the United States.

Thanking our friends for their esteemed patronage, and hoping to be favored with a continuance of same, we remain,

Yours truly,

Enchantress Supreme

THE best Sport of Enchantress up to date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguish its parent.

Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching.

A good all-round Carnation that retains its color at all seasons.

Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter.

Has shown no inclination to be a burster.

The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years' duration convinces us of its great value.

DAILLEDOUZE BROTHERS

Lenox Road and Troy Avenue

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

PARIS, TEX.

J. W. Goree has opened a downtown store, on the west side of the square, and is making some nice window displays.

The Worthy Flower Shop has had some pretty fall weddings, with more on the books to follow.

Mike Robinius always does a nice business, as he has an especially fine, high class of trade.

The Paris Plant & Flower Co. is holding its own and then some. Mr. Kiley, of this firm, uses novel and ingenious methods of producing trade. This fact has been evident from the inception of his business. Having started only a little over a year ago, the company is now building a Garland truss steel frame house, 34x100, on property adjoining the leading cemetery, and will soon have the house ready for stock.

The social season will soon open, and it is predicted that it will be the best season the florists of this end of the state have ever had. All are looking forward to a good, healthy business, and, judging from surface indications, I do not believe they are going to be disappointed.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

McIntyre Bros., who operate greenhouses near the Nolensville road and the Hillsboro pike, will open a downtown store at 1502 Broadway. Their greenhouses on the Nolensville road have just been completed, and they are to be devoted exclusively to the cultivation of roses and carnations under the direct charge of Hugh and Tom

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business last week steadily increased and conditions were more encouraging. Though the supply of cut flowers far exceeds the demand, the prices of stock remain about the same.

One of the leading dry goods stores last week had a large sale of chrysanthemums and carnations, and the stock handled was good for the prices that were asked. The stock was shipped from an out-of-town concern. Some florists think that these sales hurt business in a general way, while others can see an advantage in them. As a general rule, it is not the regular flower-buying public that attends these sales, but a different class of people, generally poorer, and hence such sales serve to popularize flowers and create more of a taste for them. Some fine violets were also sold on the streets last week. Carnations and roses sold a great deal better last week than usual, and both are improving greatly in size and color. Potted mums are moving fast; there are few plants left for Thanksgiving. Home-grown cut chrysanthemums are still in heavy demand, though there are few left.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray has an attractive window. It would make any person hungry to see the excellent grapes shown in a large basket in the center of the display, and they were grown at his own greenhouses.

Arthur Newell says business is good and he has been exceedingly busy during the last week with funeral work.

R. S. Brown & Son have about cut their last mums. They have disposed of a large quantity of them this fall.

E. H. Frandsen & Co. have as fine a lot of cyclamens as can be found in the west.

Henry Kusik & Co. say that stock is moving fast. Everything that reaches the store is quickly disposed of, especially the roses.

William J. Wirt, of Parsons, Kan., was in the city last week and called on many of the florists. W. J. B.

Nashville, Mich.—John Means, who has successfully conducted a florists' business here during the last year, has now completed the erection of three greenhouses, each 20x70. These are the first greenhouses in town.

THE NEW GOLD MEDAL ROSE

"Mrs. Charles Russell"

- ❑ This giant forcing rose is an American seedling raised at the Waban Rose Conservatories and has been tested in our houses for several years.
- ❑ It has proved to be a strong, vigorous grower, and its freedom of bloom is remarkable for a rose that is fully as large as an American Beauty.
- ❑ Its large, pointed buds, of a clear rose-pink and delightfully sweet fragrance, are the admiration of all who have seen it, either growing in our houses or as exhibited by us at the different shows.
- ❑ It has received high honors when exhibited at such centers as Philadelphia, New York and Boston. At the latter place the Massachusetts Horticultural Society honored it with a Gold Medal, a rare distinction from this conservative society.

Plants will be ready for delivery after March 1, 1913

C. H. FREY - Lincoln, Nebraska

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held here on Wednesday, November 13, with President Johnston in the chair.

There was a fine display of late-flowering chrysanthemums, Wells' Late Pink, Wm. Turner and H. E. Converse being especially fine. Prizes were offered for three pink, three white and three yellow, and the winners were James McCarthy, J. W. Everitt and Henry Gaut.

F. Petroccia received the thanks of the society for new pink celery. H. Gaut was awarded certificates of culture for chrysanthemums grown in 6-inch pots, for three flowers of H. E. Converse and for a collection of single chrysanthemums.

H. S. Ladew, of Glen Cove; James Ecle, of Colenso; Ben. Allmond, Thomas Twigg, A. Richardson and P. Charbonnian were elected to active membership and four applications were received.

Prizes are offered for three poinsettias, fifty violets and twenty-five carnations at the next meeting. J. M.

San Antonio, Tex.—P. A. Robertson has taken out a permit to build a greenhouse on Moore street.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—The Southwestern Iowa Horticultural Society will hold its annual meeting here December 3 to 5. Among the members of the trade who are scheduled to read papers are M. J. Graham, of Adel; Roy Wilcox, of Council Bluffs; C. G. Marshall, of Arlington, Neb.; G. D. Black, of Independence, and Wesley Greene, of Des Moines.

THERE IS BUT ONE SNAPDRAGON

worth while—and that is the light, Silvery Pink. It produces large spikes, it flowers freely and brings the top-notch price in the open market.

Whether you are a wholesale or a retail grower, you cannot possibly go wrong by planting a bench of this excellent variety. It will PAY YOU to do so. The following letter from S. J. Goddard speaks for itself:

October 19, 1912.

Mr. Geo. E. Buxton, Nashua, N. H.

Dear Sir: Your light pink Snapdragon I consider the best color of any I have grown. Just the shade of a Killarney rose and one that the ladies like. I have watched all the pink ones that are sent to the Boston market, but they are away behind your variety. I am growing your variety now entirely.

Very truly yours, S. J. Goddard.

The Market.

For the last three weeks business has been the dullest we have experienced for some time. The weather has been too fine for the good of the florists. Funeral work has been short. Mums are at their best and the supply is more than equal to the demand. Beauties and roses have been plentiful and some first-class stock is to be obtained. Carnations are improving daily, but the call is light. Hudson river violets and home-grown singles have been selling well. Valley and orchids have also been moving. The pot plant trade has been light, while there are some first-class Lorraines, cyclamens and pot mums to be had.

Various Notes.

Bertermann Bros. Co. is getting along nicely with the new conservatory and expects to have it completed in a couple of weeks.

Henry Rieman had an accident recently with his new Flanders delivery car. The car skidded on the wet pavement into a milk wagon, but the damage was not great.

W. H. Elverson, of the W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., spent a few days with the trade here last week.

B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, has been shipping quantities of mums to this market.

A. Wiegand & Sons have been busy with decorations lately.

The Smith & Young Co. has been sending in some first-class roses from the Cumberland plant.

Hartje & Elder have a fine lot of late mums for Thanksgiving.

The Hill-Heller Co. reports good results from the Saturday sales of dollar boxes of flowers.

John Grande has had a fine lot of pot mums, which found ready sale.

Cyclamen and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine ARE TWO OF OUR SPECIALTIES

We have one house of Cyclamen, 200 feet long, with fine plants in 4-in. and 6-in. pots, well budded, in bloom now and for later blooming, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in. pots, $6.00, $9.00 and $12.00 per doz.

Begonia Lorraine, one house, 1500 plants in fine shape now, but will make specimen stock for Christmas, 6-in. pots, $6.00 and $9.00 per doz.

Primula Obconica, the finest strain, 4-in. pots, $1.20 per doz.; 5-in. pots, $2.00 per doz.

Primula Chinensis, 5-in. pots, $2.00 per doz. In bud and bloom now.

Pot Chrysanthemums, in 6-in. pots Major Bonnaillon and White Ivory, $3.00 per doz.

Dracaena Terminalis, 4-in., fine plants, 35c each.

Latania Borbonica, 3-in. pots, fine for fern dishes, $1.00 doz.

Ficus Elastica, 6-in. pots, 24 in. high, 40c each; 7-in. pots, very strong, 75c each.

We have a limited number of Hydrangeas to offer before we start to force them for Easter. Remember that Easter next year comes early, and if you want them to force, you had better get them now before it is too late. Fine pot-grown stock, 6-in. pots, 4 to 6 shoots, 25c each. Fine field-grown stock, very heavy plants, potted in 6-in., 7-in. and 8-in. pots Sept. 1st, 25c, 40c and 50c each.

We also will have to offer next month, 1000 Azaleas, Mme. Petrick (pink), Ver-vaeneana (variegated), and 2000 Poinsettias in 4-in., 5-in. and made-up 8-in. pans with Asparagus Plumosus, that will be in bloom for Christmas.

Florists Look! Prosperity! Prosperity! Prosperity!

PREPARE FOR THANKSGIVING AND THE HOLIDAYS

Election is now over, the country is settled, Godfrey Aschmann elected with a big majority. At last prosperity has arrived. Fill and stock up your houses now with the best for the Holidays; turn your pennies into dollars.

WHEN THE VOTE WAS COUNTED.

When they counted the vote there could be no mistake,
Godfrey Aschmann was at head of the poll.
The Bull Moose was nowhere and Debs was a fake,
While Taft was left in a hole.

Not one of lot ever knew how to pot
Up a plant in the way it should grow.
The contest was hot. Who said it was not?
No one else had a ghost of a show.

Aschmann showed us his charms, then back to their farms
His competitors scurried in haste,
His Araucarias, Ferns, Azaleas and Palms
Appealed to all who had taste.

Said the Florists all around, "None better are found,
We're for Aschmann down to our last cent."
With volumes of sound to his house they're bound
To stock up with the best, their intent.

And they sing, as they go, "Our old friend is not slow,
He's on top of the heap, all his rivals below."

Look and see what Mr. Fred J. Michell, of the so well-known firm, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has to say about our plant, Sept. 14, 1912:

"I have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me. I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Ferns of all sizes and varieties and prices, Rubbers, Palms, Azaleas and all other seasonable plants ready for shipment, as are at present at Mr. Godfrey Aschmann's."

"Saskatchewan Greenhouses, E. J. Coster, Prop., Prince Albert, Sask., Can., Oct. 29, 1912. Godfrey Aschmann, Esq., Philadelphia, Pa. Dear sir: Your shipment of $33.60 worth of ferns Oct. 23rd arrived in first-class shape, and I beg to state that I never bought as good ferns at the price in my life, and I have been buying them for over sixteen years. Now I am coming back to you for some more stuff, if you treat me as well as you have done this last time. Yours truly, E. J. COSTER."

ARAUCARIAS

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings, spring importation, 1911. 6 to 7-in. pots, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 6, 7, 8 to 9 tiers, 25, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 to $2.00 each.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised in Belgium, from top cuttings, spring importation, 1912, 5, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 2 to 3-year-old, 3, 4 to 5 tiers, 14, 16, 18, 20 to 25 inches high, 40c, 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Araucaria Excelsa Glauca and Excelsa specimen plants, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

BEGONIAS

AZALEA INDICA

New importation, unpacked and in first-class condition, full of buds. We have the finest Petrick, the best early pink, full of buds, as round as an apple, a child can bring them into bloom for Christmas, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, double white, Simon Mardner, double pink, Vervaeana, double rose variegated (one of the best old standard varieties), Pharailde Mathilde, white, rose striped, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. For later and for Easter blooming we only imported the well known American varieties, such as Mme. Vander Cruyssen, Paul Weber, Niobe, John Llewellyn, Apollo, DeSchryveriana and a few others (the Christmas varieties also can be kept for Easter very easily), 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.80 to $2.00.

HINTS TO AZALEA BUYERS. Our azaleas are invoiced at the Philadelphia custom house, 10x12, 12x14, 14x16, 16x18, 18x20, 20x22. But look, here is the critical point. If we should sell azaleas by measurement, and then ship them to buyers under measurement given to the custom house, most of the parties would not accept them. Azaleas are not grown in a mould, all differ in size under the same measurement. One party expects a big bunch for his money, another is satisfied with a medium size; some parties take their measurements differently from others and measure 12 in. head for 8 or 10 in. A medium size azalea, full of buds, is certainly worth as much as a large unshapely one with only a few buds. Therefore we use our own judgment in selling azaleas; we price them according to their appearance. We do justice to all by giving them good value for their money without giving them the measurements. For example, you send us 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 or more, you shall get the full value for your money. But look, Brother, the importing of azaleas is no more profitable, fully 50 to 60% is paid on their arrival for duty, freight, hauling (packing charges, $2.00 to $2.50 for every 100 azaleas), duty on packing, etc., our free packing here, and our employees want their money on Saturday; therefore the running of our business costs money. So, kindly excuse us if we ask you to send check with the order as we absolutely dare not run any chances with imported goods like azaleas, on which there is so little profit. Only old customers of long standing are excused. The rule applies to both dormant and blooming azaleas.

MISCELLANEOUS PLANTS

Ficus Elastica (rubber plant), Belgian or American stock, 5½, 5½, 6-in. pots, 30c, 40c, 50c; 7-in., 75c.

EL PASO, ILL.

The El Paso Carnation Co., Inc., has for its officers: President, Dr. R. E. Gordon; treasurer, L. K. Evans; secretary and general manager, C. L. W. Snyder. The establishment now consists of eleven greenhouses, containing about 30,000 square feet of glass. Three of the houses, each 30x100, are in carnations. One of the same size is in roses and one in chrysanthemums. Another house is used for violets, one for palms and ferns and another for pot stock. The remaining houses are used for sweet peas and miscellaneous material for the retail trade. The business is in its seventh year. Mr. Snyder, who is a stockholder as well as manager, has been with the establishment since the plant was started, originally with three houses. The retail end of the business has increased rapidly, especially in the last two years. Recently the heating system has been almost entirely remodeled, and a 6-inch Davis pressure regulator installed, so that now an unvarying pressure is had in the steam coils, regardless of how boiler pressure varies. A workroom 14x90, with a concrete floor, extends across the ends of three houses, with a propagating house at the north of the workroom. The plant is lighted by electricity, using forty Tungsten lamps. Water is taken from the gutters into a concrete reservoir 8x8x52, also under glass, having a capacity of 1,000 barrels. A heavy plank platform covers the reservoir and on it the boarders are kept. A private siding enables coal to be unloaded directly from the cars into the bunkers.

Mr. Snyder also is florist for the T. P. & W. R. R., his division extending across the state from Sheldon to Hamilton. He is responsible for the flower beds at the station grounds along the line.

Battle Creek, Mich.—Joseph Case and W. Kleckner have opened a flower store at 179 West Main street. Though both members of the firm are young men, they do not lack experience in the trade. Mr. Case spent two years in the employ of the H. A. Fisher Co., in this city. The new store will be known as the Flower Shop.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubes, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubes cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubes in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When In Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubes. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubes (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubes. They are strong and healthy.

BARGAINS IN BOSTONS.

I have left now about 400 fine Bostons from bench for 6-in. pots, many should go into 7-in. pots; to clean these out of my propagating benches I am offering at the low rate of 20c each, 50 for $9.00. There are also some Whitmani compacta (the new Whitmani), for 5-in. pots, at 20c. Have about 25 old Whitmani for 6-in. at 25c. In potted stock I have some extra fine, bushy plants of Whitmani compacta in 6 and 7-in. pots, these would make extra fine plants for your Xmas sales, price 40c and 60c each. Bostons in 6 and 7-in. pots, extra fine, 35c and 50c each. All above stock is absolutely guaranteed to please. Cash or reference. See cyclamen adv. in another column.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Special attention to long distance orders. Lowest express rates and delivery in good condition guaranteed to any part of the country. Some of many testimonials: "I had 3000 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants last fall. They began to bloom in February, and from then on were a sight; immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 for next fall and possibly more of the same giant mixture." F. E. Peckham, Norwick, Conn. "Pansy plants are strong, sturdy, well rooted; have bought of you for the last four years and never saw such a variety of colors. I used to buy the very best seeds and plants possible, but have never had any to equal yours." C. C. Wonneman, Mexico, Mo. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Cash.

Lowell, Mich.—G. W. Kennedy, who is located on a farm one mile north of town, expects to use the land for the production of vegetables and citrus fruits, using glass and the Skinner system of irrigation. This season he has been using frames, but he proposes to have a modern vegetable house next year.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—The Porter-Walton Co. had one of the largest and best exhibits in the horticultural and floricultural department of the Utah State Fair. It was the most extensive exhibit from a private concern and included seeds, fruits, vegetables and flowers. The Vogeler Seed & Produce Co. also had a fine display of vegetables.

ORANGE, N. J.

A white chrysanthemum thirty-seven inches in circumference was one of the ten varieties exhibited by Amos C. Van Gaasbeek at the eighteenth annual show of the New Jersey Floricultural Society, held November 8. This display, which was grown by John Dervan, won the first prize. Sidney M. and Austen Colgate were given second award.

The prize offered by Joseph Manda for the best centerpiece was won by Charles Hathaway, of East Orange. The prize offered for the best six vases of single chrysanthemums was won by Mrs. William Barr, of Llewellyn Park, with Charles C. Goodrich second.

In the monthly competition for points awards were made as follows: Lager & Hurrell, Summit, orchids, 85 points; Essex County Country Club, vase of chrysanthemums, 60 points; bunch of violets, 40 points; Chas. Hathaway, vase of chrysanthemums, 75 points; bunch of violets, 40 points; vase of carnations, 70 points; S. M. and A. Colgate, vase of roses, 70 points; carnations, 75 points; Mrs. Barr, roses, 55 points; orchids, 70 points; Mr. Goodrich, vase of roses, 70 points; vase of carnations, 65 points.

In the class not for competition certificates were awarded as follows: Essex County Country Club, three vases of seedling chrysanthemums, cultural certificate; A. C. Van Gaasbeek, vase of chrysanthemums, first class certificate; Chas. Hathaway, plate of quinces, cultural certificate; pot of celosia, certificate of merit; standard chrysanthemum, cultural certificate; bush chrysanthemum, certificate of merit; S. M. and A. Colgate, vase of carnations, certificate of merit; Mrs. Barr, collection of seedling chrysanthemums, cultural certificate; Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, vase of roses, certificate of merit; C. C. Goodrich, vase of chrysanthemums, certificate of merit; vase of chrysanthemums, cultural certificate; Walter D. Sargent, orchids, cultural certificate. This was Mr. Sargent's first exhibit as a member of the society. He is a resident of Hutton Park, West Orange.

A committee was named for the annual dinner of the society, which will probably be held the third Wednesday in January, and will be followed by a dance. The committee appointed is John Dervan, chairman; Walter M. Gray, William Read, George Wright and Frank Drews.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Work of the Committees.

The seedling committees of the C. S. A. have scored the varieties which came before them as follows:

TRAVIS GREENHOUSE ROCKER GRATES

For hard, continuous, economical firing, with a small amount of attention, use the Travis Rocker Grates. It is no longer necessary to experiment with rocker grates. Your neighbor can tell you what make of rocker grate he has and you can quickly decide where you can get a rocker grate that will, or will not, answer your purpose. Let us send you names of customers who are now using our grates. The best advertisement is a satisfied customer. We want our grates to tell their own story. We have proven to many greenhouse operators that they have been wasting time, patience and fuel, while using either stationary or poorly constructed rocker grates. There is nothing gained in neglecting your grates, which are the vital point of your range. Every cold winter night your mind is centered on your fire. What is the condition of your grates? Can you control them? We guarantee that you will feel confident of getting the very best results obtainable when using our grates.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

SIZE OF BOILER.

Kindly let me know what would be the necessary horse-power of a tubular steam boiler to heat 25,000 square feet of glass here, in central Illinois.

E. R.

The size of the boiler will vary with the temperature desired. While one rated at fifty horse-power would answer when 45 to 50 degrees is needed, it will be advisable to have at least sixty horse-power if a temperature of 60 degrees is to be maintained, and the capacity of the boiler should be proportionately increased for higher temperatures.

AMOUNT OF RADIATION.

Will you kindly let me know the number of square feet of radiation required for a plant house having approximately 5,000 square feet of glass? The house measures 40x60 and the ridge is about twenty-five feet above the floor. Steam heat will be used, under about five pounds of pressure. The piping will consist of wrought-iron pipe coils, made of 1 1/4-inch pipe, with the coils one pipe high. A temperature of 70 degrees inside is desired, and this should be maintained when the outside

"Detroit" RETURN TRAPS

will add to the efficiency of Your Heating System and Reduce Your Coal Bills.

To keep steam coils drained of condensation leaves full area of pipes for the transmission of heat—hence more efficient heating system. To automatically return that condensation directly to the boiler before its valuable heat is lost makes for a more efficient boiler. "Detroit" Traps do both.

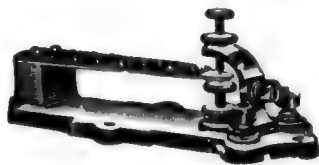

Bulletin No. 326-WF tells how it is done. Yours upon request.

WATERLOO, IA.

The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Northeastern Iowa Horticultural Society was held in the city hall, November 12 to 14, and was well attended. An extensive and interesting program had been arranged. Cash prizes were offered for exhibits of fruit and flowers. Among the members of the trade who participated in the program were the following: G. D. Black, of Independence, president of the association; Elmer M. Reeves, of Waverly; W. H. Guilford, Dubuque; W. A. Bur-nap, Clear Lake; Ernest G. Patten, Charles City; M. H. Wetherbee, Charles City; J. D. Finnerty, Waterloo; Isaac Johnson, West Union; B. F. Ferris, Hampton; Wesley Greene, Des Moines; Chas. G. Patten, Charles City; H. R. Brown, Cedar Falls.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, E. Blackeman, Decorah; vice-president, Geo. Woodruff, Independence; secretary, G. E. Black, Independence; treasurer, Chas. H. True, Edgewood. Board of directors—First district, Chas. F. Gardner; second district, Chas. D. Patten; third district, John Harter; fourth district, A. Le Fevre; fifth district, E. M. Reeves; sixth district, Earl Ferris.

It was decided to hold the next annual meeting of the society at Waverly, one year from the date of the present meeting.

Battle Creek, Mich.—The Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Co. has nearly completed the erection of a large greenhouse.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—Carl Purdy, of Ukiah, Cal., was a recent visitor here, inspecting the gardens of the Leedham Bulb Co. and making other calls. He says business is excellent. The Leedham Bulb Co. is exceedingly busy shipping gladiolus and Calla Elliottiana bulbs, and is also planting heavily this season. The representatives of the Holland bulb growers seem to be arriving here early this year.

ATLANTA, GA.

It is a pleasure to send in a report of the Atlanta market, for the reason that, as Queen City of the South, her name is synonymous with progress, and we have a right to be proud of our flower people—they are second to none.

The Atlanta Floral Co. has had an especially busy week. Their fine lot of carnations has enabled them to cut about two months earlier than in previous seasons. They are much gratified with the Dolly Dimple chrysanthemum; its color, size and keeping qualities recommend it to the trade.

The demand for roses for fall weddings and other social affairs has been cared for by the C. A. Dahl Co., whose fine cuttings of these flowers are well known.

W. A. Hollingsworth reports a considerable increase in his business. Recently a shipment of carnations was sent to Jacksonville, Fla., by this house, for a reception given in that city.

To meet the increasing demands of trade, the Alto-Vista Floral Co. has added another greenhouse and installed an $800 boiler. These improvements indicate that they are well satisfied with their success.

The West View Floral Co. has a fine lot of carnations and reports a heavy demand for all stock, especially for chrysanthemums. No less than 5,000 large yellow chrysanthemums were supplied by this firm for the golden wedding celebration of Col. and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, of this city.

The Nunnally Co. has had all it could do to meet demands.

Mr. Wachendorff, of Wachendorff Bros., says the fine weather has helped things out right along with them.

J. P. Matthiessen does a nice business on the Circle.

The foregoing items of news only give a slight idea of what Atlanta florists are doing to sustain the reputation of their progressive city by their splendid manner of handling an ever growing market. Neighboring cities, too, now recognize that Atlanta's flowers not only can be secured when needed, but are among the finest.

THE SOIL CARRIER IN USE.

SAVES TIME, LABOR ^A_ND MONEY

We call your attention to our Gravity Carriers for conveying soil into and out of greenhouses. You are aware of the great amount of labor necessary for changing the loam in your benches. It requires but a few feet of our Gravity Carriers to reduce this expense.

Carriers are made in eight and four foot sections, which can be instantly joined; the rollers are of the best seamless steel tubing, ball bearing, and are 14 inches in length by 2 1/4 inches in diameter. Cut shows how they operate.

A run of carrier is set up with one end projecting through a window and a cart containing the loam is placed at this end. The loam is shoveled into the boxes, which are pushed or conveyed by gravity into the house and dumped into the benches. Empty boxes are pushed back to cart over same run of carrier. When the beds within a convenient radius are filled, the carrier is set up at another window and the work continues until all benches are filled. For removing soil the process is, of course, similar.

We shall be pleased to furnish further details relative to construction and durability of the carriers; also, upon receipt of information relative to size of your greenhouses, furnish an estimate of the cost of a system for your requirements.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business last week was fully as good as for the week previous, and the opening days for this week were rushing. The weather, which is ideal, undoubtedly helps stimulate trade to some extent, although social functions have been the order of the day for a fortnight. In commenting on the supply of cut flowers for Thanksgiving, from all appearances, if the weather stays bright and the nights cold, the supply in all lines will come up to the demand, no matter how brisk that may be. The quality, too, will be fine.

Various Notes.

With the A. F. Kellner Co. it never rains but it pours. All are busy as bees trying to finish up outside planting and other outdoor work, but a good demand for interior decorations is claiming considerable time.

J. M. Fox & Son are working on the details for the decorations for the annual Charity Ball, to take place December 3 at the Auditorium. This is one of the main social functions of the season, and creates a good demand for cut flowers and decorative stock.

From the M. A. McKenney Co. comes the report of a busy week. It is claimed that the firm has had its share of business for the season thus far.

As no one has heard from either Mr. or Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, who are on their annual hunting trip, they must be having the time of their lives. They were expected back Tuesday, November 19.

Fred Holton, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., could not break away from St. Paul till two days after the flower show. He reports a fine exhibition and the hospitality still finer.

Mrs. J. T. Hinchliff and Mrs. Miller, both of Racine, Wis., were up last week to take up the matter of their Thanksgiving supply.

A. Reinhard, of North Milwaukee, successor to A. Groth, is cutting carnations and Bonnaffons which are of fine quality. The place never looked better.

E. O.

The Holton & Hunkel Greenhouse Co. has increased its capital from $50,000 to $125,000.

Pekin, Ill.—William Schantz has completed his new greenhouse and has stocked it with lettuce and carnations.

For Ornamentalsness No Greenhouse Equals the U-Bar

This is the U-Bar—the Bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the famous greenhouses they are.

At a glance that's apparent. The reason is the U-Bar. To put it another way: you can put a gold-plated harness on a heavy draft horse and hitch him to a swell little runabout—but with all his trappings he ambles along draft-horse fashion just the same. So, by the same token, putting a curved eave on a greenhouse does not make it a U-Bar curved eave house. A U-Bar house is distinctly different, and it's the U-Bar that makes it so. Send for the catalogue and find out just why.

Electric Commercial Vehicles cut the delivery cost from 8-2/5 cents to 6-2/5 cents for Macy & Company—one of New York's department stores.

Think of it—far greater efficiency, inestimable advertising and 25% saved!

Figures Tell the Story

A large Cleveland department store has 8 Electric Delivery Wagons in service, making its package delivery over a large area of the city's paved and unpaved streets. In December, 1911, 247 deliveries were made daily, the actual cost for each package delivered being but 2.7 cents. The Denver Gas & Electric Co. supplanted a horse wagon with a 1000-lb. Electric. It did 21.9 per cent more work, at practically the same cost of operation.

What One Company Did

The Ward Bread Co. operates 200 Electric Delivery Wagons in Greater New York. The average cost of operation per mile per vehicle during the unfavorable weather from January to March, 1912, was $.0466. The efficiency was 98-83/100 per cent—and this during winter!

Electrics in Widespread Use

Everywhere you will find Electrics where cost is considered and swift, sure and silent delivery is wanted. The Adams Express Company, the American Express Company, Marshall Field & Co., Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Gimbel Brothers are all using Electrics with great success and are putting more and more of them into service.

Investigate the Electric Now

There is a full 80% of trackless city haulage that Electrics can do cheapest and best. You can't afford to be satisfied with your present delivery system until you have investigated and found out what Electrics can do for you. THE ART OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT

By FRED C. W. BROWN

THE CONVENTIONAL IN ART.

Its Rules and Limitations.

We meet with many different styles of designs, and designers, in our work. We find one store where loose and airy work is always turned out, no matter what the design, and in another place we find only close and severe outline. It makes little difference which form of work you get your trade accustomed to, or what may be your manner of arrangement, so long as you retain proportion, whether in a natural cluster or a conventional design.

Just here we should like to define the word "conventional."

What Is a Conventional Design?

By a conventional design we mean a design that embodies in its detail a principle of accurate proportion. Thus, a wreath is a complete circle, and if it is divided into halves, the two parts will be found to be equal in a general way. A square, also, is conventional, for it is composed of four straight lines of equal length, joined together so that the points are at equal distances within the line of a circle. A triangle is the same, only that the lines and points are three, as the name implies, instead of four.

Then let us remember that if we are portraying some conventional design, we must not wander too far away from our original form.

Mr. Brown will be pleased to answer, as this series of articles progresses, any criticisms or questions that may occur to his readers. The first article of the series was printed in the issue of October 10. The next installment will appear in an early issue.

The Inner and Outer Circles.

In the illustration on the next page we see a wreath that has been built all out of proportion, though the conventional lines have been retained. The inner circle is far too small; there is too great a difference between the inner and outer circles. The eye is pleased with the outer line, but between its generous size and the small inner space the difference is so great as to cause a lack of harmony. If we try the effect of greater inner space, as shown in the upper picture on page 13, thus commanding more respect for our smaller circle, we shall find the story much better told and the mind is not taxed to make the connection between such extreme differences.

The observance of such principles is at the foundation of your work. Build well your foundation, for on this depends the success of your finished article.

An Unfortunate Tendency.

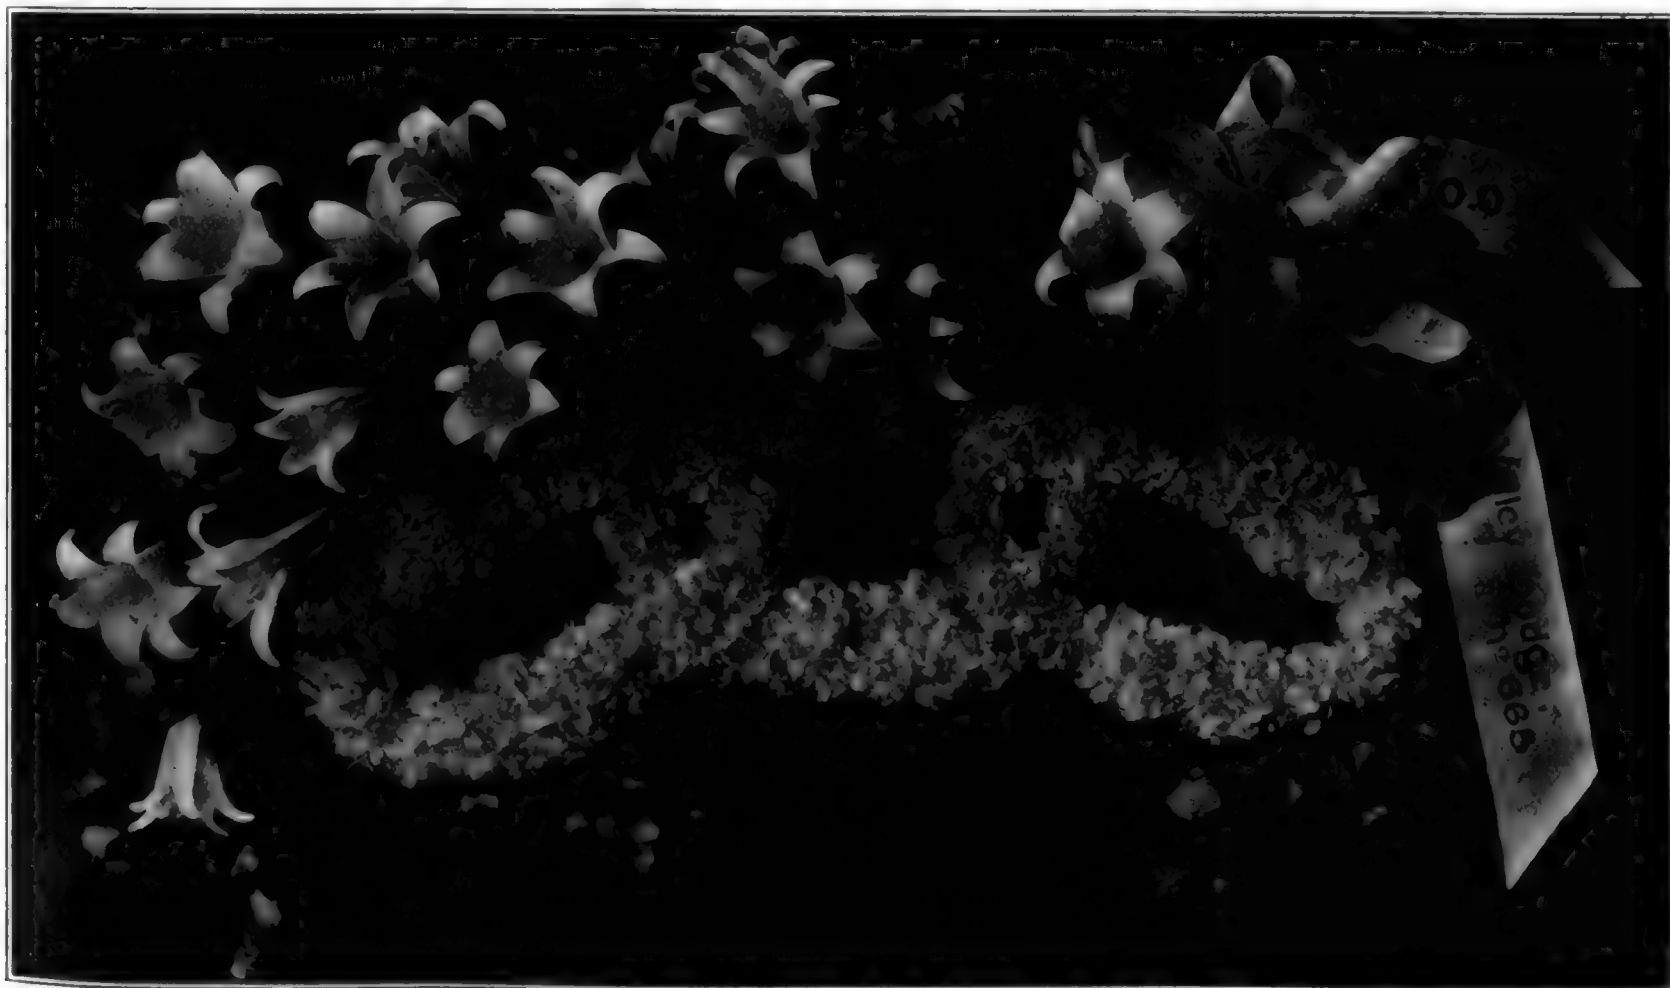

There seems, unfortunately, at the present time to be a tendency to overdo work, and many of our designers believe they have reached the height of perfection when they have taken the wire shape of some standard form and so covered it that it is necessary to secure the services of an interpreter to explain its meaning. We hear, in defense, that this is "the modern method." But you are not dealing with modern principles; you may be dealing with modern interests or high lights, but the principles of your foundation are as old as the understanding of art by man. Your form is conventional, and while you use the conventional form for your foundations you must retain its principles.

Unrecognizable Without a Label.

You may wander as far as your fancy pleases in your opposition or high light, so long as you retain proportion, but you must be conventional in things conventional. A designer's individuality will show itself conspicuously in his opposition or high light, but his ignorance will glare from a violation of the conventional. You have your opposition in which to work in your own feeling, but your main body is something you are portraying. Do it well, or you will find yourself in the class with the boy who drew a picture and had to use for its title, "This is a pig," or it might have been mistaken for a goat.

We are often called on to supply floral emblems in the form of some society design or badge. Be faithful to the demands that are made on you, and remember that you can carry art into this work and help a great deal in removing its objectionable features.

A Commendable Form for the Three Links Design.

A Commendable Form for the Three Links Design.

The Odd Fellows' Design.

The Odd Fellows' design shown in the first of the three illustrations contains many redeeming features. In the first place, the intricate reproductions of emblems and badges are shown to much better advantage and with greater profit by outlining them on some such arrangement as a panel. We should like you to note the ribbon with its lettering, which seems about the most pleasing way of supplying the too prevailing demand for lettering on designs.

Just a few words about ribbons: Ribbons are of a wonderful value in our business, but it seems to the writer that if a few of us could realize that ours is a business of flowers and not for the advancement of millinery accessories, it would be to our decided advantage.

I should like to warn you as to the use of letters on designs. Personally, ture that had been selected and allow the use of a single line. The quotation chosen was, "Lord, she was thine," which was duly put on the ribbon by the use of the usual stick-on letters. In the delivery the moisture got in its work, and the piece arrived at its destination minus the "e" in "thine." The explanations that followed were never quite satisfactory.

Fred C. W. Brown.

GOING THE LIMIT.

Of course it is a neat plan of the retail florist to please the customer by delivering with an auto—within a reasonable distance—but when the customer appreciates such service to the extent of asking over a 100-mile drive, that's when it comes pretty near to being the limit. The other day our firm, in order to please a good customer, had to send the delivery auto from Toledo to Bryan, O., a distance of fifty-six miles along the railroad line, each way, making a record drive of 112 miles, to deliver flowers to a may be done on a comparatively small table with good effect. It is the work of John Mangel, Chicago. He placed his flowers in a sufficiently tall vase to carry the mass of the decoration above the eyes of those seated at the table. This necessitated a decoration on the cloth; and to prevent overdecorating this was confined to one long-stemmed Beauty extending from the center, with the flower facing each plate.

THE AMERICAN SHOWS.

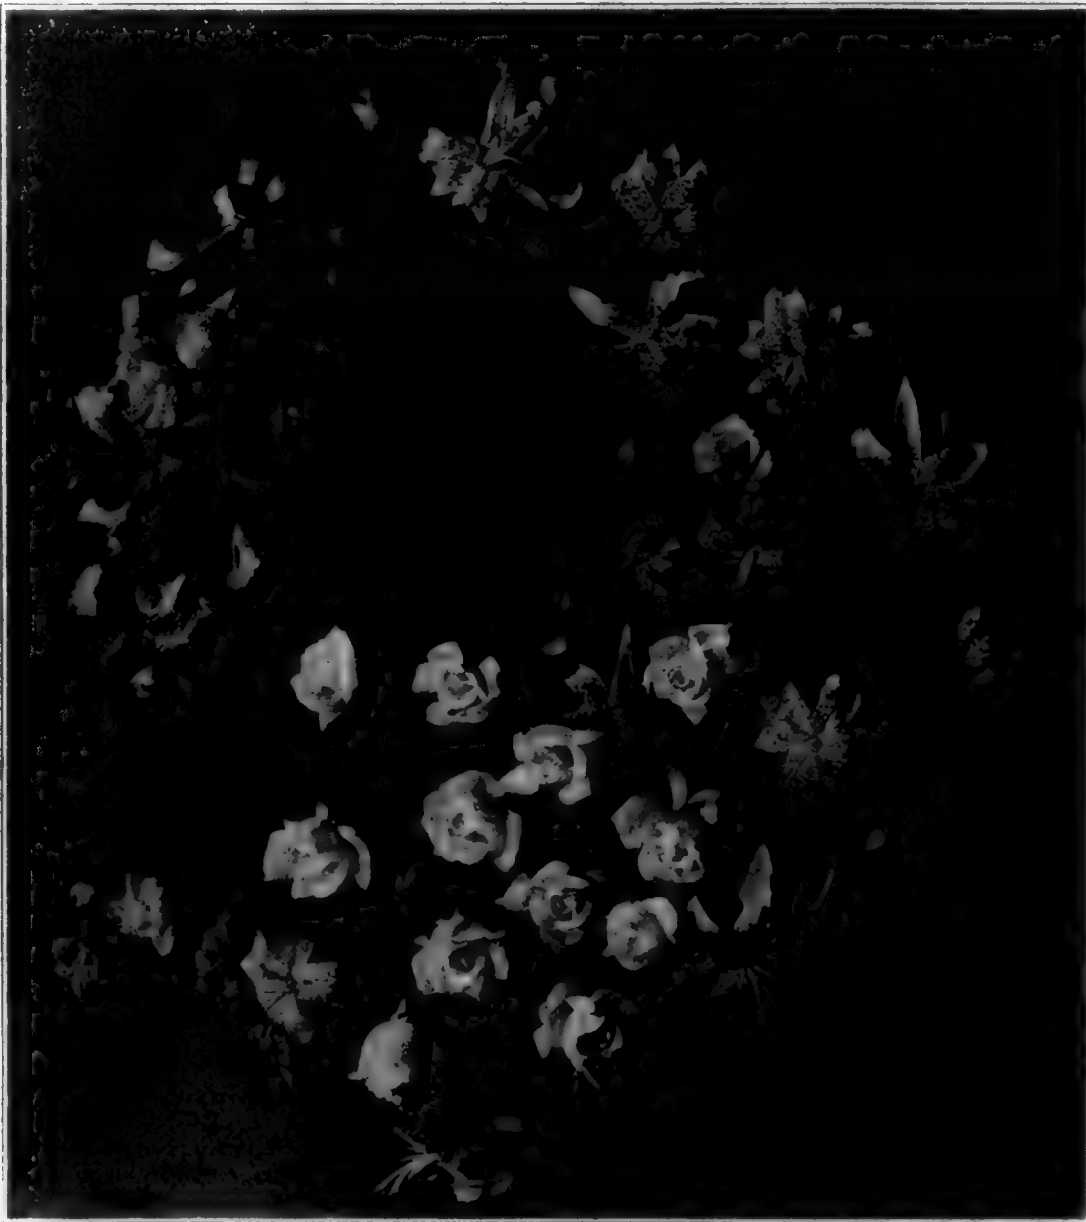

It was with keen interest that an exhibitor at many English shows for the first time visited an American show, the horticultural exhibition at Toronto, and perhaps it may interest some of your readers for me to say how it impressed me, and where I thought it weak compared with some of the good shows in the Old Country. The entrance, artistic in design, and the beautiful buildings enclosed in well composed and laid out grounds, all go to make an excellent place for such a purpose. On entering the exhibition building itself the same feeling occurs, and those who are interested ought to feel happy to find such a place as a setting for their exhibits.

In the floral exhibits I felt the most disappointed. There was not the competition I had expected to find, and, speaking in general of all the exhibits, they seemed to be so carelessly staged that they were not made to look nearly so attractive as they might have been. I refer to the competitive classes mostly. Again, by separating a class by putting a vase on one bench and a vase in the same class on another bench, it made it impossible to follow the awards, losing much interest. Some of the exhibits certainly possessed much merit; the floral designs appeared to me strikingly attractive. These were not given the space or position, to my thinking, to do them the justice they deserved. Roses might have been made much more attractive if they had been staged lower, so that there would not be the risk of injuring the neck in trying to see the flowers instead of looking at the long, prickly stems and ugly vases. The same applies in some ways to the mums, for on the day of my visit the lower petals were not the most pleasing part of them. I certainly prefer mums in vases to boxes, but if they are to please those who pay to go and see them, they should be made to look as attractive as possible. In the Old Country, arrangement is the deciding factor.

Carnations I never saw look less pleasing, perhaps owing to the vases being unsuitable, but a good lot could have been done in better arrangement and staging.

Seeing this was a fruit and flower exhibition, decorated tables might have had fruit introduced with great advantage.

It struck me as rather curious having different sized tables, some with cloths, some without. I wondered if exhibitors had to find their own tables and if the prize was enticing enough. The flower trade does not seem to have that keenness for putting up a creditable exhibit that the shows in the old land do; they are helped and made attractive by firms that consider it one of the best ways to make and gain business. Fruit appeared to me to be the most progressive. Perhaps the plate fruit was the most pleasing to the eye. If prizes the writer thinks letters in bad taste, but competition compels us to do many things we would prefer not to do.

A Story of a Lost Letter.

I should also like to warn you against the use of letters on ribbons, or you might find yourself in the plight of the Pennsylvania florist who had a call from a deputation of ladies who desired to order a wreath for one of their number who had passed away. After considerable argument, they were persuaded to cut down the verse of Scrip-funeral. The absurdity of the distance was offset only by some parcels which could be dropped off en route, at the towns of Swanton, Archbold and Elmira. If this keeps up, let us go back to the use of the horse and wagon for delivery.

BEAUTIES ON THE TABLE.

Every now and then a customer insists on having American Beauty roses and nothing else on the table. The accompanying illustration shows how it could be offered to have flowers arranged with them, I think the public would show their appreciation much more by their presence in larger numbers. Flowers and fruit should complement each other. I feel sure I shall be excused if I thought they did not.

Brampton, Ont. A. A. Elliott.

PRIMULA OBCONICA.

Can you give me any light on the following through the columns of The Review? Last February I planted some Primula obconica seeds. The plants are rather backward, but are showing a good, sturdy growth at the present time. A number of them are in 4-inch and 4½-inch pots, but none of them are showing any signs of buds. Does obconica ever come blind? Is there anything I can do to improve matters?
W. B.

Plants in the size of pots mentioned should certainly now be throwing some flowers. I have not had any experience with obconicas coming blind, and believe that while occasional plants might do so, it would be most unlikely in an entire batch. There is a small, dark worm, closely resembling a cutworm, which for several years has attacked and eaten the hearts out of large quantities of these plants. This worm works little on the foliage, and its damage might go unnoticed unless the hearts of the plants are examined. I have an idea this may be responsible for the condition of your plants. The worm in question gets in its work mostly in July and August, and frequent hand picking, as well as dusting air-slaked lime about the crowns of the plants and between the pots, is necessary to keep the damage to a minimum. I have also found that spraying the plants with nicotine once a week works well. Your plants will no doubt flower, but will be a little late. Give them a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night and, if the pots are well filled with roots, use liquid manure once in four or five days.

DIGITALIS.

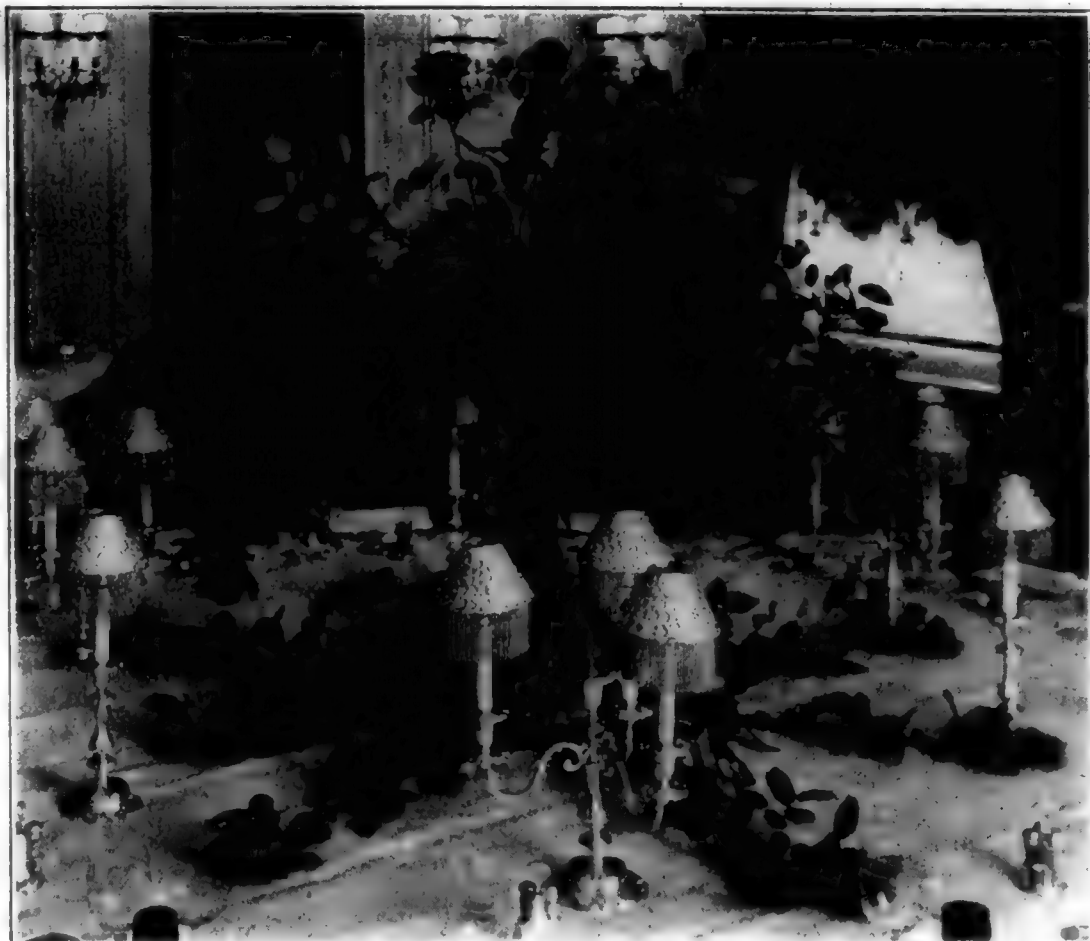

Do you know of any place where digitalis, the foxglove, is grown for its leaves for drug purposes? What of their value in that way? Does the trade expect to buy the plants in separate colors? Does it come true to color from seed?
V. R. F.

I do not know of any special place where digitalis leaves are grown for medicinal purposes. Large quantities of second-year leaves are, however, used for narcotic and other purposes. While the trade would no doubt prefer to have the colored and white digitalis offered separately, the colors harmonize so well that a good mixture of gloxiniæ-flora or Ivery's spotted is just as satisfactory in nearly every way as the separate varieties would be.

ORNAMENTAL GRASSES.

A friend in Mississippi will send me all the ornamental grasses I want, free, excepting freight charges. Would the kinds hardy in Mississippi transplant to northern Indiana and grow? If so, at what time would it be best to transplant, considering the difference in our seasons? Is the grass propagated by divisions? If it is best to transplant at this season, could it be shipped by freight if well packed?
V. R. F.

Some of the ornamental grasses, such as eulalias, would probably be hardy in your state. Not knowing the varieties, I could not give a decided opinion. Spring would be the best time to plant these outdoors, carrying them over winter in boxes in a cold house, cellar or frame. They should come along safely by freight, if carefully packed.

remember that you can carry art into this work and help a great deal in removing its objectionable features.

The Odd Fellows' Design.

The Odd Fellows' design shown in the first of the three illustrations contains many redeeming features. In the first place, the intricate reproductions of emblems and badges are shown to much better advantage and with greater profit by outlining them on some such arrangement as a panel. We should like you to note the ribbon with its lettering, which seems about the most pleasing way of supplying the too prevailing demand for lettering on designs.

Just a few words about ribbons: Ribbons are of a wonderful value in our business, but it seems to the writer that a few of us could realize that ours is a business of flowers and not for the advancement of millinery accessories. It would be to our decided advantage.

I should like to warn you as to the use of letters on designs. Personally, ture that had been selected and allow the use of a single line. The quotation chosen was, "Lord, she was thine," which was duly put on the ribbon by the use of the usual stick-on letters. In the delivery the moisture got in its work, and the piece arrived at its destination minus the "e" in "thine." The explanations that followed were never quite satisfactory.

Fred C. W. Brown.

GOING THE LIMIT.

Of course it is a neat plan of the retail florist to please the customer by delivering with an auto—within a reasonable distance—but when the customer appreciates such service to the extent of asking over a 100-mile drive, that's when it comes pretty near to being the limit. The other day our firm, in order to please a good customer, had to send the delivery auto from Toledo to Bryan, O., a distance of fifty-six miles along the railroad line, each way, making a record drive of 112 miles, to deliver flowers to a may be done on a comparatively small table with good effect. It is the work of John Mangel, Chicago. He placed his flowers in a sufficiently tall vase to carry the mass of the decoration above the eyes of those seated at the table. This necessitated a decoration on the cloth, and to prevent overdecorating this was confined to one long-stemmed beauty extending from the center, with the flower facing each plate.

THE AMERICAN SHOWS.

It was with keen interest that an exhibitor at many English shows for the first time visited an American show, the horticultural exhibition at Toronto, and perhaps it may interest some of your readers for me to say how it impressed me, and where I thought it weak compared with some of the good shows in the Old Country. The entrance, artistic in design, and the beautiful buildings enclosed in well composed and laid out grounds, all go to make an excellent place for such a purpose. On entering the exhibition building itself the same feeling occurs, and those who are interested ought to feel happy to find such a place as a setting for their exhibits.

In the floral exhibits I felt the most disappointed. There was not the competition I had expected to find, and, speaking in general of all the exhibits, they seemed to be so carelessly staged that they were not made to look nearly so attractive as they might have been. I refer to the competitive classes mostly. Again, by separating a class by putting a vase on one bench and a vase in the same class on another bench, it made it impossible to follow the awards, losing much interest. Some of the exhibits certainly possessed much merit; the floral designs appeared to me strikingly attractive. These were not given the space or position, to my thinking, to do them the justice they deserved. Roses might have been made much more attractive if they had been staged lower, so that there would not be the risk of injuring the neck in trying to see the flowers instead of looking at the long, prickly stems and ugly vases. The same applies in some ways to the mums, for on the day of my visit the lower petals were not the most pleasing part of them. I certainly prefer mums in vases to boxes, but if they are to please those who pay to go and see them, they should be made to look as attractive as possible. In the Old Country, arrangement is the deciding factor.

Carnations I never saw look less pleasing, perhaps owing to the vases being unsuitable, but a good lot could have been done in better arrangement and staging.

Seeing this was a fruit and flower exhibition, decorated tables might have had fruit introduced with great advantage.

It struck me as rather curious having different sized tables, some with cloths, some without. I wondered if exhibitors had to find their own tables and if the prize was enticing enough. The flower trade does not seem to have that keenness for putting up a creditable exhibit that the shows in the old land do; they are helped and made attractive by firms that consider it one of the best ways to make and gain business. Fruit appeared to me to be the most progressive. Perhaps the plate fruit was the most pleasing to the eye. If prizes the writer thinks letters in bad taste, but competition compels us to do many things we would prefer not to do.

A Story of a Lost Letter.

I should also like to warn you against the use of letters on ribbons, or you might find yourself in the plight of the Pennsylvania florist who had a call from a reputation of ladies who desired to order a wreath for one of their number who had passed away. After considerable argument, they were persuaded to cut down the verse of Scrip-funeral. The absurdity of the distance was offset only by some parcels which could be dropped off en route, at the towns of Swanton, Archbold and Elmira. If this keeps up, let us go back to the use of the horse and wagon for delivery.

PRIMULA OBCONICA.

Can you give me any light on the following through the columns of The Review? Last February I planted some Primula obconica seeds. The plants are rather backward, but are showing a good, sturdy growth at the present time. A number of them are in 4-inch and 4½-inch pots, but none of them are showing any signs of buds. Does obconica ever come blind? Is there anything I can do to improve them?
W. B.

Plants of the size of pots mentioned should certainly now be throwing some flowers. I have not had any experience with obconica as coming blind, and believe that while occasional plants might be so, it would be most unlikely in an entire batch. There is a small, dark worm, elongate, resembling a cutworm, which for several years has attacked and eaten the hearts out of large quantities of these plants. ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Vanda Cærulea.

Vanda cærulea should now be giving a nice lot of flowers. Do not keep it too warm; 55 to 58 degrees at night is sufficient. The plants flower better when given a position near the glass. Do not try to have them all a dark green color. It is usually the pale colored plants which flower the best. When the flowers are well expanded, stand them where they will not get the sun's rays, as these will soon take away the beautiful blue color from the flowers.

Cypripediums.

A close, moist atmosphere suits nearly all of the cypripediums. C. Spicerianum and a few other sorts are better kept at the cooler end of the house, but the family as a whole succeeds best in a rather stuffy atmosphere. C. insigne and its many varieties will now be coming into season; so also will C. Leeannum and a wealth of other varieties, and the most interesting period of the year with these is now at hand. Cypripediums never require any real resting, but it is now necessary to reduce the water supply somewhat.

Lælia Anceps.

Lælia anceps will soon be in flower, as will L. autumnalis. Some spikes on the latter are already open. Such as can be flowered for Christmas will make fancy prices, as orchid blooms apart from cypripediums are usually scarce at that time. The Mexican lælias should be grown at the colder end of the cattleya house, although they do well in even an ordinary greenhouse.

Phalænopsis.

The phalænopsis should be kept in a close, moist atmosphere, and air, when applied, should be given in chinks, so that it may be well warmed before reaching the plants. Be careful, as fire heat is used more freely, not to have any spots in the house where red spider can get a foothold. Sponge the leaves occasionally with soap and water.

Dendrobium.

Many of the nobles and hybrids, such as Ainsworthii, splendidissimum, Cybele, chrysotoxum and others, will now be resting in a bright, sunny house. On some of the earliest the nodes will now be quite prominent and such plants can be moved into a warm, moist house. Be careful, however, to water sparingly at the roots until the nodes are well advanced, or many will make growths instead of flowers.

Odontoglossums.

Full sunshine is what the odontoglossums need for the next three months. The leaves should take on a reddish hue and will then stand the hot summers better than if held over winter in a dark, cold house. Do not keep them too cool; 55 degrees at night is better for them than 45 degrees. Give a fair supply of water at the roots and give a light spraying over on clear mornings.

Cœlogyne Cristata.

Cœlogyne cristata wants a cool house all the time. It is no use trying to force it, any more than trying to force violets or mignonette. A temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night should not be exceeded and it will flower well grown 10 degrees cooler. As the flower spikes become prominent at the bases of the new bulbs, gradually decrease the water supply, but a light spraying once a week will be beneficial.

Cattleya Percivaliana.

Cattleya Percivaliana is of small size compared with labiata and Trianae. It sells well, however, at Christmas and for two or three weeks before that time, and as many plants as possible should be kept back until then. If flowered late, when C. Trianae is in season, C. Percivaliana is hard to move.

Cattleya Trianae.

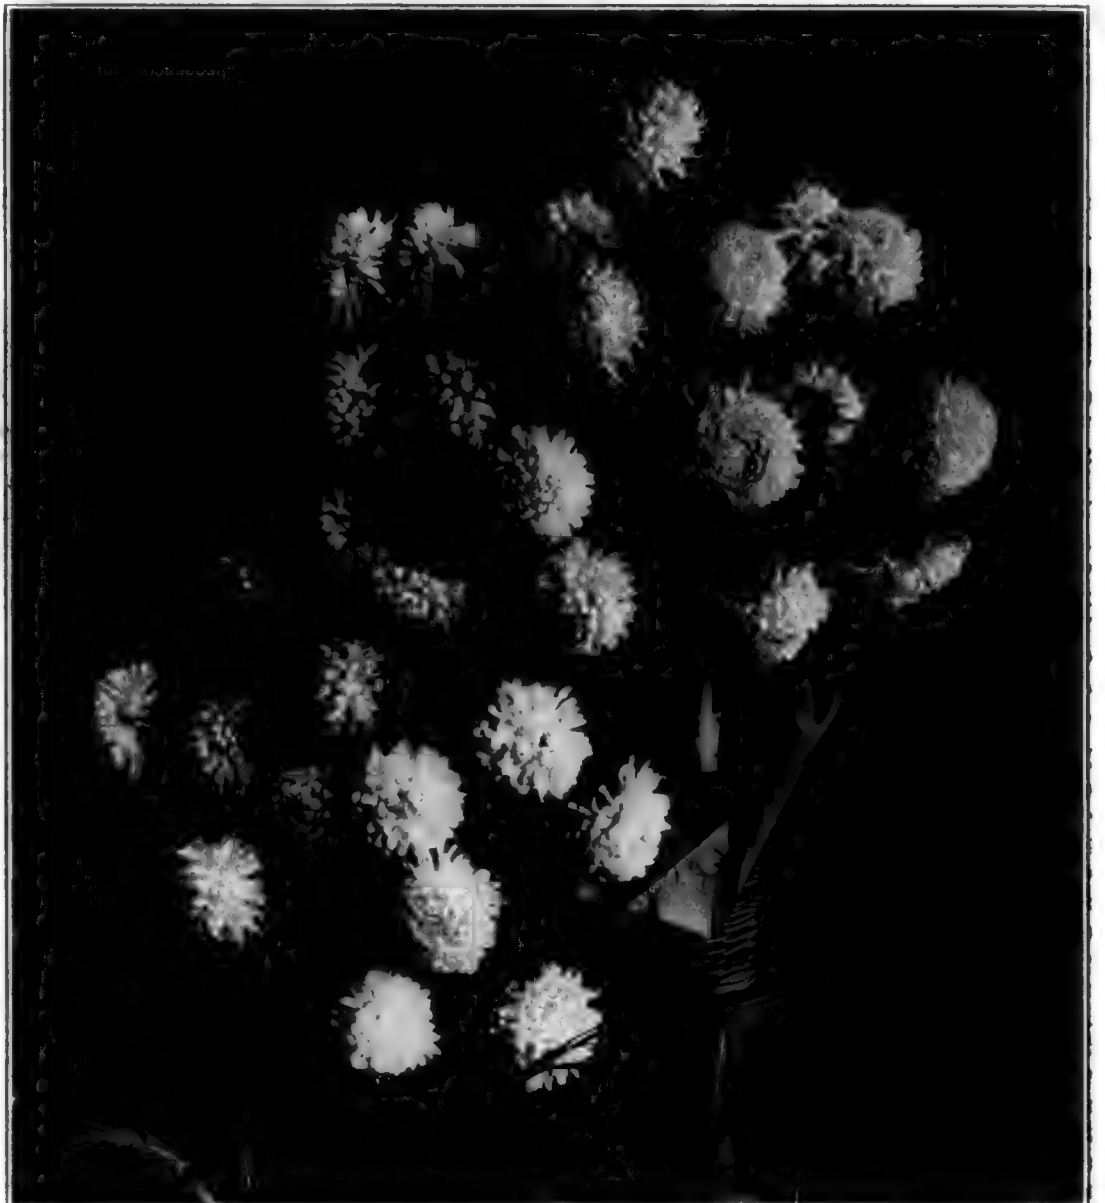

Cattleya Trianae enjoys a little more heat than labiata and can have the warmer end of the house, with C. Dowiana and C. gigas. A few flowers are already opening and others are well advanced in the sheaths. It is the early blooms, expanded before the new year, which bring the best prices. There is usually an oversupply later in the season.

THE BASKET OF MUMS.

The accompanying illustration shows a willow basket filled with Mrs. H. W. Buckbee chrysanthemum, looped from handle to handle with American Beauty ribbon and with a bow of the same ribbon on the side. It was the work of H. G. Evans, now of Spokane, Wash.

A WREATH BY LINKE & SON.

A picture is here presented of a funeral wreath that was made by A. Linke & Son, of Alpena, Mich. Aside from its other points, the wreath is worthy of attention on account of the rather unusual way in which the lettering is attached. Of course this style of lettering is not new; probably it is not even particularly uncommon, but it is a little less common—not to say commonplace—than much of the lettering that is seen in the ordinary run of trade. Perhaps it may furnish some slight suggestion for some workman who has exhausted his own ingenuity in devising ways of avoiding monotony. The makers of this design say that the purchaser of it objected to the stereotyped manner of "pasting the letters on ribbon," and wanted something different; so the letters, which are gilt, were fastened to the cycas leaves. The other materials used were pink and white roses, white alysum, maidenhair ferns and asparagus.

A "Different" Wreath, Made by A. Linke & Son, Alpena, Mich.

A GOOD BROKEN WHEEL.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph of a design made by the Archias Floral Co., Sedalia, Mo. The broken wheel is a difficult design to do well. Unless made as a fairly large piece, the outlines are likely to be obscured through the use of too much material. In this case the outlines were well preserved and the character of the piece and its message could not be mistaken. The stock used was principally roses, marguerites, sweet peas and maidenhair fern.

TIME TO PLANT GLADIOLI.

How soon can I plant gladiolus bulbs that are left from last summer's crop under glass? They were fine flowers, and I have a nice lot of bulbs.

C. B. G.

Bulbs saved from gladioli forced under glass are not to be recommended for forcing. As a rule, the gladiolus spikes are cut long and close to the ground. In such cases, while the plants may make up fairly good bulbs, they will not flower so satisfactorily as those which have been grown outdoors, and which did not have their spikes and foliage cut back hard. Gladioli may be planted in the greenhouse any time after December 1. They like a night temperature of 50 degrees, but can be grown warmer, and it might pay you to plant some in place of your most unpromising roses. The same soil will do for them. Some of the best sorts to grow are: America, Shakespeare, Brechleyensis, Mrs. F. King, May and Augusta. The small bulbed sorts, such as The Bride, Peach Blossom, Blushing Bride, etc., mostly varieties of G. nanus, are ready to plant as early as October 1, and start to grow much earlier than the large bulbed ones.

C. W.

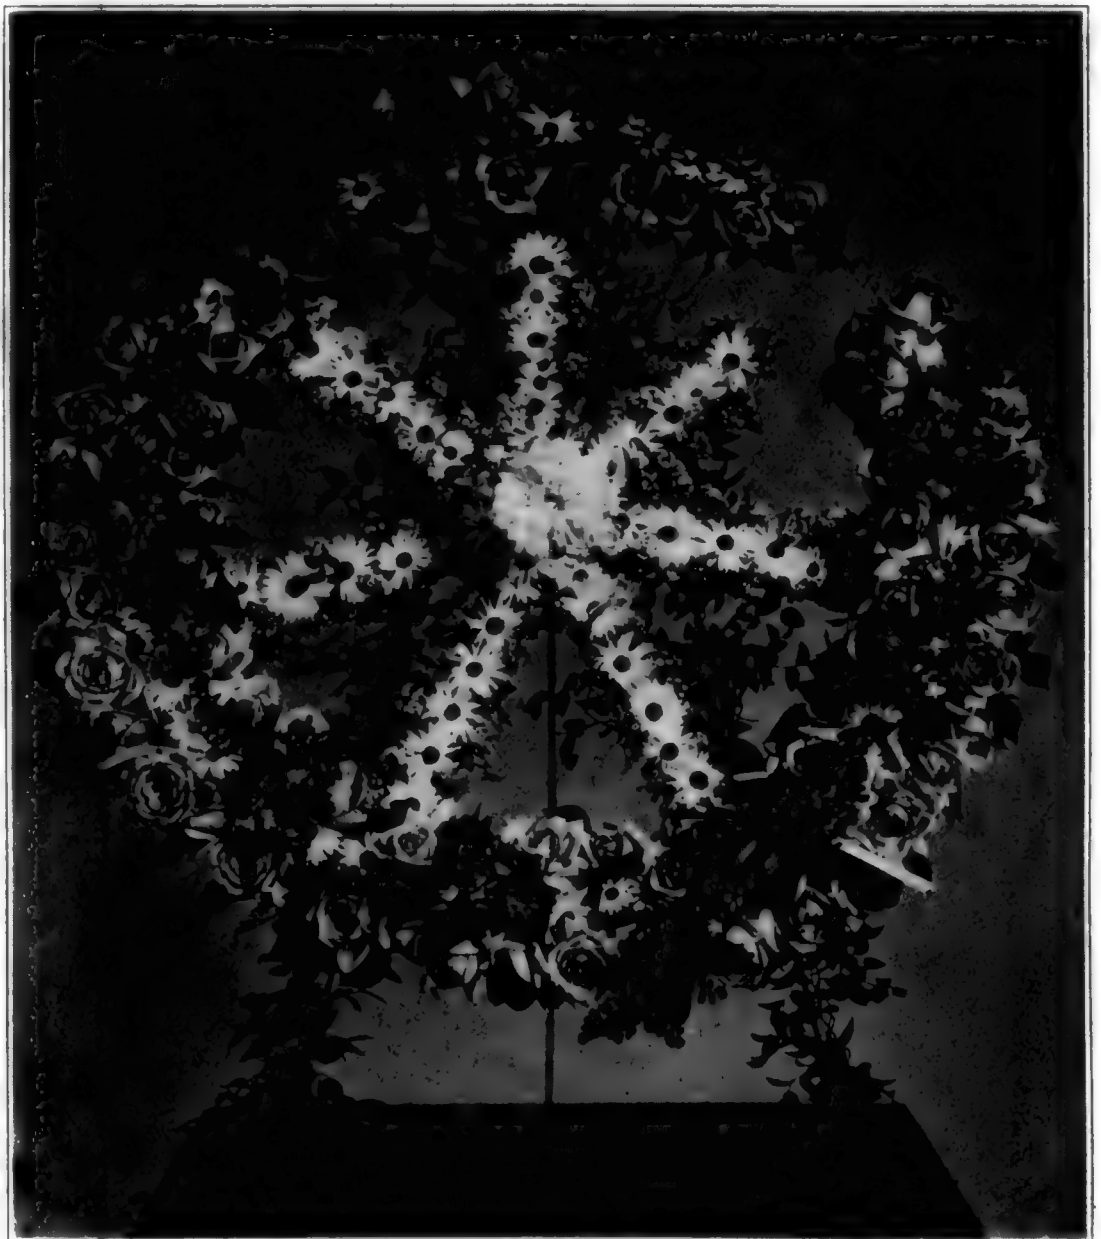

FORCING PUSSY WILLOWS.

Will you tell me if I can force pussy willows in a greenhouse for winter sale from November 25 on and about what price a bunch could I expect? Sample of willow enclosed.

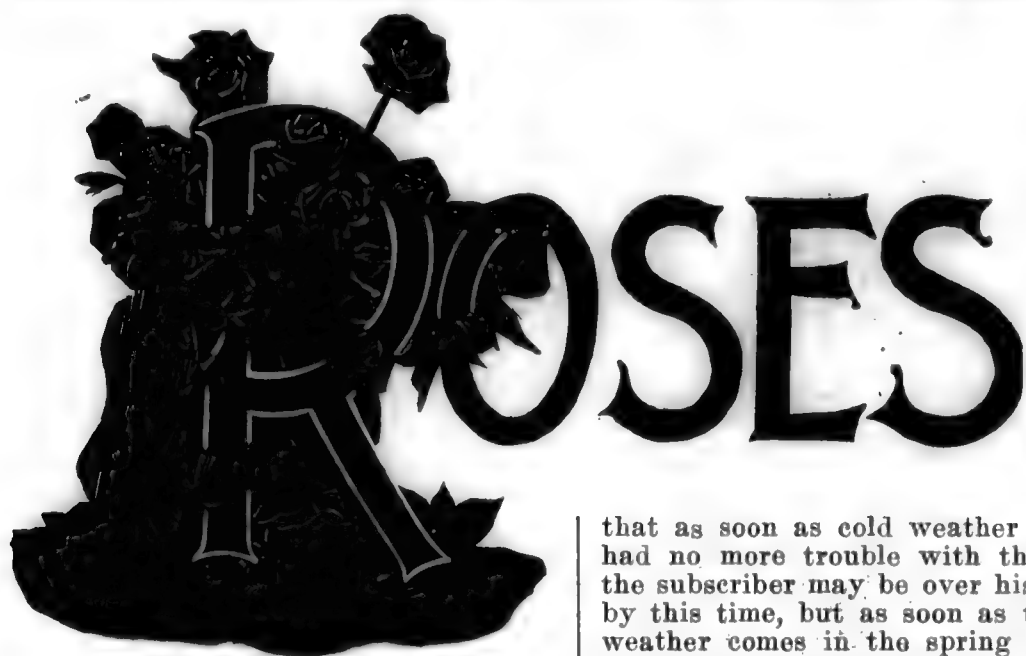

S. S. H.

The shoots of several of the salix or willows can be easily forced and opened in a warm, moist greenhouse. All that is necessary is to stand them in jars or tubs of fresh water. The shoots, however, will not expand well if started thus early. It will be better to wait until Christmas before starting them. The price per bunch is hard to give; it depends on local conditions.

A Broken Wheel of Roses, Marguerites and Adiantum.

A RED ROSE PEST.

I am writing to you hoping I may obtain some information regarding a small worm which is bothering us a great deal on our Rhea Reid roses. The worm is no larger than the head of a pin, and is white. Under a microscope it has a black stripe down the center of the back, and has the appearance of a leaf roller. The destructive work of this worm is on the young buds. From my observation, it sucks the tissues in the buds, turning them black, and they finally drop off. I am at a loss for an explanation of this worm. My idea is that they have been brought into the house in the manure, which was put in the house about six weeks ago. The treatment I have given the plants was to cut off all affected parts, remove the mulch, spray with nicotine and sprinkle lime on the soil. I hope I may receive some help through the paper.

W. J. V.

In 1900 to 1904 we had on several places in and around Chicago a small worm attacking Meteor and American Beauties, the action of which was about the same as the one mentioned in this letter. It was found mostly in old houses and near wet and swampy places and decayed vegetable matter. The worm when full grown was nearly as large as a pinhead, and in looking through a microscope enlarging 100 diameters we found about ten to twenty of these worms on one bud, the smallest about as large as the largest was under the naked eye. The fly which laid the eggs from which these worms or larvæ were hatched was so small that when walking along the walk in a greenhouse badly infested with them they would rise from a puddle like a small cloud of dust. It was impossible to destroy them.

The entomologists from the State Agricultural College at Urbana experimented with this insect for some time to try to find out its habits and to find a remedy. They found that after placing some of these worms in alcohol for seventy-two hours they were still alive, and as far as I know they were unable to find a sure destroyer, and those places that were affected by this insect found their only salvation was to discontinue growing those varieties of roses that were attacked by this insect.

We did not have Rhea Reid at that time, but all roses that were affected by the worm were red, so this may be the same in this case. As we found that as soon as cold weather came we had no more trouble with this insect, the subscriber may be over his troubles by this time, but as soon as the warm weather comes in the spring they will surely be there unless they can be exterminated during the winter. I would suggest that the house in which the trouble is, and the houses on each side, be thoroughly cleaned and any wet place filled up so that no water can stand anywhere to get stagnant and become a breeding place for the insect. If that does not help, quit growing Rhea Reid, for if this is the same insect the Chicago growers had, the grower will get no flowers from his plants in warm weather. And for the interest of your brother florists, don't sell any stock of it until you are sure that the trouble is over, for I have seen six or eight houses 200 feet long affected by this insect and without a flower during the whole summer. W. J. Keimel.

ROOTING ROSE CUTTINGS.

We should like to know whether it is profitable to grow hard-wood cuttings of roses in benches and what degree of bottom heat they would require.

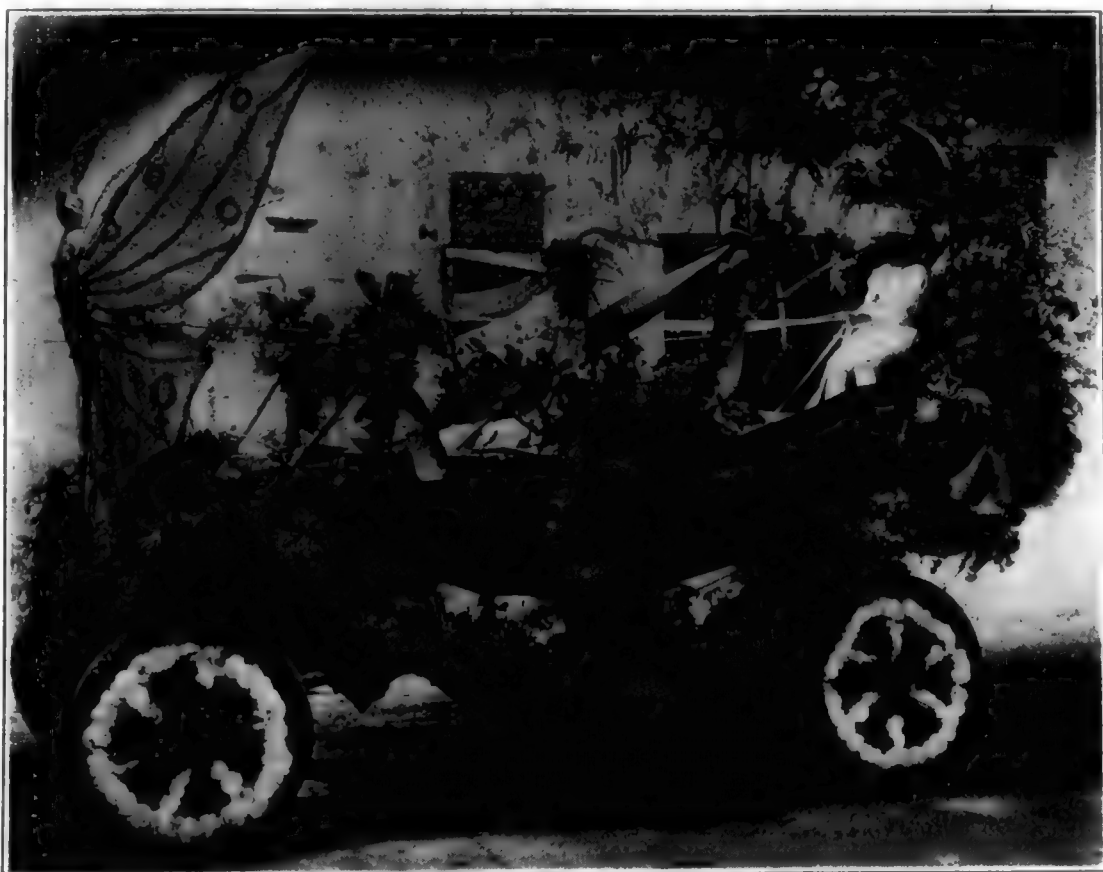

R. N. C.

Tea and hybrid tea roses can be readily and cheaply rooted on greenhouse benches. Keep the house at 60 degrees or a little less and furnish 10 degrees of bottom heat. Cuttings of hybrid perpetual roses can be made in the fall and inserted in boxes of sand. These should be kept in a coldframe until about a month before the beginning of the period of growth, when they should be brought gradually into heat. Tea and hybrid tea roses can also be handled in this way, unless early plants for forcing are desired. T.

A BEGINNER'S TROUBLES.

I should like to ask your advice about my roses. I have had some rather bad luck with my plants, and we followed the advice of one of the local florists and I think it was all wrong. My plants could not have been finer when I cut them back this fall. Ten days later they were throwing out the nicest kind of foliage, but when they were in full leaf we did not have the house all enclosed and could not keep the temperature right, so we got some mildew. I used sulphur and got everything regulated and I think they would have come out all right, but this florist came along and advised us to pick off the leaves. I did not think it best, but my adviser did, so he picked them nearly all off, just leaving the bare stems with the bud. Consequently we shall have no good roses in this crop, but weaklings. The stems are fine and strong, but instead of making flowers they are trying to make leaves and flowers too, so there is bound to be a dismal failure. We have in the same house some Ward, Prince de Bulgarie and Maryland. They are fine and have no mildew to speak of. The others that suffered most are Killarney, Pink Killarney and Richmond. I wish you would tell me what to do with them. I am thoroughly discouraged, and I do want a crop for Christmas. Any information you can give me will be appreciated. You know we are new to the business and have already learned a lot by experience, which has been a dear teacher, but all growers have a different remedy for everything. Our plant is steam heated and the temperature in the rose house is always 60 degrees at night. We give a little ventilation overhead at night. The building runs north and south.

Car of C. T. Kipp, a Spokane Florist, Decorated for a Parade.

H. N. Lowe and His Daily Auto Load of Flowers.

C. B. G.

The advice to pick off the rose foliage was not good. It is permissible to pick off leaves here and there when black spot appears, as it frequently does on American Beauty, and to a minor extent on other varieties, but to remove all the leaves simply because they were somewhat mildewed is unheard-of. This stripping of the foliage will seriously cripple if it does not entirely ruin the plants thus treated. With steam pipes in the house you could easily have cared for the mildew.

I am sorry that I cannot offer much encouragement over the defoliated plants. They will certainly give no Christmas crop. All you can do is to keep them clean, pick off any buds they make and carry them along for a spring crop. Your night temperature of 60 degrees is rather high for such sorts as Killarney and Richmond; 56 to 58 degrees would be better. You will find that a little sulphur on the flow or return main steam pipe will keep the plants clear of mildew.

C. W.

TRouble WITH YOUNG STOCK.

Enclosed you will find a sample of some of our rose leaves. We had exactly the same trouble last year, and will write you and perhaps some specialist can tell us the trouble and remedy. The plants seem to start out well in fall, and the growth is healthy, but when a dark, cloudy spell comes the new shoots seem to turn a light green, the new growth becomes not nearly so strong and the older leaves turn as are the enclosed samples. We try to be careful with watering and keep the temperature between 56 and 60 degrees. The kinds grown are Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney.

H. F. C.

Your temperatures seem to be all right, and the foliage, which was quite dried up when received, seemed to be free from both red spider and mildew. Evidently the soil or watering is at fault, perhaps both. I do not know what you are feeding with, but I have frequently seen similar mishaps caused by an excessive use of some stimulant, more especially sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda. If your drainage is good, soil correct and ventilation carefully attended to, I should say that an injudicious use of stimulants was the cause of your trouble. Feeding must be done moderately until the sun gains in power in the new year. If you will stick to cow manure for top-dressing and liquid you will be on the safe side. Also use care in top-dressing, not to have the cow manure too fresh and strong, or the ammonia will scorch many leaves and cause others to drop. It is difficult, without knowing the soil and other conditions, to suggest a cause, but I think the one given is probably the correct one.

C. W.

THE GREATEST ROSARIAN.

Apropos of the question whether the name of Dickson or that of Pernet-Ducher should stand first among the rose hybridizers of the day, Adolph Farenwald, president of the American Rose Society, says that in his opinion Peter Lambert, of Trier, Germany, is the peer of any rosarian. Mr. Farenwald mentions two roses, among others, introduced by Mr. Lambert, that have proved of great public benefit. They are Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and Frau Karl Druschki. Mr. Farenwald does not believe that any of these three master rosarians, Dickson, Lambert or Pernet-Ducher, can fairly claim superiority over the other two; he believes that they are all entitled to positions in the front rank.

KIPP CAPTURES CUP.

Reference has been made in the Pacific Coast Department to C. T. Kipp having captured the silver cup offered by the Spokane Chamber of Commerce for the best decorated automobile in a recent parade. Mr. Kipp is proprietor of the Spokane Florist Co. There were 550 cars in the line, and the winning of the trophy must have been of considerable advertising value in his business, but what specially interests the florists is that he used in his decoration the ordinary stock of a retail flower store. Note the high-handled baskets on the running boards. Observe that the wheels were covered with Porto Rican mats and that the same kind of mats were used on the lamps and to hold the potted plants. Also, much ribbon and chiffon was employed. The flowers principally were dahlias and daisies. The color harmony cannot be shown in an illustration, but naturally was given careful attention.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

At Long Beach, Cal., H. N. Lowe started in the florists' business when the town had only 1,200 population. This was in 1897. The city now has over 25,000 inhabitants, and Mr. Lowe says business has kept pace with the growth of the town. September 1 he moved from his old store at 10 Pine avenue, occupied for many years, to a new establishment at 401 Pine avenue, where he has a much more attractive place and three times the floor space of the old store. As almost always happens, the improved facilities have resulted in a marked increase in trade this season.

Of the accompanying illustrations, one shows the window display at the opening of November. The other shows Mr. Lowe on his morning trip from the greenhouses with stock. It looks as though Mr. Lowe follows the old rule of business first and pleasure afterward, for his automobile is a touring car, not a truck. He brings down his day's cut by auto each day, decorating the hood with a big box of flowers tied on, with other boxes on the running boards and the tonneau filled with the product of the green-houses.

They call them "hothouses" in southern California, and the greenhouse-grown stock is referred to as hothouse carnations to distinguish them from the field-grown article. In speaking of the output of his nursery, Mr. Lowe says it consists of a large assortment of flowering bulbs, hothouse carnations, outdoor roses and carnations, sweet peas, centaureas, dahlias, Golden Glow, asters, Shasta daisies and chrysanthemums. A large lath house is filled with Asparagus Sprengeri, As- paragus plumosus and smilax. In another house Boston and Elegantissima ferns, maidenhair, kentias, azaleas and spiræas are grown under glass.

SPECIALIZING ON SUCCESS.

R. J. Southerton, at Highland Park, Ill., has what he modestly describes as "better success than the average florist" with cyclamens, so he is gradually coming to specialize on cyclamens, having previously made a specialty of bedding plants and landscape gardening. The accompanying illustration shows one of Mr. Southerton's houses of cyclamens during the growing season. The plants are now coming into fine flower.

when fumigating, as these will badly scorch the leaves.

Storing Dahlias.

There are frequent complaints each year of dahlia tubers failing to keep satisfactorily. These come usually from small growers who do not have the specialist's conveniences for storing roots. A cellar or cool shed, dry, without artificial heat and just clear of freezing, is what dahlias require. Sometimes when laid on shelves they are found to shrivel or decay, but I have found that if each tuber is wrapped in a piece of newspaper and then packed in barrels, every root will come out fresh and plump in spring. I would suggest that growers who have had difficulty in wintering dahlia roots try this plan.

Irises and Gladioli.

Where irises and gladioli are not planted in benches, as quite a few florists prefer to grow them, this is a good time to bring a few flats of each into a cool house for an early crop. These bulbs require quite a long season as compared with tulips, narcissi or hyacinths, for even when placed in heat now they will not flower before the end of March. They resent hard forcing, and a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees should not be exceeded. Any of the varieties of Spanish iris can be housed, and among the early small-flowered gladioli, Colvillei The Bride, Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride are suitable to start at this time.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

Now, when the flowering season is nearly over, the chrysanthemum stock plants, instead of being tucked under the benches or in any out-of-the-way place, should be planted in a bench close to the light in a cold house. A house suitable for violets, or even a few degrees cooler, is just what they need. Planted in rows in good loam, carefully labeled and right under observation all the time, it is an easy matter to know what sorts are likely to be a little short, and in such cases to start propagation early, so as to be able to work up an ample supply of the

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Freeseias.

The earliest batch of freeseias, which are wanted in flower for Christmas or New Year's, must now be kept in a night temperature of 55 degrees. Anything higher than this may force them into flower a day or two earlier, but the flowers will be much lacking in substance. A shelf is the ideal place for them. If this is not available, a light, sunny bench will do. It is a good plan to elevate a pan here and there on an inverted pot. This assures nice, stocky plants. See that the plants are properly supported and for tying use green twine or raffia, as it is inconspicuous. Liquid manure once in five days, with a good supply of water at all times, is necessary. Also avoid giving any heavy fumigations in the house where they are growing, or the ends of the flowers will turn brown.

Roman Hyacinths.

The earliest planting of Roman hyacinths should now be well sprouted and should be placed in a warm house, where within two or three weeks the spikes will be fully expanded. If grown in flats, move into a cooler house when expanded, in order to give the flowers more substance. For a Christmas supply it is not necessary to house any of the plants until the beginning of December, but the average retailing florist should start a batch once a week, as it is a useful flower to have in making up designs.

Spiræas.

The spiræas, or astilbes, are now at hand. After unpacking them, soak the roots well in a tub of water and pack in a coldframe where they will be exposed to some frost. It will not pay to start forcing these until after Christmas, as they will break erratically. Like lily of the valley, they need some rest before they are forced. The plants seen in flower occasionally at Christmas are not grown from the new season's roots, but from such as have been carried over in cold storage. The varieties Gladstone and astilboides floribunda are fine whites, well adapted for early forcing. These are much superior to the old Japonica. The beautiful peach-pink variety, Queen Alexandra, is in habit similar to compacta multi-flora and Gladstone, but cannot be forced into flower as early. For Memorial day trade it is excellent, however.

Mignonette.

The earliest sowing of mignonette is now giving some nice spikes, not equal in quality to what we will have from January to March, but still welcome on the market at this early season. As the roots have now permeated the bed pretty well, a mulch of well decayed manure, well pulverized, should be applied and, in addition, some cow or sheep liquid manure should be given at alternate waterings. Be sure the plants are carefully supported, as bent mignonette stalks are not wanted by anyone. Also keep the weak stems rubbed out, as well as laterals from the flowering stems. Keep the night temperature at from 40 to 42 degrees. Let 45 degrees be the absolute maximum, and be sure never to use tobacco stems real bread and butter sorts. Failing space in a cold greenhouse, you can plant the stock in a coldframe, but it should be well protected in order to exclude frost.

Show Pelargoniums.

Keep those showy spring flowering plants, the pelargoniums, in a cold house. They will now start to grow quite rapidly. Keep the leading shoots pinched back and pot along any plants needing a shift before they become too potbound. Use a good, fibrous loam. Add some old cow manure, sand and fine bone to it and ram the compost quite firmly in the pots. Do not overlook a spraying or fumigation once a week, to keep aphids in check.

English Ivy.

There is always a good demand for English ivy each year for vases, planting against walls, or for cemetery beds. Now that fire heat is being used steadily and the sand in the propagating bench is warmer, it is a good time to start a liberal batch of cuttings. These will scarcely grow to such size as to be salable the first season, but will be heavy plants before fall if kept in pots and plunged outdoors, and should bring a good price the following season. Some growers say there is no money in growing ivy, as the demand is erratic. There is good money in it, even if the actual profit is not so great as on some of the quick growing, soft-wooded bedding plants, as the mere fact that a florist has ivy will usually bring him other business on which greater returns may be expected.

Lorraine Begonias.

Christmas is the season when the bulk of the winter flowering begonias are sold, but a good many are always disposed of before then. Where the plants have been grown warm, it will be a good plan to run them a little cooler now. There will then be less complaint of the flowers dropping when the plants go into dry, warm and scantily ventilated dwellings. All staking should have been completed long ago. It is now too late to do it without damaging the plants. Glory of Cincin- nati is more in evidence than ever this season, and some growers talk of dropping Lorraine. I think there is room for both, but Cincinnati is easily the better house plant of the two, the flowers standing dry atmospheres far better than the older variety.

EUONYMUS RADICANS.

I was glad to see the article from Wilhelm Miller in The Review for October 31, on this most valuable of all evergreen climbers. It can truly be called hardy, as I have never seen it injured, even with a temperature as low as 25 degrees below zero, and it will grow in every imaginable location and in soil so poor that hardly any other plant would exist in it. English ivy, while it will winter under favorable conditions on walls facing north, will become badly scorched and sometimes killed outright even in such locations in New England, and can only be depended upon in a moderate way. Even for covering graves, it will become badly browned unless boxed over or well covered with leaves when severe cold sets in.

There is a popular misconception regarding E. radicans, that it is a slow grower. As a matter of fact, it will cover a wall as rapidly as English ivy. A little over five years ago I rooted some hundreds of cuttings, which, a year later, were planted at the base of the walls of a new mansion here, and they are now fifteen to seventeen feet high. One wall twelve feet high was densely covered in a little over three years. These plants had, of course, good soil, and had an annual top-dressing of cow manure.

For covering walls and boulders, or using as a hedge plant, E. radicans has no equal. The form vegetus, with round leaves, fruits freely even on small plants and at this season the fruits are quite attractive. The variety Carrieri is excellent for hedging purposes. It also makes a neat shrub if wired together a little. It is a fact that the common E. radicans, while it will produce small leaves for a year or two, will later grow much coarser and fruit freely.

Although the propagation of this evergreen is easy, there are still many thousands annually imported from Europe. Cuttings taken in summer from half ripened wood, placed in a close, shaded coldframe and kept well sprayed, will nearly all root, and fully matured wood will also root in the same way, although it takes longer. Cuttings put in nursery rows outdoors late in August, watered and well pruned, will most of them root, and, if transplanted in spring, will make strong plants for selling the next fall. This euonymus can be successfully planted at any time in the year when the ground is open. The variegated forms are less hardy than the green ones, and the latter are far more beautiful and possess greater vigor. There is a wonderful future before this plant, and florists can make no mistake in stocking up heavily on it.

CARNATIONS

A POOR ENCHANTRESS CROP.

Under separate cover I am mailing to you some samples of Enchantress and Rose-pink Enchantress flowers, in different stages. The plants from which these flowers were taken are grown in solid benches, with a night temperature of from 48 to 50 degrees. They were planted from August 30 to September 1. They were in prime condition at the time of planting, and only recently have they started to throw such poor flowers. The stems are also becoming weak, particularly on the Enchantress plants. We have had air on the houses all the season, with the exception of a day or two when the weather would not permit. Any information you can give us as to the cause of this will be greatly appreciated. T. J. K.

The specimens forwarded did not disclose anything definite, except inferiority in quality. Some of the petals appeared to be specked by thrips, but I found none of the insects present. There is evidently something wrong with your soil or your treatment—just which, I am unable to determine without more data. The fact that your plants were in prime condition when planted, and the early blooms were good, would indicate improper treatment, as with proper treatment the quality should steadily improve until the maximum would be reached about the last of January. Being planted in solid beds should make no difference in the results obtained.

If you will send me a few of the plants, and some of the soil, I may be able to assist you. Also give a detailed account of your method of culture, temperatures, etc. A. F. J. B.

FEEDING CARNATIONS.

When carnations are planted in the benches in a rich composted soil, in August and September, how soon is it necessary to begin feeding them? G. V. W.

Your carnations should now be in a condition to stand a little feeding. I would prefer to apply this in the form of a top-dressing and not use liquid manure until the days are perceptibly lengthening. C. W.

FEEDING AND VENTILATING.

Is it advisable to apply liquid cow manure to my carnations? If so, how often? Should the plants have plenty of fresh air during the day? I am a new man in the carnation line, as pot plants are my specialty. P. A. K.

If your carnations are well established and if they seem in condition to take up some extra feed in addition to what they have in the soil, then an occasional application of liquid manure will do no harm, provided it is done judiciously. In giving any kind of feed, always keep in mind the season of the year, the weather at the time and the weather that is likely to follow. No heavy feeding should be done during cloudy weather, or more harm than good will result.

If you are accustomed to handling pot plants, you will be able to judge pretty well as to the needs of your carnations, only let me warn you against too much feeding until the bright days of January and later. The carnation loves fresh air. A. F. J. B.

CARNATION RUST.

We have had a big fight with rust on our carnations. We have used Bordeaux mixture, but the trouble is still showing a little. The plants are doing well, but the stems are not strong enough to hold up the flowers, which are large and fine. C. B. G.

You will find that fine air-slaked lime, lightly dusted on the affected plants, is one of the best possible remedies for carnation rust. Keep the foliage dry after applying it. Be sure your foliage is always dry before night-fall. Do any syringing early on the mornings of clear days. Where plants are damp at night, the rust is sure to spread when once it secures a foothold. Give the benches a light top-dressing of lime; this will help to improve the stems. You can also spread a fine mulch of old manure over the surface, but do not give the lime and manure together. Wait a couple of weeks before applying the latter. C. W.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, Mass., have offered for registration their new carnation, Princess Dagmar, which is described as follows: Parentage, Genevieve x unnamed crimson; color, deep, bright crimson; size, three and one-half to four inches; long, stiff stems, which hold the flower erect at all times; calyx seldom splits; perfectly healthy, strong grower; average bloomer. A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

AN OLD BED OF VALLEY.

We have bought a bed of valley that has not been touched for years and is a solid mat. Will you please tell us how to force the plants, how to separate them, etc.? S. & S.

Where lily of the valley has been grown matted together in this way, it is not possible to separate the individual pips and get results equaling those from the imported ones, which are grown singly in the field to prepare them for forcing. The best plan will be to dig up the valley in squares, like a piece of turf. For the earliest forcing, keep in a darkened case until well drawn up; then give more light. After the middle of February you could stand them on a bench in any warm house where they could get some bottom heat, and give them light all the time. Damp once a day until flower spikes appear; then discontinue doing so.

You must not expect any such quality of flowers from these as from the imported Berlin pips. There would probably be fully as much money in it for you if you prepared a bed for them outdoors, manuring it heavily, spading deeply, and setting the plants thinly in rows twelve to fifteen inches apart. This work can be done now, before the ground freezes up. After the planting, if you decide to plant outside, give a mulching of straw or leaves to prevent freezing and thawing, which would heave out the plants. C. W.

VALLEY FOR CHRISTMAS.

The new pips of lily of the valley are here, but these should not be used for forcing purposes until after New Year's, or results will be disappointing. Cold storage pips are much the best to use, as they start into growth quickly and flower at one time, which cannot be said of the fresh imported pips. There is a good call for valley at Christmas, both cut and in pots, but in order to have it in full bloom at that time the pips should have had a clear month for their development. They can be flowered in three weeks in a brisk heat, but it is better to have a brisk bottom heat, 85 degrees being about right, and a top heat 25 degrees lower. This gives the flowers and foliage more substance. Keep close and dark until well drawn up; then admit more light, to permit leaf development and make the flower stems sturdier. Sand is the best material to plant the pips in. It is clean, water passes readily through it, and it can be used over and over again. It should be watered once a day until the flowers start to open, when it should be kept dry.

Plants in 6-inch pots are salable at Christmas. The pips can be packed in moss or any old soil. Sand makes the pots rather weighty. Use fifteen to eighteen pips to a pot and keep them in a close case for the first ten or twelve days. Then give good light, so that the plants will be sturdy and have good foliage.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The prolonged warm weather seems about over and it is to be hoped the cold weather will bring with it a change in local market conditions. These, for the last week, have not been the best. True, enough stock was sold, but the average net return was not so high as it should have been.

In roses, everything but white has sold. The chrysanthemums and lilies followed in the wake of the white roses; the supply was good, quality excellent, but the request for them seemed limited and it was necessary to sell at low prices or not at all. Carnations moved out nicely. Valley and orchids proved good property. Violets, both double and single, sold well. More sweet peas of quality might easily have been used. Considerable stevia was offered.

Judging from present indications, Thanksgiving business will be good. With the possible exception of carnations, there probably will be enough stock to go around.

The wholesale houses are beginning to take on a Christmas aspect. Holly and other decorative material for the holidays is being pushed.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell received a car of sphagnum moss last week. This material has for some time been available in only limited quantities in this market. Mr. Critchell is also finding many sales for red berries.

E. G. Gillett has been receiving choice pompons and has been finding a good market.

November 23 Chas. Pfeiffer's Sons had on their stand in the Sixth street market some fine Eaton and Chadwick mums. They sold at good prices.

Peter Weiland has been getting in a heavy cut of Brides.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange last week was the recipient of a large shipment of sphagnum moss.

Wm. Murphy has gone south to arrange for his holly shipments.

A. F. Longren, of Poehlmann Bros. Co.; Milton Alexander, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bartholomew, of Dayton, were in the city last week.

Local florists should not forget the banquet and lecture by R. Vincent, Jr., president of the S. A. F., Monday, December 7, at 8 p. m., at the Burnet house. Tickets can be had from either A. C. Hechman, Jr., Ray Murphy, Chas. Hoffmeister or in any wholesale house.

D. Rusconi has recovered sufficiently from his illness to be out and about again.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Thanksgiving week came in with a decided fall in temperature and a flurry of snow. Sunday morning the snow fell heavily for an hour, the first of the season, and the ground was well covered. By noon it was clear, the mercury had climbed above 40 degrees and the snow had disappeared. The weather last week was as delightful as could be imagined and there was one continuous round of society events. It is no wonder every florist was smiling, for no one was left out in the heavy demand for decorations.

The chrysanthemums seem to have been timed just right for Thanksgiving and there is a good supply. The quality is fair to good, with a lot that are good enough to fetch $6 per dozen. Pot plants bring an average of about $1 each. The popularity of the singles seems somewhat on the wane, though pompons are in heavier demand than last year. Golden Wedding continues to be the yellow most in evidence for cutting, though some claim to secure better prices for Yellow Eaton.

Carnations are in good supply and of good quality. They are moving readily at $1.50 per dozen, with no indication of a fall in prices till after Christmas. Lilies are scarce, but the demand is light. Valley is plentiful and of good quality, and sells at good prices. Sweet peas are just beginning to come in freely and are fetching $2 per hundred blooms.

Roses are in good supply and are selling at from $6 per dozen for the best American Beauties to $1 for the short-stemmed Kaiserins and Brides. Violets are more abundant, but there is no oversupply. Callas have not made their appearance as yet, but, from the looks of the houses, they will be in soon. The early azaleas are beginning to be seen and there will be all that will be needed for Thanksgiving.

One of the features of this week is to be the opening of Mr. Steif's new jewelry store. The decorations are to be elaborate, with a free use of ferns and pot chrysanthemums. There will be over 2,000 carnations and 1,000 roses, arranged in cut glass vases and silver trays.

Various Notes.

Haury & Sons continue to sell large numbers of fine single chrysanthemum plants. They report business good this week. They have been compelled to employ a new salesgirl to help out in their retail store.

The Joy Floral Co. is exceedingly busy. They are furnishing 2,000 carnations for the Steif opening. They continue to have plenty of 3-foot and 4-foot American Beauties this week. They say that while funeral work has been lighter this week than last, their decorations for parties have been unusually heavy and their out-of-town agents are calling for almost more than they can furnish.

McIntyre Bros. have at last opened their new retail store. The plant room is not completed and will not be for some time. Their salesroom is among the largest and best arranged in the city. While they made no effort to attract trade, they say they had thirty-five good orders the day the store was opened. We noticed some fine Pearl roses at their place. They are located near the Vanderbilt university and grow this rose because yellow is one of the college colors. They say it is a money-maker for them for this reason.

Geny Bros. put on one of the prettiest decorations of the season last week. The occasion was the giving of a debutante party in honor of Miss Atkinson. The large rooms of the Centennial Club were used and gave opportunity for the decorator to use his skill. Supper was served at an A-shaped table, laid for 100 guests. Among the table decorations were five elaborate baskets of pink chrysanthemums and fifteen vases of Killarney and My Maryland roses. A hundred yards of tulle and an abundance of palms and wild smilax added greatly to the effect. The triangle formed inside the apex of the A was entirely bordered with ferns, and the space inside of these was filled with pink chrysanthemums. The room was decorated with ferns, palms and potted pink mums. F. B.

OBITUARY.

George A. Sweet.

George A. Sweet, a nurseryman of Dansville, N. Y., died at his home on Main street November 13, at the age of 68 years. He was born in Dansville, had spent almost his entire life there and was one of the most prominent business men of the town. At the time of his death he was president of the Citizens' Bank of Dansville, president of the Cemetery Association, and a member of the Western New York Nurserymen's Association.

He leaves his wife; one daughter, Mrs. B. G. Readshaw, of Oakland, Cal.; one son, Maxwell Sweet, of Dansville, and a brother, Edwin F. Sweet, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Isaac Husbands.

After a brief illness, Isaac Husbands, a well known and highly respected resident of Bellevue, O., died November 23, aged 75 years and 7 months. The deceased had been in failing health since last spring, but was able to be up and around until two weeks ago, when he took to his bed.

Mr. Husbands was born in Shropshire, England, where he learned the business of florist and landscape gardener. He came to America at the age of 21, locating first in Cleveland, where he remained for a few years, and then returned to his old home in England, where he was married to Miss Alice Gough. Four children, all living, were born to this union. They are: Richard Henry, of Spokane, Wash.; Charles, of Cleveland; Mrs. J. G. Norbury, of Crewe, England, and Miss Eleanor Husbands, of Bellevue. Mr. Husbands returned to America in 1877, bringing his family, and located in Cleveland, where for many years he was employed as gardener at the home of Hon. Dan P. Ellis. Seventeen years ago last July the family removed to Bellevue. Mr. Husbands purchasing the greenhouses of the late Mr. Lunn. The deceased continued in the florists' business until a year ago last January, when he sold his business to R. C. Arlin, and since has led a retired life. Mrs. Husbands died nine years ago last July. He was married to Mrs. Clara Davis, the widow who survives, October 31, 1904.

Mr. Husbands was baptized and confirmed in the Episcopal faith and was an active and faithful member of St. Paul's church. He was a good musician and organized the vested choir and was a member of it for many years. He was a member of the Odd Fellows' lodge and was one of the oldest members of that order in the state.

The funeral took place from the house Monday, November 25, services being conducted by Rev. Jenkins, of Fremont. Interment was in Bellevue cemetery.

BULBOUS STOCK.

Last year we put our bulbous stock outdoors and, like many others, lost a lot of it. This year we have put the bulbs in the cellar. We potted them up as usual, or at least suppose the man did, and set the pots on the cellar bottom, giving them a good watering, and we now find that the bulbs are crawling out of the pots, caused by root growth pushing them up. Can you give cause and suggest a remedy? We have something over 1,500 pots, and to repot them looks like a big job. L. F.

The reason for your bulbous stock heaving up the soil is because you did not give them any covering of coal ashes, sand, soil or other material to weight them down. If this is done you will have no further trouble of this kind. There is no need to repot any of the stock. Give the whole batch a covering of three to four inches of clean coal ashes, not too coarse, soaking the plants well with water before doing so. C. W.

CYCLAMENS.

Kindly tell me through the columns of The Review if cyclamens would be harmed by a light smoking, such as when a nicotine paper is used. As we have but one temperature, we have carnations and cyclamens in the same house. G. V. W.

Fumigating with the tobacco papers will not harm cyclamens in the least. Smoking is necessary to keep them clean, unless you depend on spraying to accomplish this, but in the winter months fumigation is safer than spraying. C. W.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

Bar Harbor, Me.—John H. Stalford, proprietor of the Malvern Greenhouses, has been away for a three weeks' vacation, visiting Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

Ithaca, N. Y.—E. J. Ludwig, president of the Pittsburgh Florists' Club, Mrs. Ludwig and their son, De Forest W. Ludwig, have been here for a visit to Ed W. Ludwig, who is attending Cornell University.

Rockford, Ill.—James Leake and Guy Offord, who were conducting greenhouses at Kent and Corbin streets, South Rockford, under the firm name of Leake & Offord, have sold the houses and stock to two Rockford men and returned to Belvidere, Ill., where they formerly resided.

Beaver Dam, Wis.—After being in the flower trade for the last thirty-seven years, Joseph Wagner has sold his greenhouses to Alanson G. Boomer. However, though Mr. Wagner has thus disposed of the florists' end of the business, he will continue to conduct the seed store as formerly.

Independence, Mo.—Ed Bunyar built four new houses this summer to take care of the increased demand, and now operates seven hot water boilers in his battery. One little item of his stock is 25,000 moonvines. He has dropped violets because of the competition of the stock shipped from a distance.

Prescott, Ariz.—Mrs. Wm. N. Kelly, proprietor of the Terrace Cottage Greenhouses, reported under date of November 19 that the mild weather had continued without interruption and she was still selling chrysanthemums from her outdoor gardens. She has two houses of carnations that are timed just right for winter sales and she also has a house of callas that are coming into bloom. In miscellaneous potted plants she has a fine assortment.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—At the recent meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, in this city, the following officers were elected: President, J. P. Munson, of this city; secretary, C. E. Bassett, Fennville; treasurer, R. A. Smythe, Benton Harbor. The newly elected executive committee comprises Paul Rose, Elberta, three years; C. A. Pratt, Benton Harbor, one year; also W. F. Hawxhurst, Saline, and F. A. Wilken, South Haven.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—J. Vonder Linden is much pleased with his success in capturing first prize for double violets at the Cleveland flower show.

Little Rock, Ark.—A. Housmans, formerly employed by J. W. Vestal & Son, has severed his connection with the trade and is now assistant secretary of the railroad Y. M. C. A. at Hoxie.

Hannibal, Mo.—W. T. League acted as judge at the chrysanthemum show held by the Frankford Horticultural Society in Mefford's opera house, Frankford, Mo. The show was a great success, both in exhibits and in attendance.

Galesburg, Ill.—Besides his store on Main street, H. F. Drury also has a flower stand in the Big Store. He recently invited the public to a chrysanthemum show at his Main street place and presented over 1,000 mums to his visitors. He has been in the trade here for thirteen years.

Savannah, Ga.—At the annual flower show of the Young Women's Christian Association, held in Guards' hall, the exhibits were among the finest ever seen in this city and were principally from commercial growers. There were excellent displays from John Wolf, the Chatham Nurseries, A. C. Oelschig & Son, A. W. Richardson and J. M. Breckenridge.

Maitland, Fla.—W. Clare has started business here as a florist. He has two acres of land, facing a beautiful lake, and has placed half an acre under lath, with cloth for protection on cold nights. His principal crop is Asparagus plumosus nanus and the plants are in fine condition. He also has a slat house, covering five acres, at Altamonte Springs. Judging from the rate at which orders are coming in, an enlargement of the houses will soon be necessary.

Saginaw, Mich.—In a recent issue of a local newspaper one of the most prominent features was an article contributed by Henry W. F. Goetz, of J. B. Goetz Sons, with regard to a proposition for improving the city water supply. The article, which was accompanied with a portrait of Mr. Goetz, was written at the request of the publicity committee of the Saginaw Bay Water Association and makes special reference to the unsuitability of the present city water for horticultural purposes.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Business last week was good. Several large weddings did their share toward reducing the stock. Mums are plentiful, but sales have been good. White mums are much more in demand this season than ever before. No one voices any opinion as to why, but the call for white in all sizes has made them scarce at times. Golden Chadwick and Golden Wedding are the leaders for Thanksgiving. The best easily bring $3 per dozen wholesale. Maud Dean and Jones are as fine as these late varieties ever are seen. Pompons have sold wonderfully well this season, but this week will probably see the last of these popular flowers. Roses are holding back, so as to be in the running for Christmas; light cuts in all colors is the rule this week. The prospects at the several large establishments near Cleveland are for a record crop for December. Carnations still are a lap behind. Lilies, valley, orchids, etc., have sold well; there has even been a scarcity of valley in the last two weeks. Stevia and Paper Whites are on the market in limited quantities.

Pot plants promise to be good, also early. Mme. Petrick azaleas, cyclamens and Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias are fine; some stock is to be had now that is the equal of that generally seen in January. Poinsettias on 6-foot stems and with bracts eighteen inches across are a novelty for late November.

Aftermath of the Show.

There were many novelties and well grown specimens of standard varieties of roses, carnations and mums at the recent flower show that were deserving of special mention. J. D. Cockcroft's new dark pink carnation, Northport, was in grand shape for November 15. It was the winner of two silver cups. The Herald, shown by the Chicago Carnation Co., easily won first in the class for 100 red. The flowers showed up well and held up through the show. Carl Hagenburger, Mentor, O., won the Advance silver cup on an unnamed seedling, flowers three and one-half inches across, a bright red fringed flower. The Mrs. Chas. Russell roses could have held up their heads in the Beauty class; such stems and flowers were never seen here on any rose other than Beauty. Mrs. George Shawyer also proved itself grand on the exhibition table. Milady looks like a good choice in red; compared with some fine blooms of Richmond it showed color, petals and general build of the flower to be better than Richmond, flowers not quite so large. Pier-son's Indian Summer, a sport of Chadwick Supreme, shows a color never before seen in a mum. It is brown, not bronze or red or yellow; just a clear brown, a color that will take. Both Smith and Totty also had some wonderful new mums.

Begonias Lorraine and Cincinnati, as shown by Hart Bros., were the finest ever seen at this date.

There was one vase of roses that was of special interest; White Cochet cut from the field November 11 and shown November 16, fully as fine flowers as any other standard sort shown, but stems only eighteen inches long. It was shown by Gasser.

NAME OF PLANT.

I send a branch of a plant for identification. It is growing on a mountain at Helena, Mont., at an elevation of 5,000 feet, and while we have had several killing frosts and a good deal of snow, it is still green and blooming. J. P. R.

This appears to be a form of Matricaria inodorum, probably plenissima. It also is called Chrysanthemum inodorum, and has been naturalized and become wild in many states. C. W.

DISCOLORED PLUMOSUS.

We are enclosing some specimens of Asparagus plumosus for examination. We are at a loss to understand why it dries around the edges and has those little white spots on it. What is the matter with it? The soil is in good condition, as far as we know. Perhaps the house has been a little cool. Any information will be appreciated. E. F. C.

The specimens forwarded with this query indicate that the asparagus in question has been allowed to get too dry at the root at some previous time. Asparagus plumosus is rather a gross feeder after the plants become well established, and when in that condition will take up a good deal of water. RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.It isn't the size of one's business but the promptness with which one meets his obligations that determines one's standing.DON'T pay money to traveling subscription agents. Review representatives all are well known in their respective communities.NOT a few subscribers save themselves
the bother of annual renewal by sending
The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.DODGE the price-cutter—the man who will give you something for nothing. Be perfectly sure no man's wares are worth more than he asks for them. It applies to advertising as well as other commodities florists buy.QUITE as a matter of course people prefer to trade with the prompt-pay, prosperous, progressive firms in any line.
The big, prosperous concern gives the best service, or it wouldn't have become big and prosperous.WHEN you run across a buyer who says "So-and-So is good enough for me," though you know So-and-So has been left hopelessly behind in the race, it raises the question as to whether that buyer is worth converting.THERE are those who believe the best way for them is to divide their purchases, giving a little business to everyone in the field. Yet these same buyers know that in selling they give their best to the customers who lump their purchases. Of course such accounts are too good to neglect.A BUFFALO florist handles his overdue accounts through a private "adjustment" office. He has letter-heads printed without street address, merely giving a postoffice box. Then, when he cannot make direct collections, he turns the accounts over to the "adjuster," which is himself under another name.

VOICE FROM THE BAY STATE.

The best judgment is the deliberate opinion of the man who is far enough away to get the correct perspective—but, then, The Review's subscription list shows that the trade is practically of one mind:I find The Review a great help and think it the best paper published for the trade.—Robert Rod-den, Newton Center, Mass., November 17, 1912.

STOCK PLANTS TWO YEARS OLD.

Perhaps my experience with a bench of stock geraniums would be of interest to Review readers. I have a raised bench of Nutt geraniums that havebeen planted over two years and have never had a change of soil except to take off about an inch of the top each fall, replacing same and working in some high-grade commercial fertilizer with the hands. These plants are still giving an abundance of thrifty cuttings of a deep green color.

A. B. Reynolds.

IN DAILY USE.

A publication is useful to its advertisers just in proportion to its usefulness to its readers. The Review is issued weekly, but it is in daily use:The Review is a paper that is of daily use in my business, for it contains valuable information on every subject connected with a growing florists' business.—W. E. Johnson, Corning, N. Y., November 21, 1912.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed, November 22, against Butler Florist, Inc., Eugene G.
MacCan, president, conducting a retail flower store at 18 East Forty-sixth street. A receiver was appointed. Otterbourg, Steindler & Houston, attorneys for the petitioning creditors, say:
"This step was made imperative by the threatening actions of certain creditors and particularly by the fact that the rent is unpaid for the months of October and November and the landlord had given the bankrupt one week to move out. We are informed that the liabilities greatly exceed the tangible assets of the corporation." The petitioning creditors were Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, $386; Paul Meconi, $116, and N. Lecakes & Co., Inc., $57. It was alleged that the corporation admitted in writing inability to pay its debts. Liabilities are $3,000 and assets $1,500.
The business was started about twenty years ago. Eugene G. MacCan bought it in 1904 and incorporated it October 4, 1912, with capital stock of $5,000, and became president.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

It has been an interesting market since last report. The best feature of it has been the pronounced increase in the volume of business. Last week began with quiet days, but there was brisk business as the week drew to a close, and at the beginning of the present week there was the Thanksgiving demand to help out.The chrysanthemum has been the dominating flower. Reversing the previous condition, the close of last week found the market oversupplied with the big special fancy blooms, which could not be cleared at prices approaching their real value. On the other hand, there was a sharp increase in the demand for good, clean flowers of the medium grade. Bonnaffon was especially popular. Some of the big growers and large handlers found themselves with an overstock of the best grade mums, while they were under the necessity of going into the market to purchase medium sized blooms to go out on heavy shipping orders. Pompons shared in the improved demand.Roses also came to the front strongly at the end of last week. Where it had been necessary to make attractive prices to clean up, the demand became so good

AN ABUNDANCE OF FANCY ROSES

A LARGE CROP NOW IN FULL SWING.

There are three strong reasons why the thinking buyers are ordering their Roses of us this season: In the first place, it is well known that better Roses cannot be grown; in the second place, we have a full line—the largest in the market; and, thirdly, we have this year fully doubled our supply—from new glass—so can take good care of a large number of new customers.

KILLARNEY	WHITE KILLARNEY	RICHMOND
RADIANCE	BULGARIE (Taft)	SUNBURST
MRS. AARON WARD	MY, MARYLAND

ORCHIDS

Our Cattleyas are coming in stronger just as the general autumn crop throughout the country is passing off. We shall have fine Cattleyas in increasing quantity from now on. You always can get Cattleyas if you order here.

VIOLETS

If you are not getting your share of the corsage work, probably it is because you do not use our Violets. There are none better to be had, and unless your competitor uses ours probably his Violets are not so good as yours will be if you order of us.

CARNATIONS

You can get here all the Carnations your trade demands. The stock is good. The flowers are the equal of anything to be found in this section and the stems are all that you would ask. From now on our Carnations should occupy a prominent place in your store.

BEAUTIES

It is well known that our supply of Beauties is the largest and by far the steadiest in the west, and probably in the entire United States, while the quality is all that the most critical buyer could ask. Order direct of us.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

This is Chrysanthemum headquarters. We had the largest supply and the best quality of early Mums, the finest midseason sorts, and now you can count on us for the big fancy late varieties.

Poinsettias are ready to cut on receipt of your order.

CHRISTMAS

Buyers who appreciate the high quality of our stock are insuring themselves against any possibility of disappointment by placing Christmas orders with us now. What will you need?

that the wholesalers were once more in command of the situation. It is not frequent that the improvement is so rapid, especially while chrysanthemums are so abundant. The greater part of the rose receipts now are from medium to long. There is an oversupply of the better grades of White Killarney, quite serious in some cases. These are too good to use in funeral work and are not wanted for other purposes. Beauties have shared in the increased demand and, though prices have been good for several weeks, they are better now. Most of the Beauties are long in stem and perfect in color.

Carnations had their place in general improvement last week. The crops appear to be not so heavy as at this time last year and prices fully as good as normal are being obtained. Red and dark pink are in extremely light supply.

Violets have become of excellent quality and there has been a distinct improvement in the demand, though there still is a great deal of difference in the opinions as to their value. The supply is large. Cattleyas are not in heavy supply. The labiatas now coming in are extremely good and are realizing fine prices. The small cattleyas, like Percivaliana and Schröderiana are not in much request, being thought too small. Dendrobiums sell fairly well and oncidium has been taken by some of the leading retailers locally for table work. Easter lilies have been something of a drug during the chrysanthemum season. Though not in heavy supply, still they have accumulated until an opportunity would present itself for moving a quantity at an attractive price. There are only a few callas. Not many Paper Whites are arriving. Stevia has become abundant and much of it is fine. Mignonette is not yet specially good. There are a few good antirrhinums and occasionally poinsettias are seen.

The green goods market presents little that is new. There is an abundance of everything. Prices in this department steadily are falling, each season finding greens a little cheaper than they were before.

tion went into operation at the beginning of the present week. It is similar to the organization that is said to have worked so well in New York in the last couple of years. The wholesalers notify the manager, who is a Mr. Webb, identified with the Wilbur Mercantile Agency, of all the accounts that are unpaid on the twenty-fifth day of the month following purchase and the manager then supplies each member with a list of all the delinquents. The members sell only for cash until notified that the delinquent accounts are paid. It is figured that the plan will work to the advantage of buyers who have paid promptly, as well as to the advantage of the wholesalers; also that it will furnish an incentive to a number of retailers who have let their capi-

Various Notes.

It is announced that December 1 Victor Bergman will sever his connection with the E. Wienhoeber Co., with which he has been identified all his business life, and enter into partnership with John Canger, who heretofore has done business under the name of Canger & Gormley. Mr. Gormley died several years ago. The new store at 412 Michigan avenue, in the Fine Arts building, has brought, it is said, an improvement in trade which affords an excellent opportunity for a young man of Mr. Bergman's well known abilities.

Paul M. Bryant is no longer with the Foley Mfg. Co.

Appearances indicate that the Batavia Greenhouse Co. is having its most successful year to date.

Peter Reinberg is practically cleaned up on chrysanthemums, according to Tim Matchen, and the space will now be used for propagating.

The Cook County Florists' Association held an exceptionally interesting meeting at the Tavern November 21, the special feature being an address by Walter Scott, of La Grange, on "Character as a Factor in Business Success." The talk did not relate directly to the flower business, but the speaker pointed out that the same qualities that bring success in any other line are needed to achieve success in this trade. President A. C. Kohlbrand appointed committees to act at the big dance the association will give at Bush Temple December 4. Frank Oechslein, C. Frauenfelder, Arthur Denkmund and C. L. Washburn were elected to membership. J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, president-elect of the S. A. F., was elected to honorary membership and invited to lecture before the association at its January meeting. There will be no meeting in December because of the Christmas rush.

J. H. McNeilly still is trying to hire a clerk.

August Poehlmann's new Winton Six automobile was delivered November 16.

H. E. Klunder has gone to Cincinnati to enter the employ of the Hill-Heller Co.

R. A. Eckstrom, chief engineer for the Fehr Construction Co., who erected the concrete stack for Bassett & Washburn at the new Gregg's Station plant, announces that the smokestack business of that firm has been taken over by the Armoured Structures Co. The latter concern will make a specialty of concrete greenhouse smokestacks and Mr. Eckstrom, having become a member of the concern, will have complete charge of this end of the business. The new offices will be at 305 Monadnock building.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has secured the entire fourth floor of the building at 72 and 74 East Randolph street, in which it already occupies the entire second floor. Possession will be obtained January 1. The space will be used for the expansion of the supply department.

A. H. Budlong has been at Mudlavia for several weeks, trying to get into first-class health again. This has thrown the responsibility for the greenhouse end of the Budlong business onto P. C. Schupp, as well as the selling end.

Wietor Bros. say they think they are fortunate in having a couple of houses of Chadwick and Golden Chadwick still to cut. N. J. Wietor is counting on a banner December.

Bert Cole, who has charge of the Beauties in the store of the E. C. Ameling Co., and Miss Olive Katherine Lloyd were married on the evening of November 21 at 2519 Indiana avenue. The announcement was a surprise to their friends.

The Chicago Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting December 5. It will be election night and R. Vincent, Jr., president of the S. A. F., is expected to be present and to deliver his illustrated lecture on the London flower show.

Norby & Hoefel, Des Plaines, hit Thanksgiving just right with their crop of Bonnaffon. E. E. Pieser says he thinks that in spite of the talk of lower prices for mums, the Bonnaffons averaged better prices than last year. C. W. McKellar has put in a line of flowering plants for the holidays and has a gay window.

Another good room is vacant in the Atlas block, suitable for a wholesale florist. It is the one adjoining the store of the Chicago Carnation Co., once occupied by the Benthey-Coatsworth Co.

John Michelsen says he thinks roses never before have gone through the chrysanthemum season as well as this year.

The travelers of the A. L. Randall Co. are home to spend the next three weeks in helping out with the rush of mail orders for florists' supplies.

Winterson's Seed Store reports the cleanest sales of bulbs since starting in business. Scarcely a bulb remained in the house November 25. Winding green wreathing will begin in a day or two.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., says there will be no shortage of fancy long roses in this market between now and the middle of January.

Adam Zender says the Holton & Hunkel Greenhouse Co., Milwaukee, in which he is interested, is considering plans for a new range of glass. The concern has been extremely successful.

O. W. Frese reports the presence in the market November 23 of Mrs. E. M. Irby, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, engaging material for several large wedding jobs for early December.

The Bohannon Floral Co. is using a new automobile for delivery.

W. H. Hilton saw in The Review the cut of the Thanksgiving poster distributed by the New York Florists' Club, wrote for a poster, and now has it displayed in his window on Fifty-third street.

J. P. Sinner still is at Alexian Brothers hospital, except during the

The Market.

Business seems to have picked up quite a little during the last few days, although the weather continues to be clear and so nice that those of society who usually give teas and receptions during the afternoons through the fall are spending much of their time outdoors. Funeral work continues to be quite heavy and many of the local firms are receiving large numbers of orders from concerns in other cities for local delivery.

A fairly good business is looked for from now on and it is expected that Thanksgiving trade will be large. There will be plenty of stock of all kinds for all purposes, although the prices may advance. Violets are somewhat better than they have been, but it appears as though some of the growers are holding a part of their supply, awaiting the approach of the holiday. Chrysanthemums are to be had at all prices from $1 to $4 per dozen, the best sellers being those wholesaling at from $1.50 to $2. Roses are quite plentiful and the demand for short-stemmed stock is much better than it has been for some time. The call for the long-stemmed and better grades of roses is not as heavy as it was some days ago.

Carnations are in a little better demand and there are enough coming in to fill all orders. Valley is perhaps not as good as it might be, there being a scarcity of high grade stock. Greens are moving along nicely, with wild southern smilax slightly scarce. Some good Cattleya labiata is to be had at about $7.50 per dozen, a slightly better price than has been previously asked.

Various Notes.

Some 200 or more florists, their families and other guests accepted the invitation sent out by the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. to be present at the opening of the new store at 1216 H street, northwest, November 21. The store was elaborately decorated for the occasion and a good showing made of chrysanthemums, orchids, carnations and roses. Hidden behind a bank of palms and ferns was a stringed orchestra which played the popular airs. A feature of the evening was the xylophone playing by a young man and young lady and the piano solos rendered from time to time. During the evening a buffet luncheon was served. Mr. McKissick, manager of the local branch, had the reception in charge and he was assisted by Mrs. McKissick, Miss Minnie Shea and Messrs. Bauer and Mastin, of the store force, and Messrs. Shattmeier, Hengle and Oehmler. Charles E. Meehan and Edward J. Fancourt, of Philadelphia, were also present to greet their friends. C. L. L.

The Market.

Anticipations of a big Thanksgiving business will have, I hope, become a reality when this report reaches its readers. The retail florists are awaking to the fact that nothing so stimulates business on these special days as suggestive store and window trimming. Growers also are helping to increase the use of flowers on all special days by supplying the market with large quantities of good quality stock.

Yellow mums, always in demand for Thanksgiving, are in large supply. The quantity of roses available also is good and, since the advent of Melody, Lady Hillingdon, Aaron Ward, etc., roses in these colors are in demand for all occasions where before yellow roses were rarely seen. Beauties are not of such

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

There has been a decided improvement in the cut flower market. The demand proves sufficiently strong to take most of the good stock coming to town. Prices have been firm; in some cases they have advanced.

Chrysanthemums continue to be the leading flower. The late varieties are in full crop. Yellow is more plentiful than any other color. So healthy has been the tone of the market that the experts confidently predict a buoyant Thanksgiving. They base this prediction on the certainty of a decreased supply and on the probability of an increased demand. As usual toward the end of the season, pompons find favor with the buyers, while singles, when they can be had, prove popular.

Roses are decidedly off crop with nearly all the growers. Everybody crops for December nowadays, although a few of the knowing ones are bringing some houses in for Thanksgiving. Beauties have not been in especial demand, but other roses have been, causing firmer prices. Short white roses have sold well in direct contrast to the longer grades. There has been a decided increase in the demand for Richmond.

Carnations have enjoyed their first boom since the arrival of the autumn queen. The Wards, Pink Delight and a few fancy blooms of other sorts advanced to 4 cents in face of strong demand and light receipts. A curious change came over the violet market, the singles, so far the leaders, giving place to the doubles as favorites without any apparent reason, unless it be that both Hightstown and the Hudson river are shipping superb stock. Valley has been short of the demand at times. Gardenias have increased to an extent that exceeds requirements. The chief feature of the orchid situation is that nobody wants Cattleya Percivaliana; they are too small, and prices must be low to move them. Superbum is the leading oncidium. Cypripediums are becoming more plentiful. Both Easter lilies and callas are in fair demand. Paper

Whites, Romans and stevia have come, while smilax has enjoyed a lively week.

The Cabinet.

J. Otto Thilow, president of the Florists' Club, has announced a list of his advisers, who will assume their duties on Tuesday next. Here is the official list: Secretary of state, David Rust; secretary of the treasury, George Craig; secretary of the interior, Frederick Hahman; postmaster-general, Edward Reid; commissioner of recreation, William Graham; commissioner of immigration, Henry F. Michell; commissioner of horticulture, Robert Craig; commissioner of exhibits, Robert Kift; secretary of commerce and labor, Samuel S. Pennock.

The elevation of Edward Reid to the office of postmaster-general, stated by President Thilow in his Boston speech as being the most important in his cabinet, is favorably received. Mr. Reid will have charge of the essays of each meeting. The creation of a new office, styled above as commerce and labor, sometimes given the ugly appellation of publicity, is modernism. Mr. Pennock, who has been assigned to this important position, is entrusted with the duty of securing for us better and broader pastures.

Pottery Activity.

J. G. Whilldin, president of the Whilldin Pottery Co., announces that Walter Galloway has been elevated to the position of secretary and treasurer of the company. Mr. Galloway is a young man of promise, son of William Galloway, his predecessor in that office. Mr. Whilldin also announces the purchase by his company of thirteen lots, 25x100 feet each, situated on the main street of New Durham, a station on the Erie railroad, just outside of Jersey City. Plans have been drawn for a handsome building to be used as a warehouse, to be erected next spring. The main office of the company in this city has been strengthened by the addition of a 120 horse-power engine and some new machinery. Mr. Whilldin has secured the services of P. M. Read, one of the best known newspaper men of this city, as a representative of the company.

Sharon Hill.

When a place is large and is also interesting, it becomes necessary to center attention on two or three points when you are describing that place. If you do not do this, the result is a rambling, ramshackle sort of description such as nobody reads, or, if they should read it once, they would never, never do it again. So when you mentally search for the strong points that stand out clearly above all others at Robert Scott & Son's, you think of the new roses and of the gardenias.

Alexander B. Scott was the first man to discover how to flower gardenias in midwinter, and he has not forgotten. The proof of this assertion lies in the splendid condition of the gardenias. They are the picture of health and full of buds. Mr. Scott has had a good many gardenias during the fall, some of them unusually early, through special methods of culture.

the rose novelties; a single rose that is to make its debut next spring. A whole house is filled with it, presenting a charming appearance, vigorous, graceful in form and foliage, with buds of an unusual combination of colors, intense fiery crimson-scarlet at the tip, shading at the base of the petals to orange salmon. It is a rose that appeals to a refined taste in flowers. There are other interesting novelties of promise: Mrs. Ford, Janet, Killarney Brilliant. Flowers are being cut from all three varieties. Probably all three will come out within the next two years. Then there are many varieties in the nursery stage, selected by Mr. Scott from the Newtownards grounds of Alex. Dickson & Sons and brought here for trial under glass.

Various Notes.

B. Eschner says that last Sunday was the first time that the force of M. Rice & Co. were obliged to work all of the seventh day. Following six evenings of work, this gives an idea of the stress of orders that must be gotten out. Mr. Eschner attributes the run of business to the preference given their own factory-made supplies over the imported.

The Market.

The week before Thanksgiving saw a heavy falling off in the receipts of cut flowers and, although business was comparatively light, prices stiffened. November 22 and 23 saw an excellent demand for violets, red chrysanthemums and carnations. The present week started with a decidedly improved tone and at this time the outlook for Thanksgiving trade is excellent, although no fancy prices are probable.

Chrysanthemums are steadily declining in numbers. The old reliable Bonaffon is still easily the leader. Other varieties seen in quantity are Eaton, Mrs. Jerome Jones, Maud Dean, Jeanne Nonin, Dr. Enguehard, Dr. Galloway and President Wilson. There is also a good supply of late pompons, such as but sell well this week, as does lily of the valley. The supply of stevia is now abundant, also Paper White narcissi. There is a fine supply of calendulas, candytuft, bachelor's buttons, snapdragons and cosmos.

Cattleyas have shortened up. Some C. Percivaliana in addition to C. labiata are now to be seen. There are plenty of cypripediums, but the call for these is only moderate. Gardenias are in demand this week. There is an excellent call for adiantum and asparagus.

Growers of pot plants have had a good trade in Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens, azaleas, poinsettias, berried plants, palms, etc. It is unusual to see so many well developed poinsettias as early as Thanksgiving.

Various Notes.

Elijah Cartwright, of Wellesley, had a fine crop of Bonnaffon mums for Thanksgiving. He will follow these with stocks and other spring flowers.

Aubrey A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, is sending to the Boston Flower Exchange large quantities of Gloriosa, Pink Delight, White Enchantress, Beacon and Beverly carnations. The last named is one of Mr. Pembroke's seedlings, salmon pink in color, and sells extremely well.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, are equipped for a heavy Thanksgiving trade. They have a grand lot of pot plants, including a splendid lot of poinsettias in pans.

Willow Hill Greenhouses, of West Roxbury, have this week a fine lot of Garza, Diana and Savannah among small mums, and Chadwick and President Wilson among the larger ones. The last named is a fine deep yellow.

H. L. Cox, of Winchester, and C. A. Sanborn, of Woburn, are each excellent growers of single violets, their picks being disposed of by E. J. Rogean at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, have had a great demand this season for their Baby yellow pompon mums, which they grew heavily. They also have White Bonnaffon, Bonnaffon and other late single-stemmed sorts, as well as lilies in quantity.

N. F. Comley, of Lexington, is bringing in sweet peas, cosmos and Bonnaffon mums in quantity this week.

Perry Green, of Quincy, is again the

We spent one entire season in looking around in the South for the best Boxwood that we could buy. We visited the plantations where Boxwood was planted and made our selection. We possibly spent more time making this selection than most buyers and experienced dealers can afford. You will agree that Boxwood Sprays at 8c and 10c per pound are expensive when you only receive 6 to 8 ounces of material that you can use out of a pound. We recommend to the purchaser our Boxwood Sprays for good value, full weight and little waste. Our price for this quality is $7.50 for a 50-lb. case. Write us on quantity orders; we can figure closer.

Bouquet Green, Evergreen Wreathing, Xmas Trees, Holly, Etc.

Why do Barnard's Xmas decorations lead in quality? Because we send our own men from Chicago to the different green countries to superintend the selection, cutting, and packing of Holly, Bouquet Greens, Xmas Trees, etc. They are men of twenty years' experience and are well acquainted with the requirements of the most critical florists. They are instructed that the best is just good enough for our trade.

EVERGREEN WREATHING, HOLLY WREATHS, ETC.,

Are made on our own premises, under our own supervision. They have style in appearance and are perfect in workmanship. We have the most competent and experienced operators in our employ and can make lowest prices on anything in the Xmas decoration line.

Our complete book on Xmas decorations and Xmas sundries will be ready Dec. 1st, and will be mailed free for the asking.

season's introduction, is now fine with him.

R. D. Kimball, of Woburn, has fine single violets this season. No finer Harry Fenn carnations than his are seen, and in mums he knows how to grow Chadwick well.

J. Streifer & Son, of Weymouth, grow mums in considerable variety, but with Dr. Galloway and Glenview they have made a decided hit this week.

Henry W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is just finishing his mum cut. It has been a successful season for him with them. He has now a fine lot of Paper Whites and stevia daily.

November has proven an unusually warm month. So far we have had eleven days with shade temperatures over 60 degrees, and clear skies have been the rule.

The annual election of officers of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will occur December 17. There promises to be a particularly keen contest for places on the executive committee, there being twelve candidates for four places.

John T. Butterworth had a splendid cut of Cattleya labiata for Thanksgiving. He always manages to flower them later than other growers and gets much better returns for them in consequence.

Johnson, the Quincy florist, has just completed a thorough overhauling of his neat store on Hancock street. Besides painting and decorating it, he has added a new refrigerator and mirrors, and now his store is one to be proud of.

HOLLY

I HAVE just completed my contracts with the Holly people of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia for my supply for the season of 1912. I secured my Holly this year to be cut from the swamps in the lower part of Delaware and Maryland, as it is greener and has more berries on than the upland Holly. It will be strictly first-class in every particular. I will have it packed as usual, in regular size cases, 2x2x4, and I positively guarantee it as represented. My first car will arrive here about December 1. The price on orders received during November will be $3.00 per case, f. o. b. Philadelphia.

I have my Wreaths made of the brightest dark green Holly possible to secure, wrapped with wire, on 10-inch hoops, and each Wreath has four or five spots of berries. Price, $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 per 100, according to weight and quality.

My Laurel Wreathing comes from New Jersey. The Laurel is gathered in the swamps, and the Wreathing is made by hand on heavy roping in 50-yard lengths. Price, 3c per yd.

The Mistletoe comes mostly from North and South Carolina and is well berried. Price, $2.50 to $4.00 per barrel; $6.00 to $10.00 per case, according to quality, about 100 lbs. to case.

Lycopodium, in 10-yard rolls, 4c to 6c per yard.

Christmas Trees, 5 to 20 feet high, 75c to $2.50 each.

Send me your orders; state the day you want it shipped, and if by freight or express and by what route or railroad.

All Christmas Greens are sold on spot cash terms, and checks must accompany all orders.

ended the motion, which was carried unanimously. A lively interest in the coming exposition already makes itself felt among the local growers, and no doubt a keen rivalry will be shown at the coming exposition. Secretary C. R. Panter was appointed to represent the society at the fair. A vote of thanks was tendered to Richard Vincent, Jr., to Harry Papworth and to the Progressive Union in connection with the interesting lecture given here recently by Mr. Vincent. Harry Dresel, the eminent rose grower for the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., exhibited the following novelties of indoor-grown roses: Prince de Arenberg, Edward Mawley, Reine Mere d'Italie, Principal Pirrie, Mayflower, Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Double White Killarney, and a seedling produced by him. The parent is Rhea Reid x American Beauty. The shape and color are like the former, but it is much larger and fuller, with the fragrance of the latter. His display attracted special attention and Mr. Dresel was the recipient of hearty congratulations on his success in adding such a valuable acquisition to the newly introduced varieties. A fine specimen of Begonia Lorraine was also shown by the same exhibitor.

Various Notes.

Henry Ziegler has established for himself a fine trade, both in landscape work and in the general florists' business. He intends to grow stock for the wholesale market on a large tract of land out of town.

Wm. Nelson, one of the pioneers of the pecan industry, who introduced such standard varieties as the Nelson, Frotcher, etc., has part of his new place of three acres devoted to pecan culture. The rest will be used for the wholesale growing of sweet peas, Easter lilies, asters, snapdragons and mums. Mr. Nelson is a veteran in the business and a successful grower.

The Bollwinkle Seed Co. reports a constant increase in trade, both local and mail order. R. E.

Des Moines, Ia.—When J. S. Wilson returned from the big St. Paul flower show, at which he was one of the judges, he was enthusiastic in his praise of the exhibition and stated that he could see no reason why Des Moines might not also have a successful show. It is stated, therefore, that this city will have a flower show next year, if plans now being made by Mr. Wilson are carried forward to completion.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business last week was nothing to boast of. While there was a little funeral work, trade is not what it should be for this time of the year. Stock is not overplentiful and the prices will be stiff for Thanksgiving. Roses, Beauties and carnations are scarce. There is a fair supply of mums, but the prices will be firm. The pompon varieties have been in fair demand, but the prices have not been as high as heretofore. Eastern double violets are being shipped in daily and have been selling well.

Various Notes.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has the new conservatory completed and ready for business. This is a modern greenhouse, with an elegant entrance on Delaware street. There is a cellar under the entire house and, with the additional room and conveniences, this should add materially to the facilities for handling the ever increasing business.

Ernest Fisher, with A. Wiegand & Sons, has a new baby girl at his house. Jay Lytle, with the same firm, spent a couple of days in Brown county hunting last week. He says there is nothing to it, as four rabbits were the extent of his bag.

W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, was in the city last week, attending the ceremonial of the Mystic Shrine.

Robert Fohl, with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co., is the proud father of a baby girl.

J. J. Karins, with Henry A. Dreer, and C. B. Knickman, with McHutchison & Co., called on the trade here last week.

George Wiegand spent a few days with Harry Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., in Cleveland this week.

Frank Hasselman, who has been spending a month in the west, reports that he bagged a deer on one of his hunting trips.

George Gause, of Richmond, attended the convocation of the Scottish Rite last week.

Battle Creek, Mich.—At a recent meeting of the Battle Creek Horticultural Society, S. W. Coggan was elected as one of the vice-presidents. Fourteen new members were added to the list and the indications point, it is said, to a membership of 1,000 before next spring. The society decided to make use of a question box in its programs and to have the box placed in Mr. Coggan's store for the reception of queries.

LETTUCE ROT.

Will you kindly suggest some means by which we can keep our lettuce from rotting off? We prepare the ground, which is a black loam, with lots of manure in it. We keep the ground moist and give plenty of ventilation. The plants start to grow satisfactorily, but in the course of a week they begin to rot off in different spots. Sometimes they are nearly ready to cut before they rot off. We should like to overcome this. If there is a remedy, will someone kindly suggest it? K. & P.

I am inclined to think the lettuce is watered too often and kept too wet, and also that too much green manure is mixed with the soil. The rotting off is caused by a disease that begins in the form of a mold on the wet surface of the soil and on the particles of green manure which are not turned under. When this fungus reaches the plants it grows on them also, and rots them off close to the ground.

The way to prevent this rotting or fungous disease is to have the manure mixed with the soil several months before the soil is wanted inside, so as to be thoroughly rotted and incorporated with the soil. If manure is put in just before planting, it should be rotted manure and should also be carefully turned under, so as to leave none on top of the surface.

Do not water too often. Keep the soil moist, but not really wet. This is best done by watering heavily when you do water and then not wetting the beds again until more water is really needed. Keep the ventilators open every day and a little at night when the weather is mild. Stir or cultivate the crust of

THE JACKSON PECAN GROVES

PAPER SHELLS

THE NUT

With a fortune in it.
With a college education.
For the epicure and the esthete.
With the greatest demand of any nut in the world.
That sells for many times the price of the hard-shell pecan and for more than any other nut.

THE TREE

That lives for centuries.
That has no vital enemies.
That bears each and every year.
That produces more money than any tree in the world.
Our trees bear the fourth year from the transplanting, or seven years from the planting of the nut.

THE ACRE

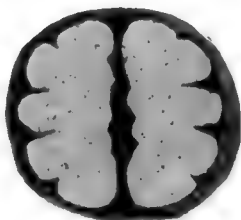

Has twenty pecan trees.
Will pay for itself in nuts inside of seven years.

THE GROVE

Has five acres—one hundred trees.
Will support a family in five years from 1912.
Our experience shows that our trees annually double their crops in the beginning and then rapidly increase for a generation.
Practically none of the tap-roots of our trees were cut off when they were transplanted. We know this to be a very important feature.

THE INCOME

From five acres of Paper Shell Pecans from the Jackson Groves we estimate will, in five years from date, be greater than the revenue from $25,000 invested in

Premier Nuts of the World

Steel Common, or the income from $50,000 in Government bonds.

THE REASON

For the sale of these privately planted groves is the closing of the estate of the Jackson Brothers and Mr. C. C. Batey, of Baeonton, Georgia, where, under the expert care of Mr. Batey, these trees were all grown, budded and planted.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Is only one in a lifetime; we have thoroughly investigated the matter and we stake our reputation on the results.

THE PRICE

Is $20.00 per tree if you take the nuts, or $12.00 per tree if the Company receives the nuts for the five years of your purchase contract, during which time we bond ourselves to scientifically care for these groves.

THE TERMS

Are ten per cent down and the balance in sixty monthly payments. No charges for pruning, fertilizing or cultivating.

You don't have to leave your business to secure this income. The Jackson Pecan Groves Company will gather nut crop and sell it for you for ten per cent.

Go and see our three, four, five, six and seven year old trees, all of which are bearing this year, and be convinced of their annual increasing yield. We will show you $10.00 worth of nuts on our seven-year-old trees. We will pay the entire expense of investigation from your home and return if you find our proposition not as good as represented.

Many of the groves that we are selling are bearing now.

The Market.

In anticipation of Thanksgiving, prices for all cut flowers improved November 23, and are expected to continue firm until the holiday. No sudden rise in values is expected. The day for abnormal increase for holidays is over.

The rose supply for Thanksgiving will be ample for all requirements, including shipments out of town, for which gradually returning and encouraging feature of the New York wholesale trade let us also give thanks. American Beauties touched 35 cents November 23. The quality is now at its best. Several of the novelties will doubtless vie with the Beauty this week, especially Mrs. Shawyer, Mrs. Russell, Lady Stanley and Milady. In fact, all the grand novelties in roses this season are sensational for their power to arouse the interest of the high class trade. The old varieties now are at their top in development of bud and stem and are selling well, Killarney Queen and Double White Killarney especially so. A scarcity of white roses and also of the No. 2 grade was noticeable at the close of last week. There is a great abundance of Killarney.

The orchid shipments have decreased somewhat and prices have become firmer. A good many orchid corsages were on exhibition at the horse show, or at least held their own as a part of the society display. The leading flower stores make much decorative use of oncidiums. Carnations are abundant, but the market was completely depleted of red carnations November 23, thanks to Harvard and the football game. Also, Yale absorbed immense quantities of violets. Good valley commands 4 cents and of this select grade there is never a surplus. Lilies also have strengthened and the market absorbs at better prices all that now arrive. The gardenia supply also is not over abundant, especially the higher grades.

No shortage in violets is anticipated and Thanksgiving prices were quoted in advance at 75 cents to $1 per hundred. Daisies, sweet peas, narcissi and bouvardia are in limited supply.

The mum season started early and will end with the old year, and evidently not before. Prices have not been satisfactory to the growers. The enormous supply reduced values at least one-half and grand stock was selling last week at $2 per dozen that brought $4 and $5 in other years. There has been an oversupply of pompons. Bonaffon lost none of its popularity with its inevitable lowering of value. Chadwick and Eaton are prime favorites. Golden Wedding, Enguehard and Maud Dean still are as popular as ever. The new varieties and the prize-winning novelties that are still left are all sold before they reach New York.

It is the general opinion in wholesale circles that "the good times coming" are overdue and that Thursday will mark the era of normal and better days for grower, retailer and wholesaler in "little old New York."

Various Notes.

December 9 will be the final meeting of the Florists' Club for 1912. In addition to the exhibits of novelties and important arrangements as to the National Flower Show, it will be election night and there will be keen competition for several of the honors of office.

Interest in the National Flower Show is widening. Chairman Totty thinks and talks about little else and begins to see success, even in his dreams. The entertainment committee met November 25 at the Hotel Earlington. Elaborate plans are under way for a rousing welcome to all who come.

The publicity committee, with I. S. Hendrickson as chairman, has met with much encouragement in its effort to increase the Thanksgiving trade. The illustrated posters were in every retail window and copies have been sent for from a dozen other cities. The movement, of which Wallace R. Pierson is the father, is spreading and if results are up to expectations a strong effort will be made to have the Christmas work universal.

The verdict of the retail trade last week was decidedly optimistic. The horse show, many notable balls and banquets, and several weddings kept the retailers active.

The large hotels have never decorated so lavishly and they have made their palm displays permanent. Grand palms are in every hostelry of prominence, and bay trees, boxwood and ivy are unstintedly utilized for outdoor adornment. If an up-to-date florist can secure the floral and decorative contract for one of these hotel palaces, it is "sufficiency." The rest of his business is "velvet."

The nurserymen have much cause to celebrate Thanksgiving this year. They are still shipping and planting. Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, say there has never been such a season in their fifteen years' experience, nor anything approaching it.

A new bouquet called The Suffragette is one of M. A. Bowe's latest creations.

Peter Mallon has opened an elaborate store at 640 Fulton street, at the corner of Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn. His son, former manager for Trepel at Gimbel's, is associated with him. The display windows are the largest in the city.

The gardeners of New York and vicinity have arranged for a banquet and bowling tournament at Thumm's alleys, Thirty-first street and Broadway, early in December.

Bowling clubs are numerous here this season. Flatbush, Astoria, Rutherford, and now Yonkers, all have good, active clubs. But the New York Florists' Club to date has failed to enthruse even a baker's dozen out of a membership of over 300.

All the wholesale cut flower houses in Brooklyn appear to be prosperous and are handling large quantities of fine mums, roses and carnations. Some of the best carnation growers on Long

Jones were seen at the wholesale markets, with top price for the fancy at $3 per dozen. The Beauty crop is not so heavy just now; in fact, fancy long Beauties are scarce and in demand. The shorter grades are more plentiful. Killarney, Richmond and Maryland show fine color and stems. They are abundant in all grades. Some fine Ward and Bulgare are also seen, but not any too many. Carnations are becoming extra good in color and stem and there seems to be a good crop on at present. Enchantress, Ward, White Wonder and others are seen at any of the wholesale houses in quantities enough to supply the demand, with top price at $4 per hundred. Violets are selling well and the price advanced last week to 75 cents for the best California. It is said a good crop is on for this week. Paper Whites and stevias are selling fairly well. Lilies and valley had a good week.

Various Notes.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. gave its annual feast to the local growers, at its place on Pine street, November 23. Over fifty growers from Kirkwood, Clayton, Webster and Old Orchard came in to spend the evening. A jolly crowd it was, with plenty of refreshments and good cigars. The entertainment consisted of singing, story-telling and moving pictures. W. C. Smith, Wm. Ossick, "Paddy" Patton, Oscar Kuehn and "Billy" Vogel, in fact the whole force, made things lively. All say they had the time of their lives and the night will be long remembered.

C. Young & Sons Co. is showing a fine lot of the old-time camellia blossoms, both pink and white. They go well in funeral work.

Julius Schaefer has left the employ of M. M. Ayres. It is rumored that he will open a place of his own, on Olive street near Grand avenue.

J. F. Ammann and Henry Blixen, of the J. F. Ammann Co., Edwardsville, Ill., in company with W. C. Smith, paid a visit to Werner Bros., at Clayton, last week. They inspected the big rose houses, which were found in fine shape. This concern has been cutting fancy Killarneys and Richmond, which are sold here by the Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

John Held is cutting some fine Golden Wedding, also white and yellow Chad-Charlie Young and John Bentzen say their efforts in organizing a florists' bowling league will soon bear fruit. They have lined up a lot of young blood.

Violets have been in big demand all the week and some good consignments are coming in from Kirkwood, grown by W. J. Pilcher, Wm. Winter, F. W. Ude, Hugo Gross and R. Wolfsberger. The cool weather has toned the quality in fine shape.

Miss Newman and the Ellison Floral Co. both recently have had several fashionable events to decorate for.

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, is sending in extra fancy long-stemmed carnations, Ward, Enchantress and White Enchantress. H. G. Berning says these meet with an excellent demand at top prices.

Another big week is reported at the Missouri Botanic Garden for the chrysanthemum show. The fine weather of last week brought out the fair sex in large numbers.

Adolph Brix, of the Brix Floral Co., returned home from Europe November 19 in perfect health. He brought many novelties with him for Christmas decorations.

George Waldbart's place, on Grand avenue, presents an especially good appearance this season.

John Cannon, of Webster Groves, says he has been using up his cut stock at home of late, having had a number of weddings and other social work to furnish.

PLANTS A MILE HIGH, BU

TEXAS FLORIST

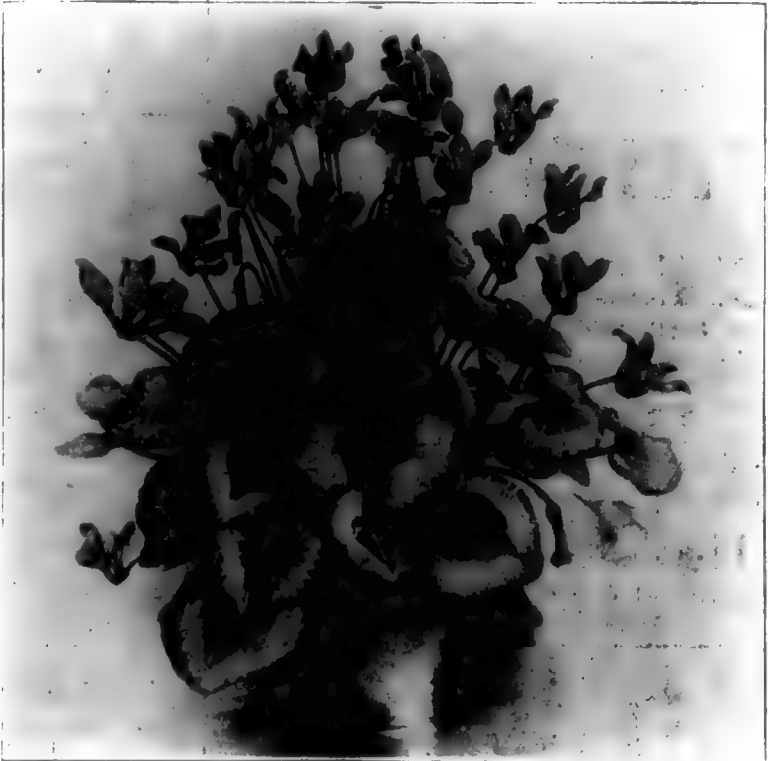

The Colorado & Southern train (Adams Express) leaves here every day and is in Houston at 7 o'clock and in Galveston at 9 o'clock.

THE LIVE PLANT RATE TO TEXAS POINTS IS AS FOLLOWS:

DALHART.....	$1.75
AMARILLO.....	2.00
DENISON.....	2.50

We use light wooden boxes—pack carefully and securely—mean a substantial saving to you. Our shipments will reach you in perfect condition. Remember that MILE HIGH PLANTS are grown in a sunny climate and as a consequence are of the highest quality and free from frost or disappointment and loss. If you have never done so, you will find it profitable to at least order a few of the items herein quoted and assure you that the MILE HIGH quality is maintained.

- ARAUCARIA EXCELSA—75c, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00 and $3.00.
- ARDISIA CRENULATA—Very nicely berried—5-inch at $2.50.
- ASPIDISTRA, variegated—5-inch at $1.50.
- ASPIDISTRA, green—5-inch at $1.00 and $1.20.
- ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS AND SPRENGERI—2-inch at 4c, 3-inch at 6c, 4-inch at 15c, 5-inch at 25c, 6-inch at 50c.
- ENGLISH IVIES—Specimens—very fine—5 to 6 years, in pots or tubs, $4.00 to $7.00.

Specimens at $5.00, $10.00 and $20.00.
- TABLE FERNS, assorted—2¼-inch at 6c.

CYCLAMEN have been one of our leading specialties for years and as a result we have a strain that is not excelled anywhere. The demand for these has grown to large proportions and this year we have four houses devoted to this one plant for Christmas. 4-inch, 35c; 5-inch, 50c; 6-inch, 75c. Larger sizes up to $3.50 each.

Two Thousand are now in the heat and right for Christmas. Owing to the great demand from growers, all of them are disposed to grade very low, which will probably average a year than last, whether you order or not. We state to our policy of being fair to our customers. We have a large supply of the bright colors such as Hexe, Mardie, etc. were fortunate in securing a few of small sized own-rooted Petrick, which we can supply only at 75c each. Others soon go. Vervaeke, Pharailde Mathilde, etc. plants in small sizes, two sorts at $1.25 a pair. With the exception of these, supplied at $1, $1.25.

TERMS: If you are favorably rated either by Dun's or B. you send references we will be glad to investigate at least to do that and you must get your order to us early so we can send the cash for the first order and give us references so that we can send you more orders.

hand on European plants this year been very early, so that plants are a little smaller this year. You buy of us or of others in accordance with our policy, frank with our customers. We have secured a large supply of Christmas sorts, and Petrick, and we have a large number of plants of Hexe and in these two sorts are quick, for they will make attractive plants. We only offer these plants, and all sorts can be had for $1.50, $2.25, $3.50.

PRIMULA OBCONICA GIGANTEA has proved itself to be a good seller and as it keeps well and blooms freely in the house, it is a good thing to push. Our plants are very large flowered, with good color, the result of careful selection. All sizes from 4-inch to 6-inch, nicely in bloom, 15c, 25c, 50c.

BEGONIA LORRAINE, in pots, 4-inch at 35c, 5-inch at 50c, 6-inch at 75c.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, is having some difficulty getting building permits from the city for its three new seven-story seed warehouses.

THE seed houses that have relied on picking up bulbs in the open market from day to day to fill their orders have not found this a particularly easy or profitable season.

THE travelers for the Holland bulb exporters have this season penetrated to the Pacific coast in considerable number. From the way the Hollanders scour the country it is a wonder there is any business left for the seedsmen, but there is.

ACCORDING to New Jersey's official statistician, the fruit and vegetable canning industry of the state last year had a product of 68,969,057 pounds, or more than 34,000 tons; employed 4,766 persons; paid $457,933 in wages; had a capital of $837,064 invested, and the total selling value of all the products was $2,173,567.

THE California lima bean crop turned out larger than was expected. The Lima Bean Growers' Association has compiled a record of the quantity threshed by every threshing machine in the producing sections and finds the commercial crop was only ten per cent less than last year.

BOUQUET GREEN picking in Wisconsin has been interrupted if not ended for the season by snow in the woods. *The month has been a favorable one and the supply appears to be somewhat larger than early prospects indicated. The high prices may have been a factor, by decreasing the demand. At any rate, the market is not so stiff as it was.

THE house of Chr. Olsen, Odense, Denmark, will celebrate its fifty years' jubilee December 1. The business was started in a small way in 1862, but in the process of time it has worked itself up to be one of the most important in the seed line in Denmark. Chr. Olsen

A Message of Interest from Braslan.

Henceforth, the Braslan Seed Growers Company, Inc., will concentrate on the growing of its specialties.

Henceforth, a full 90 per cent of our Seeds will be produced under our own personal supervision on our own leased lands. We have learned that this is the only plan by which the Quality of our Seeds may be maintained and improved upon.

This new policy goes into force at once. The present management of the Braslan Company desires to conduct a business capable of rendering efficient, satisfactory SERVICE. Lopping off the dead wood that retards the growth of the otherwise vigorous plant, is the only businesslike method of securing this result.

retired in the year 1902, but his two sons, Christian and Axel Olsen, are carrying on the business with the same energy and interest.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, speak with satisfaction of the bulb business this season, saying it has been "extra fine."

SALESMEN for Holland bulb houses say that everywhere they go there is increased interest in and demand for Darwin tulips.

"VETCHES" is the title of Farmers' Bulletin No. 515, issued November 11, by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It contains a chapter on vetch seed and its adulterants, by F. H. Hillman, of the departmental seed laboratory.

A SEED and nursery business has been established at Pensacola, Fla., by Dr. W. S. Vincent, who made the entire trip to that city from Lansing, Mich., by automobile. The new enterprise will be conducted under the name of the Pensacola Seed & Nursery Co., with offices in Pensacola and a nursery and seed fields at Cottage Hill.

MANGEL DROPS IN RUSSIA.

Under the influence of the continuous rain during harvest time, the mangel seed crop in Russia has not come up to expectations, and about one-third part of the crop should be destroyed in the fields, being worthless for the trade, says the correspondent of an English trade paper. The principal seed growers have saved the bulk of their crops hausted. The prospects of next year's seed crops are not favorable, as the frost came this year too early and has done great damage to the seedlings. These were not protected in pits through the scarcity of labor, which seems to obtain even in Russia, as well as everywhere else. Notwithstanding the diminished seed crop this year, and the smaller crop probable in 1913, the price of mangel seed remains unchanged in Russia, while in other countries there is a better demand and rising price.

VALLEY PRICES ADVANCE.

The price of valley pips is being forced upward by the present conditions and it will be well for dealers in cut flowers, forcers and jobbers in pips to take note of the trend, to the end that they be not deprived of their profit. Pips must bring more money and, therefore, those who force them should receive more for the finished article. It costs more to store pips than it formerly did; cold storage warehouses everywhere are advancing their charges; in many of the big cities it costs twice as much as it used to cost to

It is surprising to find how florists locate their business. Some towns are as completely overloaded with florists as some are devoid of them. There are a few good towns in the U. S. A. without the proper kind of florists. I once called on a florist in a western town, because of an inquiry for bulbs. The town was large enough to support a good business, but after I had got on the scent and located my man, my first inclination was to get away and forget it. Upon second thought, however, I broke into the silent monotony. The greenhouses were old style—the kind with brick walls, which made them look like a cross between a pickle factory and a penitentiary. The proprietor suited the place. About the only shape he had was his Adam's-apple, and that was hid largely by his beard, which he wore, I presume, because his wife bought his neckties. He was a nice old fellow and all that, but was not a benefit to the business. He grew callas, and other greenhouse junk in the bulb line, all mixed in with "pinks" and lettuce, and on the whole it was one of those places which are a disgrace to the trade—just an old business barnacle. There are many good towns ready for live florists to move into. There are also many towns overloaded, ready for live florists to move out of. There are good towns and bad towns. The good towns are generally made good towns by enterprising florists, and the best way to make a good florist town is to keep good flowers and get good prices. There is nothing which will kill a town quicker than cut-priced florists, because flowers are largely regarded as a luxury, and there is no such thing as a cheap luxury. Cheap prices for cut flowers does not pay anyone—does not increase trade enough to make the difference—and as an advertisement does not pay as well as the same amount invested in the daily newspaper. Good flowers, at reasonable prices, is what makes good flower towns. Good bulbs to produce good flowers at reasonable prices is what makes good profits for the florists. Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs are good bulbs. Try them. Write now.

carry a case of pips from one season to the next. That is a reason for higher cost of the cold storage stock now on hand. But the principal reason for the higher prices is found in the fact that the production of pips has not kept pace with the increased demand. This has not made itself especially felt heretofore, because of the fair crops, but this year the new crop of prime valley is considerably short—one large dealer says about forty per cent of an ordinary return in normal years—so that importers of the better qualities are cut considerably short on their orders this autumn.

Cold Storage Lily of the Valley

FOR CHRISTMAS FORCING

New crop should never be used for December or January forcing, as it does not force easily or give the requisite amount of foliage so early in the season. Cold storage Valley should always be used for December and January forcing.

We carry only one grade—the very highest quality obtainable. Cases containing 250 pips, $5.00 each; 500 pips, $9.50 each; 1000 pips, $18.00 each.

BULBS, for fall planting and forcing. Bulb stocks are getting very scarce. If you have not covered your requirements, we advise placing order without delay. We can still supply the following stock, which we offer as long as unsold:

HYACINTHS, Fine Named. Best commercial sorts, viz., Albertine, Baroness van Tuyl, Czar Peter, Charles Dickens, Gertrude, Gigantea, La Grandesse, L'Innocence, La Peyrouse, King of the Blues, Grand Maitre, Mme. Van der Hoop, Moreno, Robt. Steiger, etc., $4.00 per 100.

HYACINTHS, Separate Colors. Single pink, white, blue, yellow, $2.50 per 100.

FREESIAS, French. Mammoth bulbs, $9.00 per 1000; Purity, $12.00 per 1000.

LILIUM, Giganteum, 7 to 9-inch bulbs, case lot of 300 bulbs, $16.50; Giganteum, 8 to 10-inch bulbs, case lot of 225, $20.00; Multiflorum, 9 to 10-inch bulbs, case of 200, $17.00.

SPANISH IRIS. Mixed, $3.00 per 1000.

TULIPS, Darwin Named. Europe, Pres. Roosevelt, May Queen, Mrs. Stanley, Mme. Krelage, Gretchen, Flambeau, Bartigon, The Sultan, Isabella, Inglescombe Pink, Elegans Lutea, $2.00 per 100.

TULIPS, May-flowering, or Cottage, Bouton d'Or, $10.00 per 1000; Bizarres, Byblooms, $7.50 per 1000; Parrot Named, four sorts, $1.00 per 100.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Richland, Wash.—The Richland Nursery Co. has decided to add a greenhouse. H. J. Lozier, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, will take charge of this department.

Pomona, Cal.—The California Rose Co. has purchased five acres of land adjoining the present farm. With this addition, making the total area of the rose farm twenty-five acres, the company hopes to be able for a time to meet the increasing demand.

Tacoma, Wash.—Watson the Florist, proprietor of the Watson Flower Store, in the Public Market building, has opened a branch store at 937½ C street. Mr. Watson will manage the new store personally, while Miss Watson will have charge of the business at the Public Market.

Olympia, Wash.—C. Klam, proprietor of the Capital City Nursery and Greenhouses, states that this town, with its population of about 7,000, has four commercial greenhouse establishments, besides a finely equipped range of greenhouses on a private estate about twelve miles distant. In spite of the strong competition, however, he finds business quite satisfactory.

Modesto, Cal.—The new greenhouses of Ekstein & Ekstein, on the four-acre tract just west of the cemetery, will soon be ready for business. The buildings comprise two greenhouses, each 28x75, an office and show rooms 25x30, a propagating house and a large lath house. Besides flowers and bulbs, the firm will handle shrubs and trees, including eucalyptus.

SAN BERNARDINO, CAL.

In southern California this year there is a flurry in olive stock. The fruit sells for a high price; it is said that common fruit for pressing brings $90 per ton. Of course, this state of things creates a fever in the business in trees and young stock, and at present young trees are not to be had at any price. Great expense is being incurred in making new hotbeds for starting new cuttings, and many persons are going into the business.

One new establishment that I visited covers nearly an acre, and is said to have placed in sand 6,000,000 cuttings in one batch. I saw the hotbeds being filled with sand and the bevy of girls clipping up the cuttings, which were being placed in the sand by men, and it was a busy scene, but I did not count the cuttings. The grounds are nearly on a level, and the hotbeds are in long rows along the length of the grounds. Four lines of 2-inch pipe are laid on the ground in each hotbed; the sand is shoveled onto the pipes, and the cuttings are placed quite thickly, indeed. Two boilers will furnish heat, one for the hot water and the other to run the pump which drives the hot water through the pipes, as the water will not run by itself on a level. Each hotbed is covered with a sash of glass, and the whole plat is lathed in about seven feet above the ground.

W. G. Wright.

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Any florist on the Pacific coast not satisfied to do a local retail business can build up a prosperous wholesale trade by using space in The Review to let the buyers know where stock is to be found. This way:

We have found advertising in The Review to be very satisfactory. We have had orders from all parts of the United States, as well as from the Pacific coast, showing that your valued paper has a very wide circulation. At any time we have any special advertising to do we certainly shall send it to The Review.—Hogan & Kooyman, Oakland, Cal., October 3, 1912.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business fell off a little last week, the usual quantity of funeral work not materializing. But there were several good decorations and these helped to clean up flowers and greens. The latter have been in big demand for Thanksgiving decorations. The quality of the indoor roses now coming to the market leaves quite a little to be desired, and it would not be fair to blame the weather, which has been ideal. My Maryland is the best offering, with Killarney a long way in the rear. Carnations are fairly good, the stems stiff and bearing finely developed flowers. Violets are poor, the heat by day taking the substance out of the petals, making the flowers unsatisfactory for street wear. A few local short-stemmed gardenias are in and meet with a ready sale. Orchids are not in great demand, but they are not shown as freely as they should be and this accounts to some extent for the lack of interest in the flowers. Chrysanthemums seem to have broken out in a new place, there being large numbers of Appleton, Eaton and others in the wholesale stores. Bulbous stock is represented by Paper Whites and Chinese narcissi, a few locally grown flowers being shown. Centaureas keep up well in quality and price. Sweet peas are almost a failure with many of the local growers and the prospects for the winter crop are not good. Those coming to market are poor and short in stem. Candytuft helps out finely in funeral work. There is enough valley to go around, but little to share at any time.

Plants are decidedly scarce, a few Lorraine begonias of medium quality only being offered. Boston ferns, small palms and rubbers are offered, but there is a great lack of pretty little plants in small pots for basket use and decoration.

There is quite a large stock of greens of all kinds on hand, but the demand is here and orders for future delivery are coming in freely.

Various Notes.

O. C. Saakes reports a heavy demand and several large wedding decorations. Wallace Boyd, who has been with Mr. Saakes for many years, is now with the H. N. Gage Co.

Dieterich & Turner are busy with their large contracts for street planting, the Wilshire boulevard owners having set the pace for quite a number of side streets, in which the fine Cocos plumosa from the Montebello ranch are being planted. Fine Begonia Glory of Cincinnati in 6-inch and 8-inch pans are being shipped to the principal retailers, the stock being well flowered and meeting with a good demand.

Among the Thanksgiving orders at the Los Angeles Flower Market was one for a large department store decoration calling for about 150 wreaths of fire-proofed redwood, some of them as much as twenty-one feet in circumference. These large wreaths and the accompanying festoons had all to be wired for electric light, and altogether it was a big job, well handled.

Fred Howard is one of our most patriotic citizens and always anxious to do his best, but to be called on for jury duty at the time his partner, S. W. Smith, was absent in San Diego tried his patience quite a little.

Harry Bailey, of Montebello, has his place in nice shape and he and Mrs. Bailey frequently take trips to the beaches for fishing. He has an elegant lot of choice young citrus stock just budded, and is busy delivering last season's trees, which are a good, even lot.

M. Kai has made considerable additions to his cloth and lath houses this season.

been good lately, and trade is brisk. Chrysanthemums are still prominent, the stock being good as a rule and the supply fairly abundant. Carnations are moving well and, although some of the stock is not altogether first-class, it is cleaned up every day. Orchids are plentiful and roses selling well. The sale for pot plants continues good and the demand for ferns and palms is lively.

Various Notes.

The following florists visited the show in Portland and returned full of praise for the show and their hospitable treatment while in the Rose City: John Holze, Joe Stuber, Carl Melby, Gus Bjorkman, A. E. Buxton, S. Poolman, H. Hefty and Victor Anderson.

The annual fall show of the Hollywood Gardens was held November 15 and 16 at the store on Second avenue. There was a fine display of chrysanthemums and other cut flowers, and quite a number of good orchids. With an

The Market.

Business is holding up well. The cheerful, bright weather of the last few days has brought the flowers out wonderfully. Mums are in their glory and are almost a glut in the market. Roses are plentiful. Maids, Brides, Killarneys and White Killarneys are just coming into crop. Beauties have been off crop for a few weeks. Hillingdons and Wards have a tendency to be weak-stemmed, but with more sunshine there is hope for them. Carnations are in oversupply. The same conditions prevail everywhere, especially in the shipping trade. The demand for violets, valley and orchids is normal. There is not much stirring socially. Funeral work is rather slack. Ferns and palms find a brisk demand.

Out at the greenhouses things are being rounded up for the Christmas trade. Poinsettias are in good condition. Lorraines are good-sized and well grown. There will be plenty of choice stock. Cyclamens do not move at Christmas as well as in former years.

Various Notes.

Clarke Bros. were awarded a certificate by the Rose Society of Portland. The Martin & Forbes Co. won the grand sweepstakes prize, but this must be held three successive years to become their property.

The Market.

The rainy weather of the last two weeks has been replaced by warm sunshine and warm nights. Everything has the appearance of springtime, but these conditions are apt to be short-lived at this time of the year. While they last, however, they bring an abundance of all classes of stock, with correspondingly low prices. With the possible exception of fancy roses, flowers of all kinds are cheaper than they were one year ago. Whether this is a healthy sign or not is a question that might take some time to answer. Never have mums been better or cheaper than at tions will be changed, and much better prices will prevail. There has been a fair amount of funeral work divided among the different stores. Indications for Thanksgiving are that there will be quite a bit of trade. Christmas berries have made their appearance in town and lend a holiday appearance to everything. The few days of rain during last week have made a splendid improvement in violets. The best stock can be bought at from 60 to 75 cents per dozen bunches. Other lines of flowers are at about the same as last week.

Various Notes.

A visit to the greenhouses of E. James, at Elmhurst, shows several splendid lots of ferns, palms, begonias and poinsettias coming on for the holidays.

Adolph Kornff, the gardener who committed suicide at Hillsborough a few days ago, left $1,500 on deposit in a savings bank here. The public administrator of San Mateo has taken charge of the estate.

M. J. O'Gara & Co. have opened a retail establishment on Seventh street, between Broadway and Washington streets, Oakland.

Much grading is being done on the site of the exposition and the landscape force will soon be ready to take a hand.

The Market street seedsmen, without exception, report a splendid trade in bulbs this fall. There has been a steady advance on last year's orders and all are practically sold out for the season.

A PUFF WITH AN AD.

Thomas A. Edison is a hard-headed man, and he has hard-headed men about him. They do not fall for the "salve" that is the greatest weakness of a large class of publications.

A few weeks ago the Edison Storage Battery Co. began a series of advertisements in a number of publications, exploiting a new battery. This is the way one of the advertisements begins:

"If you will procure a map, draw a lot of dotted radial lines from Orange as the center, and extending to the farthestmost parts of the United States, each dot will denote a representative of some advertising medium on his way to cajole our venerable gate keeper, Kennedy, into passing him up to my office. The avalanche started the day after the first announcement of this series of letters. I have been compelled to disappoint them.

"Several gentlemen were especially insistent. Offered to guarantee as much matter in the reading columns as would appear in the advertising pages!

"I remember the feeling of disgust and misplaced confidence that pervaded me when, as a boy, I read an interesting article on some subject which proved to be an advertisement, adroitly worded, in the reading columns of a paper to which my father was a subscriber. It is needless to say those 'guaranteed reading matter' men did not sell any space. I lacked confidence in their papers.

"The reading matter and advertising columns of a paper should have 'Divorce' written between them.

"I suppose you are wondering what all this has to do with a storage battery. There is no connection. I simply wish to state to some of those who may be preparing to make a journey to Orange to save us from ruin by advising us how to spend our money that we do not wish to purchase any more space at present, and when we do we will make the selection and expect to pay for what we get.

"I only wish the publicity graft evil could be eradicated from all the papers as it is from some of them. People are interested in reading of a successful man, new products, etc. The laudations should, however, emanate from an unprejudiced pen. Properly edited, the press is the nation's greatest power for good. It has the confidence of the public, and should not abuse it.

"Now let us get down to business."

Albany, N. Y.—The new store of the Rosery Flower Shop, at 23 Steuben street, is conveniently located and well equipped, and is far more commodious than the former quarters on Maiden lane. The firm makes a specialty of dollar boxes of flowers during the last days of each week, and these boxes were a prominent and successful feature at the opening of the new store.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THIS week's obituary column contains a report of the death of George A. Sweet, a nurseryman of Dansville, N. Y.

THE American Forestry Co., South Framingham, Mass., has been awarded the silver medal of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for nurseries of forest trees.

THE Glenn County Nursery Co. has been incorporated here, with a capital stock of $25,000, by A. H. Bacharach, Mrs. Hannah Bacharach and Attorney A. J. Zumwalt. The company is empowered to do a general nursery and canning and preserving business.

THE will of the late Joshua I. Maxwell, the nurseryman of Geneva, N. Y., has been admitted to probate and his estate is estimated to be worth $500,000. Of this amount, about $40,000 has been bequeathed to institutions connected with the Presbyterian denomination. Several of his immediate heirs receive $14,000 each.

IN order to add to the membership of the Texas State Horticultural Society, prizes for those who secure the most new members have been offered by Griffing Bros. Co., Port Arthur; Stark Bros. Co., Louisiana, Mo.; the Texas Nursery Co., Sherman; the Austin Nursery Co., Austin; W. A. Stockwell, of Alvin, and other nurserymen.

F. W. WATSON & Co., the nurserymen of Topeka, Kan., have completed a new warehouse, erected at a cost of about $5,000. The Union Pacific railway has laid a side track to the building. It is expected that between seventy-five and 100 carloads of trees, chiefly fruit trees, will be graded and shipped from the plant during the winter.

PROPAGATION OF HOLLY.

On a property we acquired a few weeks ago we find an old holly tree, over two feet in diameter, standing alone in an open field. The tree is as tall and broad as an old apple tree, and the top has a fair sprinkling of red berries. The severe freezing of last winter evidently did not injure it in the least. Evidently it is hardy in Pennsylvania. As this is the only tree we know to be a native, we are anxious to know how to propagate from this specimen. M. & S.

Probably the tree you have is the American holly, Ilex opaca. The most popular method of propagation is by seeds. These can be gathered when fully ripe, stratified by being kept in dry sand over winter and sown in flats or frames containing any light soil free from manure and fairly sandy. The seeds will not germinate until the second season, so do not become nervous over their non-appearance. This holly may also be propagated by short cuttings of the mature wood, rooting in a cool greenhouse in winter. Plant the cuttings in clear sand and keep them well watered. Still another method of

It is a form of Juniperus Virginiana, or red cedar. The berries of this and some other varieties are used to make a medicinal oil. Seeds should be collected now and stratified over winter in clean, dry sand. In spring sow them on a well drained and thoroughly pulverized seed bed. This should be in the form of a frame, boarded at the sides and ends, and in dry weather a

LANCASTER, PA.

Every seat in the Chamber of Commerce rooms was occupied and camp stools called into requisition for the meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club November 21. The subject of the evening was: "Does It Pay to Grow Chrysanthemums?" M. J. Brinton, of Christiana, and B. F. Barr, of Lancaster, opened the discussion. Mr. Brinton told how they handle mums with other crops and, in conclusion, said: "Chrysanthemums pay; anything that the public uses can be made to pay just as soon as high quality is produced at a moderate cost. The public want chrysanthemums and will pay for good ones." Mr. Barr said that his experience had been varied; sometimes he had found them profitable, sometimes not. "It has been our custom the last few years to grow a few varieties as possible, each variety being scheduled to bloom at a certain season. The varieties we consider most profitable from a retail point of view are as follows: For the early varieties, Golden Glow, yellow; Polly Rose, white; Glory of Pacific, pink. Unaka is considered a great favorite by many, but with us it was a failure. For the mid-season varieties we grow Robert Halliday, yellow; White Cloud, white; McNiece, pink, and Bonnaffon, yellow. For the late varieties we grow both yellow and white Jerome Jones, Lynnwood Hall, white; Maud Dean, pink, and Rosette, pink."

This was followed by a general discussion, in which many good points were brought out. Mr. Nagle had made a success of the early varieties with the use of sash to cover an outdoor space. Mr. Law found the following up with carnations from 4-inch pots a success where Golden Glow was the variety used. S. S. Skidelsky was a visitor and advised the growing of some of the better new varieties, as the larger growers are discarding old varieties for new ones, and they certainly know what they are doing.

It is proposed to have a visiting tour about once a month during the growing season, the first one being November 30, to Manheim, some thirty signifying their intention to go. A. M. H.

ENCHANTRESS SUPREME

THE best Sport of Enchantress up to date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguish its parent. Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching. A good all-round Carnation that retains its color at all seasons. Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster. The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years' duration convinces us of its great value.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

At this writing everything is in readiness for Thanksgiving. There is an abundance of chrysanthemums on hand, and they are all of good quality. Carnations are much improved, retailing at 75 cents per dozen. All kinds of roses are good, with the exception of Richmonds. These are only fair and are scarce. Beauties, too, are rather short of the demand. Violets are excellent and a big sale is expected for Thanksgiving. Valley is selling better now and is of first-class quality. Orchids are going, but there is no great demand. Some good cyclamens and azaleas are being displayed at the various shops.

Various Notes.

Harry Brat, of Agawam, spent several days on the Wesson estate doing gardening work. The estate is in Palmer, Mass.

N. F. McCarthy & Co., of Boston, sent some good Richmond roses to this city last week.

Sam Eintrecht, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, is calling on the city trade.

The boilers at E. B. Beals' establishment on Eastern avenue gave out a short time ago and he had to use oil stoves to keep his stock warm. His carnations were greatly retarded by the unfortunate happening.

"The Underworld of the Plant Kingdom" was the subject of the lecture given November 20 by A. Vincent Osmun, under the auspices of the Museum of Natural History, in Blake hall. This is the first of a series of eleven botanical lectures to which the public is invited.

A new store, called the Flower Mart, opened November 16 at 80 Main street. It is finished in white enamel throughout. Nelson F. Higgins and Fred E. Vetter are the proprietors.

Meacham & Hassell have added a large new mirror to their fixtures, which greatly improves the appearance of their store.

Mark Aitken did a large decoration for the Brewster-Besse wedding November 21.

THE NEW GOLD MEDAL ROSE

"Mrs. Charles Russell"

- ❑ This giant forcing rose is an American seedling raised at the Waban Rose Conservatories and has been tested in our houses for several years.
- ❑ It has proved to be a strong, vigorous grower, and its freedom of bloom is remarkable for a rose that is fully as large as an American Beauty.
- ❑ Its large, pointed buds, of a clear rose-pink and delightfully sweet fragrance, are the admiration of all who have seen it, either growing in our houses or as exhibited by us at the different shows.
- ❑ It has received high honors when exhibited at such centers as Philadelphia, New York and Boston. At the latter place the Massachusetts Horticultural Society honored it with a Gold Medal, a rare distinction from this conservative society.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business is still on the increase and everyone is looking forward to a busy week for Thanksgiving. One thing the florists of this city will miss, on turkey day, is the football contest between Kansas and Missouri universities. Usually they sell about 5,000 mums to the football rooters. Everybody is about sold out of mums. Carnations are selling better on the market this week.

Various Notes.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has been having a heavy cut of American Beauties this week. Chrysanthemums are about exhausted with this concern.

Henry Kusik & Co. report that home-grown carnations are improving a great deal. Roses and chrysanthemums are moving well.

Arthur Newell has his store nicely arranged this week. He has one of the best locations in the city.

W. L. Rock has returned from St. Paul and reports business good. He says they have a fine lot of orchids at their greenhouses, but the demand is greater than the supply.

Among the recent visitors were E. C. Pruner, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, and Frank Farney, representing M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia.

W. J. B.

Princeton, Ill.—W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. is putting up four more houses, to be used principally for roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, rooted cuttings and pot plants.

THERE IS SNAPDRAGON BUT ONE

worth while—and that is the light, Silvery Pink. It produces large spikes, it flowers freely and brings the top-notch price in the open market.

Whether you are a wholesale or a retail grower, you cannot possibly go wrong by planting a bench of this excellent variety. It will PAY YOU to do so. The following letter from S. J. Goddard speaks for itself:

Mr. Geo. E. Buxton, Nashua, N. H.

October 19, 1912.

Dear Sir: Your light pink Snapdragon I consider the best color of any I have grown. Just the shade of a Killarney rose and one that the ladies like. I have watched all the pink ones that are sent to the Boston market, but they are away behind your variety. I am growing your variety now entirely.

Very truly yours,

S. J. GODDARD.

Prepare NOW for Christmas

Be Successful This Christmas. Don't be defeated in society. Moving in or even thoughts of moving in high society often bring disappointments and sorrow. Be wise and have your eyes open and do as Godfrey Aschmann does. Put your full strength and mind into business. Time lost is money lost. The time—holiday time—now has arrived, so that a proper investment of your pennies can't fail to turn them into dollars. Prosperity is at last once more knocking at your door. There are signs of a big demand for Christmas Plants. We were not slow in looking forward by raising an immense stock of Choice Christmas Novelties, Godfrey Aschmann's quality, such as described below, now in prime condition for the holidays, ready for immediate shipment.

A house full of Godfrey Aschmann's Begonia Gloire de Lorraine in bloom and bud for Christmas, ready for shipment.

BEGONIAS

Our usual strain of improved Christmas variety of Begonia Erfordii now ready; bright red color; large 4-in., 15c to 20c.

Begonia Lonsdale, a pink variety, 5½ to 6-in., 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is one of our so well known novelties; they are in a fine state, in bloom now or for Xmas, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 50c, 75c to $1.00; 3-in., 12c to 15c.

Begonia Glory of Cincinnati, in bloom now or for Xmas, in fine condition, 5½ to 6-in., large stock, a real bargain at 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

ARAUCARIAS OUR SPECIALTY

Araucaria Excelsa is a Christmas novelty of ours that has no end. Twenty-five years of importing, cultivating and shipping of Araucaria Excelsa gained us such a reputation all over America, from ocean to ocean, that it has aroused the young as well as the old, and has inflamed them to such an extent that they want at least one or two of these so much prized evergreen pine trees at Christmas on the Christmas table of in any suitable place in the home. Look! Christmas trees will be scarce this Christmas. Why? Have you read the report of the United States Department of Agriculture, Notice of Quarantine No. 4 (Domestic), effective on and after Nov. 25th, 1912? This is on account of two injurious insects, the gypsy moth and the brown tail moth, and contains some regulations on Christmas trees, especially for some of the eastern states. If you will write to the United States Department of Agriculture, they will mail you all particulars on this subject. A Christmas tree everybody wants to have, especially for the dear little ones. Now, what will you do? "I know what I am going to do. I will write an order to Godfrey Aschmann for an Araucaria for our table. It will serve a two-fold purpose. First, it will do the duty of a Christmas tree; second, we will then place it in our parlor as an excellent permanent decorative plant."

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings, spring importation, 1911. 6 to 7-in. pots, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 6, 7, 8 to 9 tiers, 25, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 to $2.00 each.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised in Belgium, from top cuttings, spring importation, 1912, 5, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 2 to 3-year-old, 3, 4 to 5 tiers, 14, 16, 18, 20 to 25 inches high, 40c, 50c, 75c to $1.00; 30-inch, $1.25 to $1.50.

Araucaria Excelsa Glauca and Excelsa specimen plants, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

AZALEA INDICA

Christmas Varieties Showing Color Now

New importation, unpacked and in first-class condition, full of buds. We have the finest Petrick in the land, the best early pink, full of buds, as round as an apple, a child can bring them into bloom for Christmas, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, double white, Simon Mardner, double pink, Vervaeana, double rose variegated (one of the best old standard varieties), Pharailde Mathilde, white, rose striped, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. For later and for Easter blooming we only imported the well known American varieties, such as Mme. Vander Cruyssen, Paul Weber, Niobe, John Llewellyn, Apollo, DeSchryveriana and a few others (the Christmas varieties also can be kept for Easter very easily), 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.80 to $2.00. We give good value for the money and use our judgment as to size; so when you order, don't mention any size; we will ship plants according to money sent, and you can rest assured that Godfrey Aschmann will give you your money's worth. POSITIVELY CASH WITH ORDER.

LOOK—BARGAINS IN PALMS

WHOLESALE GROWER, IMPORTER AND SHIPPER OF POT PLANTS.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market improved last week, but was still short. This is the usual condition for the week before Thanksgiving. The growers are inclined to hold back in anticipation of higher Thanksgiving prices, but it is doubtful if they get them. The florists are freely using the Thanksgiving card as prepared by the publicity committee of the New York Florists' Club.

Various Notes.

Felix Alberts, store manager for H. P. Neun, has a decorated Thanksgiving table in the window this week. It is a round table set complete for twelve covers. This is the first such decoration seen here since the one Mr. Alberts put in last Thanksgiving. He has a nice lot of pot-grown stevias coming in. Besides these he is expecting a shipment of fine rhododendrons, prunus, lilacs, azaleas, etc. This week he is having a special sale of Boston ferns at 35 cents each. Mr. Neun's three new 150-foot houses are nearly completed.

J. B. Keller Sons have a fine house of poinsettias. They are not growing up tall and leaving a long, bare stem, but are comparatively short, with the leaves set close together. They are not inclined to drop the leaves as soon as is usually the case. Keller's houses also contain a nice stock of cyclamens and Lorraine begonias.

The Rochester Floral Co. has had a special sale of bulbs of white tulips at $1 per hundred.

At the December meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association Fred Brown, of Buffalo, will give an address on "Design and Decoration."

James Vick's Sons report an unprecedented bulb sale this year.

John Vollmar, of J. B. Keller Sons, did a nice job of landscape gardening when he decorated their window last week. It represented a formal garden with pond and fountain. S. A.

Clinton, Mass.—A. P. Meredith & Son, who a few months ago purchased the business of E. W. Breed, will open a store in the Philbin block, on High street. The building is well adapted for the display of flowers.

Clinton, Ia.—Frank P. and Roy Sawyer, father and son, have succeeded in developing a strain of pansies with flowers of unusually large size. Many of the blooms, it is said, are more than two inches in diameter. Shipping business has been good and included a recent order for 25,000 plants to be sent to Jacksonville, Fla.

...NEWS NOTES...

Middletown, O.—N. O. Selby has had his chrysanthemum houses wired for electric lights, which makes a great improvement in his place of business. His stock is excellent and many people now visit the houses in the evening to see the show.

Findlay, O.—J. J. Waaland states that a recent newspaper report about a change in the name of his firm was incorrect. Though George A. Palmer is now a member of the company, the name has not been changed to Waaland & Palmer, as reported, but the old name of Waaland & Co. is still retained.

Brookings, S. D.—Mr. Stoltenberg, the college florist, recently invited the public to an exhibition of chrysanthemums in the college greenhouses. The exhibition was continued for a week, with an electric illumination in the evenings. The whole display, including a decorated bridal table, was highly creditable to Mr. Stoltenberg.

Woodbine, Md.—The beautiful grounds and greenhouses at the Oakdale estate, where Charles Milburn is head gardener, were thrown open to the public recently, when the chrysanthemums were at their best. Among the varieties attracting most attention were Silver Wedding, the three Ivories, Pacific Supreme, Nonin, Bonnaffon, White Bonnaffon, Wm. Duckham, Timothy Eaton, Yellow Eaton, and a large variety of pompons. The new single, Garza, was particularly admired. Great credit is due Mr. Milburn for the fine condition of the flowers. A large display of vegetables proved of special interest to the farmers. All the farmers' clubs in the district were invited to Oakdale and were entertained by the former governor, Edwin Warfield.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubes, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

BARGAINS IN BOSTONS.

I have left now about 400 fine Bostons from bench for 6-in. pots, many should go into 7-in. pots; to clean these out of my propagating benches I am offering at the low rate of 20c each, 50 for $9.00. There are also some Whitman compacta (the new Whitman), for 5-in. pots, at 20c. Have about 25 old Whitman for 6-in. at 25c. In potted stock I have some extra fine, bushy plants of Whitman compacta in 6 and 7-in. pots, these would make extra fine plants for your Xmas sales, price 40c and 60c each. Bostons in 6 and 7-in. pots, extra fine, 35c and 50c each. All above stock is absolutely guaranteed to please. Cash or reference. See cyclamen adv. in another column.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. One of many reports: "Pansies arrived in good condition and are much better than any received from any other grower. Send me 1,500 more."—J. H. Booth, Chester, Pa. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000; $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Cash. L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

PAPER WHITES WITH PEAS.

I should like to find out whether Paper Whites can be successfully grown in the same house with sweet peas. The benches are five feet wide.
I have two rows of peas in each bed and the rows are planted about one foot from the edge of the bed. Could the Paper Whites be best grown between the rows or on the outside? How long would it take to get flowers?
What is the best variety. Is there anything that would do better than Paper Whites? S. C. C.

Paper White narcissi will do well with your sweet peas. There will not be any space to grow them between the sweet pea rows, but on the outer sides of the benches they will do nicely, either planted directly in the bench or, better still, started in pans or flats if you have bench space of sufficient width to accommodate them. If you keep your sweet peas at an average temperature of 50 degrees at night, it will take eight to ten weeks to flower the Paper Whites. If started in flats before being placed on the benches, it will take only half this time. If you have raised benches, the best plan will be to place the flats of bulbs below them until well started, later lifting them onto the benches.

Spanish iris could be planted outside the pea rows, but would not flower until spring; neither would any of the gladioli. If your rows were farther apart you could grow single or double violets between them until the peas shaded them too much. Of course 50 degrees, which suits sweet peas, is warm for violets, but up to the flowering period the peas do well run 5 degrees cooler. C. W.

PLANTS SHIPPED LONG WAY.

Will you kindly advise us what is a good fertilizer to restore the foliage on cyclamens? We have our plants shipped from so great a distance that when they arrive the foliage has either rotted or dried up and it takes a long time for them to get into a salable condition again. H. B.

Once the foliage has rotted or dried up on cyclamens it is not easy to bring them into salable condition again. Presuming that they are well rooted, you can apply weak doses of liquid cow manure water containing some soot once a week. If you can also procure a small quantity of Bon Arbor and use it at the rate of a teaspoonful to three gallons of water you will find it excellent. As a surface dressing we have found nothing to beat Clay's fertilizer. An application of a small spoonful once a fortnight to each 6-inch pot will tone them up finely. Lightly scratch over the surface soil before applying it, but be sure not to drop any of the fertilizer on the corm or foliage. Give the plants a night temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. C. W.

Greenhouse Heating.THE HARD COAL SITUATION.

The coal question is extremely interesting just now, not only to florists but to the whole country. The article in The Review for November 14 was especially interesting to me, as I live in the hard coal fields and am always interested in articles concerning coal, as I have made some study of it.

I see many articles in the New York, Philadelphia and Chicago papers which are considerably misleading and give the people a wrong impression concerning the coal conditions.

Hard coal will never be so plentiful again as it has been; while there will be hard coal for a good many years to come, the free and easy output of coal is a thing of the past. In bygone days coal was obtained so easily, and the demand was correspondingly so light, that many tons of coal were thrown out in what are called culm piles, that dot the hard coal fields. This culm has been used for ballasting railroad tracks and filling trestling, and hundreds of thousands of tons were dumped so as to be washed down into the river beds and carried away. These culm piles are now all being reclaimed, and some of these railroad fills on the old Gravity, which has been abandoned, are being sold at high prices. A company is being formed to dredge the river beds, and it is fortunate that we have this waste of the past at hand, to be put into quick use at this time, for at August 1 this year the supply, as compared with the supply of August 1, 1911, was nearly 6,000,000 tons short.

It will take a long time for this shortage to be made up, especially if this is a hard winter. It is doubtful if the output this season will ever catch up with the 1911 output. It must be remembered that the thinner veins are being resorted to, pillars are being robbed, and the mining of virgin coal is getting farther and farther from the breakers, so the supply is being constantly lessened, while the demand is ever increasing.

The reasons for this increased demand are obvious. Our increased population is making a material and apparent reason for the increased demand. The wood supply is growing rapidly less. The severe winter of 1911-12 cleaned up, presumably, every coal bin in the country, and drew so heavily on the companies that they had no opportunity of stocking coal as in a milder winter. The six weeks' suspension curtailed the supply by several million will add to the efficiency of Your Heating System and Reduce Your Coal Bills.

To keep steam coils drained of condensation leaves full area of pipes for the transmission of heat—hence more efficient heating system. To automatically return that condensation directly to the boiler before its valuable heat is lost makes for a more efficient boiler. "Detroit" Traps do both.

tons. The scare has caused people to seize on all the coal possible in order to fill their bins.

While much is being said in the papers concerning the shortage of cars, I believe the trouble is exaggerated. While there is some shortage of cars, the shortage has not reached the extent that many newspapers have reported. While so far there have been enough cars in this section to take away the product as fast as mined, nevertheless the companies are glad when Sunday comes to get their empty cars back for Monday's output.

The attitude of the laboring men toward the wage agreement, which, by the way, has not yet been signed, causes many grievances to spring up at this or that colliery. For instance, at one Lackawanna colliery all the union working force went on a strike for two days because the hoisting engineer was not a union man. Here was a shortage of 3,000 tons due to two days of idleness.
At the collieries of the Scranton Coal Co., at Peckville, some such conditions have existed, but they are just settled. The Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre companies' men have been having some grievances which stopped the breakers, and consequently stopped the supply.
This is being constantly reported from one end of the coal fields to the other.

of coal stocked anywhere in the hard coal section.

There is a great deal of noise about the rise in the price of coal and many foolish things appear in the papers. In an interview I had today with a coal man he assured me the above conditions, as I have represented them, are true. He asserts positively that none of the large companies has raised the price of coal or taken advantage of the scarcity and the ever-increasing demand. They are trying to satisfy all customers by giving them at least a part of their order, but in no case are they able to supply the full wants. I asked him if it would be possible to get coal from his company to send to any florists who might be in urgent need of coal. He said: "It would be impossible to get it to anyone off our line of railway; the selling is all handled from the New York end."

The large companies at the time of the big strike in 1902 did not raise the price of coal above the agreed market price at that time, viz.: $5; and they are now not raising their price.

If the public in general understood this they would have a different feeling toward the large companies, for they are offered better prices than they are asking. The individual operators are getting the premium; the large companies are holding firm, and not taking advantage. What other business is there in the land that would not take advantage of this honest difference between supply and demand? I was in New York and Boston in August and called on some wholesale coal dealers. At each place customers were offering a premium over the then price of coal, and these wholesale dealers were offering premiums to mine operators. I know of New York, Boston and Philadelphia coal dealers who came to Scranton and offered individual operators a large advance margin for the black diamonds, and they got them. Who can blame the individual operator? Who can blame the dealers so long as the people are willing to pay the price?

If any florists have been, or are in danger of being cornered for coal, I think I could secure some of the smaller sizes of hard coal for them; a little chestnut, some pea, and more buckwheat No. 1 and No. 2, and I might be able to obtain some of the larger sizes. I would not make this offer, only I know the importance to greenhouse men of keeping from freezing out. The eastern market will be relieved after lake navigation closes up; in the sum-

The Market.

The weather has been extra fine for this time of the year, up till the night of November 23, when we had our first snow of the season. It is still cold and apparently winter is here. Business has been good, especially during the last week, which was unusually gay in a social way. There were a great many decorations for dinners, receptions, etc., and large quantities of mums, carnations and roses were used. The bulk of the mum crop is off and soon the roses and carnations will hold sway.

Various Notes.

Ben Kramer has been having considerable to do right along. His new location is quite an improvement over the old one.

J. C. Elspemann will soon be cleaned up on mums. They sold unusually well this year. His carnations are better than ever, and his other stock of plants is good, too.

Louis Fritsch says business has been good with him. His carnations are looking fine, with a good crop coming for Christmas. He looks for a big trade and expects to be short of flowers.

Miss Nellie Goodge is improving in health and getting stronger. She had two good wedding jobs for November 25 and 26 and used a good many roses as well as other flowers.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have a large crop of roses and carnations for their Thanksgiving trade.

SCRANTON, PA.

Some building has been going on in Scranton this summer. T. B. McClintock, whose plant is situated close to the entrance of the Forest Hill cemetery, at the corner of Electric street and Jefferson avenue, in Dunmore, has built a block of ten houses and has them nearly ready to occupy. One house is 10x130 and the other nine are each 12x54 and seven feet to the eave plate. These houses will be used for forcing valley and other bulb stock, and for growing a general line of cut flowers and spring bedding plants. They will be heated by a Lord & Burnham steam boiler. These additional houses help to make Mr. McClintock's plant more complete, as he already had a fine range of houses and grew a large variety of carnations, chrysanthemums, bouvardias, sweet peas and greens.

The Davis Floral Co. has rented a double store on the 500 block of Spruce street, next door to A. L. Besancon & Co., florists. The Davis Co.'s floor space is about 30x60 feet, with a space in the rear for a greenhouse which they are going to erect. The greenhouse will be 30x100 feet. They are now furnishing the store with new fittings. When completed it will be a handsome, light and airy place. They have a complete growing plant in the Hyde Park section of the city, from which point they have been doing a retail business. They are growing some fine carnations and chrysanthemums. Their new store on Spruce street will give a much better connection with the retail trade. It will be open for the Thanksgiving trade.

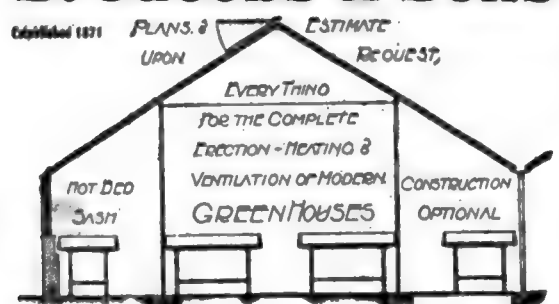

The White-Jermyn wedding, which has just taken place here, was an unusually large and fashionable one. Two thousand invitations were issued. Morel Bros. had the decorations at the church; A. L. Besancon & Co. decorated the house.

The bulb planting season is about closed. This week will probably wind up this branch of the trade in and about this section. A great many more than usual have been planted this year.

Somersworth, N. H.—G. S. Ramsburg is quite pleased with the success of his new snapdragon, Silver Pink. He has not only sent shipments of the seeds to almost every state in the Union and to several points in Canada, but he recently received his first order from a European firm.

SUNLIGHT
Double Glass Sash for Hot-beds and Cold-frames

Double-Glass Double Profits

The old single layer hot-bed sash are better than none, but they must be covered, and boards, mats or shutters are pure waste. The new Sunlight Double Glass Sash with two layers of glass enclosing an air space, are Complete in Themselves.

They eliminate covers and half the labor; they admit all the light to store warmth in the bed and then save the warmth at night. They make plants strong and early. They double net profits. Every practical gardener or florist will see the value of this.

It is good business for you to get our free catalogue. Write your address plainly and send it today. The hot-bed season is not far off. Prof. Massey's booklet on Hot-beds sent for 4c.

Gentlemen:

We are pleased beyond our expectations with the White delivery car we bought of you some time ago and, as before agreed, you may enter this as an order for a duplicate of the truck we now have in service. It may interest you to know that we are placing this order with you after an investigation of almost every car on the market. It is surprising to know how economical the White cars are in consumption of fuel, and thus far we have had little or no repair work. Kindly let us know how soon we may expect to receive our second truck.

Respectfully yours,
JOHNSON & CHRONIS.

ROSES

Our Rose crops are coming on strong. No question of our ability to supply anything wanted in Roses between now and the new year. Crops will get heavier right along. Specially strong on Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond, but can supply everything else the market affords. Most of the cut runs from medium to long. Quality never was better. You can't beat Randall's Roses.

STEVIA

Stevia is so useful that the wonder is how the trade can get along during the part of the year when Stevia is not available. Everybody uses it in quantity while it is to be had. But there is a lot of difference in the quality of Stevia. As with everything else, some growers do it very much better than others. We have encouraged our best growers of Stevia to largely increase the production this season. So now we can supply any quantity. And it is fine. Order some today.

ORCHIDS

To be a success as an Orchid grower, a man must accomplish two things: He must produce first-class quality and he must get the bulk of his cut at a time when the varieties ordinarily are off crop. Our growers are successful. Not only do we have the finest quality of home-grown western Cattleyas, immense in size, but we are getting our crop after the heavy autumn crops of other growers have passed. You can get the finest Cattleyas of us in quantity.

Now booking orders for Christmas

VIOLETS

The quality of the Violets has now become such that we can recommend them highly. The big dark blue doubles from the Hudson River and the fresh, fragrant, home-grown singles are now fine—and we can supply a practically unlimited quantity. For many years we have led the western markets on Violets. We handle enormous quantities daily. You can build up a big trade, just as we have done, if you handle our Violets.

MAGNOLIA LEAVES

One of the hardest things to get right is Magnolia Leaves. So many are "spotty" in color and get brittle quickly. You don't mind paying a little more for Magnolia Leaves that are "just so." In buying from us you get stock that is all you ask and at a price that is surely right

WILD SMILAX

They will tell you Wild Smilax is scarce this season, but nevertheless we get a daily shipment and can fill orders promptly with fresh-picked stock. Larger orders shipped to you direct from the woods, and a few days' notice is appreciated. Quality guaranteed. Per case of 50 lbs., $5.00.

No matter what you want in cut flowers, Randall's should be your source of supply. You can get here all the cut flowers that are in season. There never is a time when we cannot supply everything that anybody else can supply—and frequently we have stock not to be had elsewhere, for growers know we have here the biggest, broadest and best outlet for fancy stock of all kinds.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

We have made elaborate preparations for supplying all kinds of Christmas Greens. It is impossible to quote prices on this stock, because the market fluctuates daily—and we always give our customers the benefit. We have already had several shipments.

HOLLY is fine stock, bright green and well berried. Will quote prices on any number of cases on request. Also, will quote on wreaths of any size and weight. Our prices always are the lowest, quality considered.

LYCOPodium (Bouquet Green) is scarce again this year, but we can supply in quantity. The stock is fine. Glad to quote on bulk green or wreathing. Wire for quotations. The market for this stock is very erratic, but is lower now than it was earlier in the season. We always can quote lowest prices.

You will need a lot of Red Berries for Christmas. Ours are exceptionally fine this year. We can supply in quantity at from $1.50 to $3.50 per case. Better order now and avoid any possibility of disappointment.

BOXWOOD FOR CHRISTMAS

We ask that you order some of our Boxwood now, so that you can see the quality of our stock and compare it with what you have had from others. We are sure that you will want us to supply you for Christmas, for our Boxwood is extra fine this year. We already have booked a large number of big orders for shipment this month, but have not by any means booked up our supply, for it will be the largest ever. Order enough. Remember that you take no risk. Boxwood keeps indefinitely. If you don't use it all for Christmas, use it up in designs in January, when flowers usually are rather scarce.

RUSCUS

The Largest Supply in America

The experienced buyer of Ruscus knows that there are fully as many qualities of Ruscus as there are uses dyeing it. Good Ruscus, bright and even in color, is about the best seller the trade has got hold of in any a day. But the dull, dirty-colored, moldy, spotted Ruscus—well, about all you can do with that kind is to tip it back to the house you got it from and order some really good Ruscus from Randall. Randall's Ruscus is prepared according to the celebrated Marechal method. This means supreme quality. A post card will bring you samples and prices. Send one today. You really should not buy except by sample—the price means nothing until you see the quality. Bright Christmas red, violet, green, lavender, cerise, purple, gold, silver, etc.—any color you want promptly made up to order if not in stock.

RIBBONS AND CHIFFONS

We believe we have the largest and best selected stock in America Florists' Ribbons and Chiffons—not a yard of dry-goods-store stock in the house, as we sell only to florists. We have an extra good Christmas red in each width of three qualities, extra heavy, medium and good, silk and satin. Also every special flower color. While all our stock is priced at the lowest rate at which that grade can be sold, the bulk of our business is on the medium-priced lines—we handle these in such enormous quantity that we are confident these are the best values ever offered the trade. Due to conditions beyond control, prices on Chiffons have advanced all over the world. We foresaw this advance and made contracts with the mills, both in this country and Europe, that on many lines enable us to sell at what the same lines would cost now.

You can order by mail with perfect confidence.

PLANT AND FLOWER BASKETS

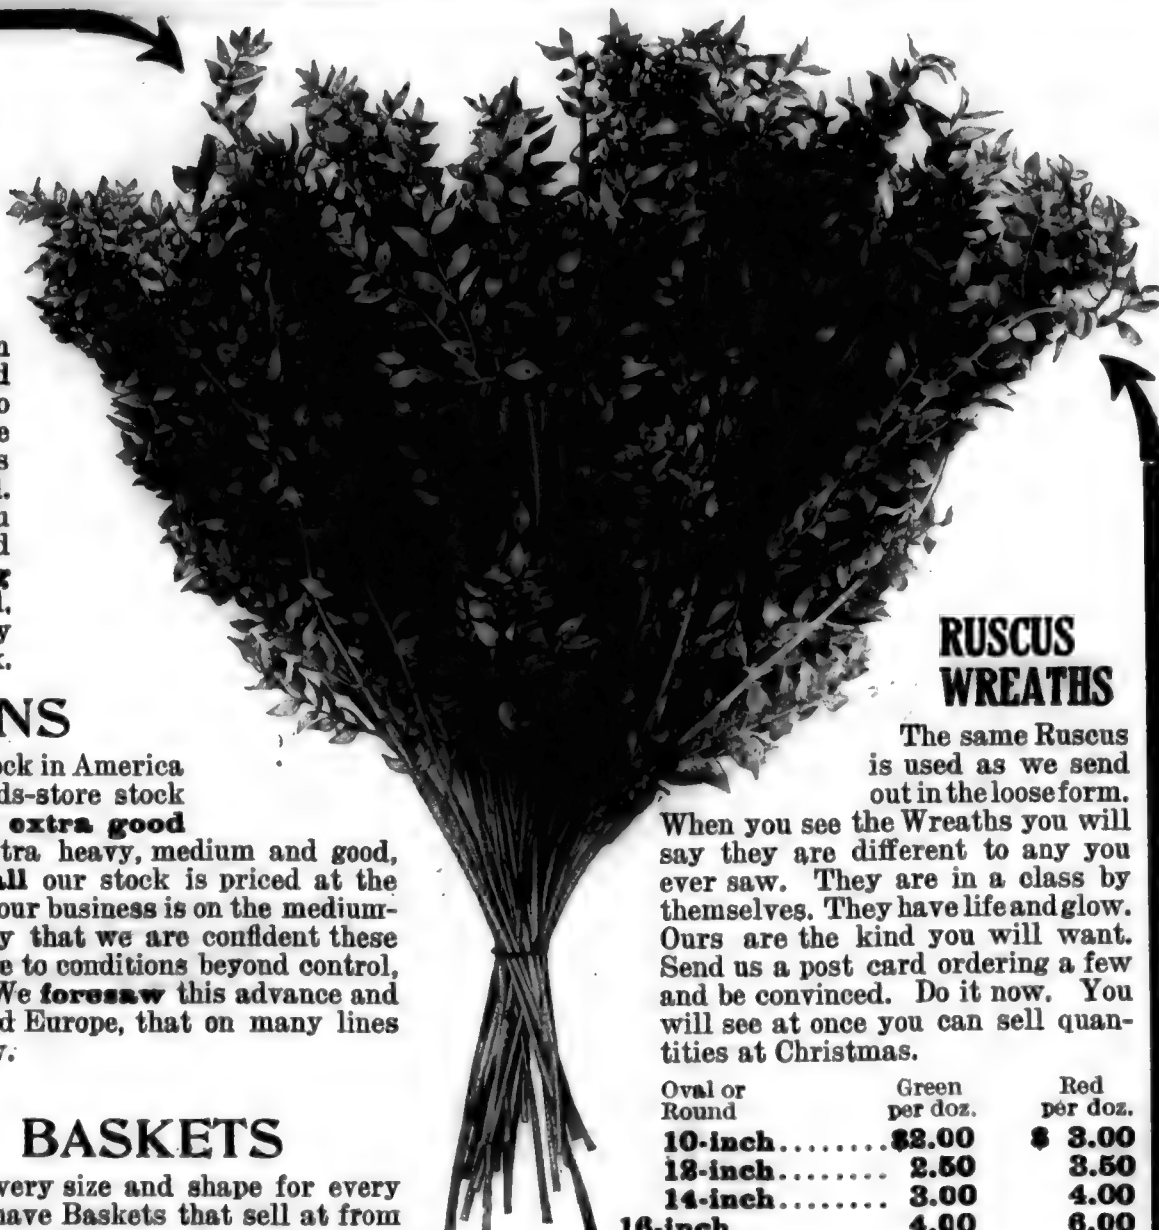

We have an enormous stock of Baskets, including every size and shape for every purpose. We can supply exactly what is wanted. We have Baskets that sell at from 10c to 15c apiece and others that sell at from $2.00 to $2.50 each, with hundreds of styles and sizes between. We make a specialty of selling Baskets in assortments, $5.00 worth, $10.00, $15.00, $20.00, $25.00—any quantity you want. Just give us a line on the purposes for which you want to use the Baskets, or mention the size or the price per Basket. We know the needs of the florists, and we never fail to please with our selections.

POT COVERS OF ALL KINDS

It would take this entire advertisement to describe and price our entire line of Pot Covers and materials for pot covering. We have absolutely everything in the Pot Cover line, from the low-priced domestic Crepe Paper, in all colors, to the very best grade of heavy Chiffon Raffia hats; also a large number of ready-to-use Pot Covers of Crepe Paper and a big variety of Basket Pot Covers. You can't order anything for pot covering that we cannot supply. And Randall prices are guaranteed to be at least as low as the prices of any other house. You can order Pot Covers by mail of Randall with perfect assurance that you could not do better if you were buying in person.

OUR TRAVELERS ARE HOME TO HELP WITH YOUR ORDERS

We have made elaborate preparations to handle the rush of mail orders for Christmas. Most important is that we have an immense stock—complete—including every article of Christmas specialties in enormous quantity. We don't think we shall run out on anything. Then, all our travelers are in the house to help handle the orders. Every mail order passes through the hands of the traveler who last called on that customer. If necessary, the traveler will personally select the goods to be shipped and see them through the shipping room. We shall spare no pains to see that every customer gets exactly what is wanted—and promptly.

RUSCUS WREATHS

The same Ruscus is used as we send out in the loose form.

When you see the Wreaths you will say they are different to any you ever saw. They are in a class by themselves. They have life and glow. Ours are the kind you will want. Send us a post card ordering a few and be convinced. Do it now. You will see at once you can sell quantities at Christmas.

Terms

Where customers are unknown to us and not rated in the mercantile books, we ask for satisfactory references or cash with order. We guarantee safe and timely delivery of all express shipments, but consider our responsibility at an end for all freight shipments when receipt is taken from the railroads. Telegraphic orders are shipped on the day of their receipt, but we urge that all orders be sent in as early as possible, and, in all cases, please be particular to tell us the day you want the goods to arrive. We are familiar with all the express schedules and can gauge the time to ship so that you will surely receive the goods on time, and at the same time we shall be sure they arrive fresh.

Cut Chamaerops Palm Crowns

5-inch pots.....$6, $9 and $12 per doz.
6-inch pots.....$12, $15, $18 and $24 per doz.
7-inch pots, 22 inches to 24 inches in diameter.....$2 and $2.50 each

POINSETTIAS.

We grow none of the pink variety, all of our stock being of the selected, bright red sort; the bracts are unusually large in all the sizes.

3-inch pots.....$15 per 100
4-inch pots.....$25 per 100

8-inch pots, very heavy.....$24, $30 and $36 per doz.

BEGONIA LONSDALE.

We have a large stock of this light sport at the same prices as quoted above for Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. This variety is considered far superior to the original type, making a finer shaped plant, and holding the flowers much better. The color is a little lighter than the original Lorraine.

BEGONIA GLORY OF CINCINNATI.

This variety is endorsed by all the leading retail florists and will in time displace Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. Do not overlook this grand plant when placing your order for Christmas.

Larger plants.....$4, $5, $6 and $7.50 each

We are also offering our wonderful collection of Seedling Crotons in over one hundred fifty (150) varieties. These varieties have proved themselves far ahead of any new varieties at home or abroad, having taken first prize wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants.....$3 each, $30 a doz., $200 per 100
5-inch and 5 1/2-inch pots, strong plants.....$5 each, $50 a doz., $300 per 100

DRACAENAS.

There is no variety of foliage plant as attractive as the highly colored Dracaenas. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in this country. Following is a list of varieties with descriptions.

DRACAENA MASSANGEANA.

The variety with the golden stripe down the center of the leaf. This handsome plant is the best of all Dracaenas for the house. We have an exceptionally large stock, well colored, and of the very highest quality.

6-inch pots.....$15 and $18 per doz.
8-inch pots.....$2 and $2.50 each

PLANT COMBINATIONS.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of the trade to our Plant Combinations for Christmas sales. These are better than any heretofore offered. This year the same idea of filling them early in order to thoroughly establish them has again been carried out, but instead of using tubs or the ordinary receptacle, we have had made artistic baskets, etc., which are shown in the cuts. These are well made boxes, covered with birch bark and rattan. The baskets we have in three sizes, 8", 10" and 12", and a special indoor window box 18" long, 6" deep and 6" wide. In filling these the styles are varied in order to give variety and nothing but high class plants are used in the filling, such as Crotons, Pandanus, Dracaenas in variety, Ferns, etc. Last year we sent our plant combinations to all the large cities and while then in the ordinary green tub they met with the highest approval everywhere. These filled this year we cannot recommend too highly and assure you much time and thought has been spent to have them thoroughly durable and artistically correct.

Greater demand each year. Having increased we are in a position to meet our fast increasing superior in quality to any we have ever grown, maintained for years.

AND INSPECT OUR STOCK, WHICH IN-THE SIZES HEREIN LISTED:

DRACAENA DESMETIANA.

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties, a strong vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated. Our stock is exceptionally fine for Christmas.

7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 each

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY.

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena Desmetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.

8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$3, $3.50, $5 and $6 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI.

This is unquestionably one of the great palms of the future, combining the grace of a Cocos Weddelliana with the hardiness of a Kentia. It will prove an invaluable plant for the house. Our stock in the following sizes is unusually fine.

6-inch pots.....$1.25 each 10-inch and 12-inch tubs, specimen plants.....$5, $6, $7.50, $10 and $12.50 each

EDUCATION FOR YOUNG FLORISTS

IT has been hardly seventy-five years since the florists' business began to assume any considerable importance in the United States and it has been only within recent years that the industry has developed along broad business principles. The day of the general commercial grower is passing and the specialist is the prominent florist of today. The owner of large enterprises or the managers of the same, however, must not be limited to a specialty, but must have a broad general knowledge of all branches of the industry. Competition was never greater than at the present time, the margin of profits has decreased and the business now demands men trained to the fullest extent of their intellectual ability.

As in general farming, the flower growers are coming slowly to realize that theirs is a distinct profession, as definite and important as the profession of medicine or law. The business world demands "captains of industry" to conduct large operations. These men are of necessity broadly educated. Many of our florists' establishments are passing from the "small mill" stage into the huge factory, with its many departments of specialized labor. The florist of the future must be the progressive man, the educated man, who can supervise and direct these large enterprises.

The Demand for Training.

While it is true that many men develop an aptitude for business without special training, history has shown that those most successful are the educated men. Many times this education has been self-acquired and has come after long years of patient labor, but it has nevertheless been essential for the success of the individual.

Frequently it is said that there are no good American florists. The men who have been the most successful have received their preparation through a period of apprenticeship and training in England, Germany or some other European country. I do not in the least question the splendid impetus these men have given the industry and the skill which they have shown, but I think that the time has come when the sons of these men and the sons of American-born florists and others should have even better educational facilities and training in this country than can be obtained abroad.

America boasts of her splendid educational systems, and it is true that along many lines there are no better methods of teaching in the world than are found in our public and private schools and colleges. There has been an effort to furnish those branches in the curricula of educational institutions which meet a demand. That there are not better schools in which to train gardeners and florists seems to be not so much the fault of the institutions as the fault of the people. We have not made the demand for vocational training for our sons along this line of work.

To become a specialist one must be trained in some definite branch of plant growing, so that he knows more about that particular crop and can produce better results in its culture than can anyone else. However, there is a danger and a real danger that our gardeners and florists become too narrow in their knowledge of plant life through intense specialization.

Training the Specialist.

While, as has been said, the specialist is the important grower of the present period, there is now and probably always will be a class of men who do a wholesale and retail business and whose trade demands that they grow a miscellaneous collection of plants. Those doing the largest amount of business either in a wholesale or retail capacity will have their work so thoroughly organized that there will be a series of important sections with the special grower in charge of each section. The owner himself, however, cannot afford to be ignorant of how the different departments should be run, or to be dependent upon his grower for his information. His education and experience must of necessity have been broad in order to successfully manage the business. The man who personally constructs his own range, arranges the heating system, propagates and grows his miscellaneous crops and markets the same successfully must of necessity be a man with a well developed intellect in order to come out ahead in the competition in the business world.

So we see that it is not sufficient, therefore, that we have our schools of general horticulture, although these are necessary for the training of the best equipped all-round men; it is not sufficient that we have our divisions of these horticultural schools into departments of floriculture, market gardening, and the like, although they are essential for training general growers. There is a need in America today for definite and extended courses in the growing of conservatory plants for the young man who is to make the culture of these his life work; special courses in rose growing, carnation growing, orchid growing and the like, also courses in the culture of outdoor trees, shrubs and herbaceous perennials. In other words, we should train specialists as well as general growers.

In this connection it may be said that the best training for a specialist comes through his practical experience in the range. Much is said in favor of the apprentice system practiced in the older countries and I do not question the value of this system for those countries, but American conditions are different. There is no question in my mind but what the best material out of which to develop educated plant growers and specialists for the United States comes from those young men who have been brought up in the actual work of the range. However, a better knowledge of science is developing daily and these young men must be brought into intimate touch, not alone with the ordinary details of the growing of plants, but they must know the principles which underlie the process of plant breeding; they must know of the micro-organisms at work in the soil and the various chemical actions which are going on in the soil and which add to its fertility and productiveness; they must know the nature of the various insects and diseases which prey on plant life, in order that they may successfully combat these enemies. Therefore, while the physical environment of the plant has much to do with its growth and development, a knowledge of these factors alone is not sufficient if one is to become a specialist.

Present Available Courses.

In the Massachusetts Agricultural College, two years of the four required are devoted to cultural and fundamental studies. There are few definitely agricultural or horticultural studies before the junior year. The men then elect their major subject and the instructor in charge of the course in which they elect their major work acts as an adviser regarding correlated subjects which should be studied. In this way the student gets a well-balanced course. As an example, he elects floriculture as his major and his adviser requires that he also take courses in plant pathology, entomology, plant materials, soils and fertilizers or chemistry. Each of these courses is given by a man with special training, which fits him for his work. In this way the man graduates with a general knowledge of all branches of floriculture. If he has had several years of practical work in a range of greenhouses before taking his college course he derives better results.

While this course turns out men well equipped in fundamental studies and in general principles of floricultural knowledge, it does not, of course, turn out specialists. Neither does it turn out men who have mastered all the details of the practical work. It does, however, equip men with a splendid foundation on which to build a strong life of service in the business. If the men are to become specialists, this specialization must come later by concentration on some one branch of the industry and a determination to master that branch in all its details.

This may be brought about partly by a period of practical work on the special branch in some large range where the specialty is grown to its best perfection, but it seems to me that the greatest benefit may be derived if this practical experience is later supplemented by a period of graduate work at the Agricultural College. I might say in this connection that I am now considering a project with the head of the graduate school whereby our graduates who go out into practical work may return after a prescribed period and after a supplementary scientific study of their specialty be given the degree of Master of Science in Floriculture.

Short Courses in Floriculture.

But not everyone can afford to spend four years or longer in study of fundamentals, nor is it for the best interests of the industry that they should. To has seemed to prove that this subject does not lend itself to those courses. The lectures, text books and questions are sent out to the people taking the courses, but in the majority of cases these individuals do not take sufficient time to read over the subject matter and to transpose it into their own language. They look up the answers to the questions in the lectures and text and answer them verbatim in the words of the lecturer or the writer of the text. It seems that the individual gets little lasting benefit from such a course.

High Grade Help Pays Best.

I believe, however, that there is a splendid opportunity for extension work in floriculture along other lines.

Massachusetts is a state where the industry ranks of major importance and where the amount of capital involved is considerable. I believe there is room for one or two extension schools of floriculture in the state and I should like especially to see one of these started in connection with the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club. Courses such as these would give the industry a splendid impetus and they would be the means of giving many young men who are already engaged in the business, on private estates, in retail establishments and in commercial ranges, a chance to learn much of benefit at a minimum expense of time and money.

What the industry needs today is a higher grade of workman and this will never come until the young men have better chances for learning the business. One of the most prominent New Jersey growers told me recently that he was convinced that it paid him to employ a high quality of labor even at higher wages, and I know for a fact that another large corporation is employing men of this grade as managers and foremen in the different departments. Too frequently men employed in the larger ranges get training only in one or two branches and therefore are not well balanced in their development. They are specialists in the narrow sense of the word. There is then, again, an unfortunate opinion among some growers that it is detrimental to their best interests for young men to learn the secrets of their success. As in every industry where competition is keen, there are certain methods which any grower may legitimately keep to himself, but there is much general information which might be given to the younger generation without injury in the least to the business of any individual.

An Extension School of Floriculture.

I would suggest, therefore, that in such an extension school, definite courses in special subjects be given and that a man be allowed to take as meet the needs of these individuals, the college now offers a special course for men of mature years who have had a high school training and who want to devote a little time for special training. These men come to the college for one or two years and take special work in those definite subjects in which they are especially interested. For the most part these same subjects are given to the regular junior and senior students. These men are given no diploma or certificate. They come only for what they can get out of the courses offered.

Then, again, the college offers exceptional opportunities by a ten weeks' short course during January, February and the first part of March, when men may come to the college to get in a condensed form in this short time much that is given in the longer courses. They meet men with kindred interests and derive much benefit from an interchange of ideas. Practical men come to the college for lectures on special subjects and these men give to the students many suggestions which their experiences have proved to be valuable.

Then there are correspondence courses in floriculture for those who cannot leave their home duties. To my mind these courses are of minor importance, for my experience with them many or as few courses as he may wish. He should be given a certificate when each course is finished in a manner satisfactory to the instructor or to the committee in charge. I would have courses given in the culture of conservatory plants, courses in greenhouse construction and heating, courses in culture of special crops like roses, orchids, carnations and the like, and courses in wholesaling, retailing, designing and decorating.

In order that the students might carry on their daily work while taking these courses, I would suggest that evening lecture work be given, perhaps two hours on some evening of the week, preferably Friday evening, and that Saturday morning or afternoon be devoted to an observation trip to some important commercial range, retail or wholesale establishment or private conservatory in the vicinity. Here the points considered in the evening lectures might be emphasized and made clear by observation. There is no section which offers better facilities for such observation trips than in the immediate vicinity of Boston. I would not have all of the evening lectures given by one man, but would have specialists treat various topics.

I am aware that the work as I have outlined it would be something radically new and quite out of the ordinary, but it seems to me the venture is worth trying. In order to successfully carry out the courses there must of course be the greatest enthusiasm on the part of the instructors giving the courses and the most cordial and hearty coöperation by the club members and all connected in any way with the work. The Massachusetts Agricultural College stands ready through its extension to organize and develop these courses just as soon as this club gives the assurance of its support and coöperation.

I believe it is up to the present generation of florists to expand and to get out of narrow, conservative ruts, if there be such, and to give the coming generation such a preparation for their life work that the business will take on new value and dignity.

The gardeners and florists of today are, as a class, broad-minded, progressive men, but we who are bound up heart and soul in the interests of the industry want the next generation to go far ahead of the present in every phase of the work.

A NEW INDIANAPOLIS STORE.

The accompanying illustrations show the Indianapolis store of the Hill-Heller Co. At the time this company was organized there was no suitable available store to be found in the business section of Indianapolis and the company was compelled to lease a vacant lot and erect its own building. This was done on short notice, and, thanks to the architect, the company now has what is certainly one of the most beautiful and artistic flower stores in the country—at least a great many of their friends who have traveled extensively have told them it has no superior.

The store is only one story high, and stands between two tall buildings, at 225 North Pennsylvania street, directly facing the Federal building. The material used is stucco dressed with small, sharp Bedford stone. The design can best be seen from the photographs. A most convenient arrangement in the design are the two front doors, one of which enters the store room directly, the other on the opposite side, opening into a side hallway, which allows the delivery of ice, packages and plants to the rear of the store, which is found to be a great convenience, while in no way detracting from the beauty of the front. The store opened formally, for business, the last week in October, with a chrysanthemum show, at which time these photographs were taken. The members of the company were both surprised and delighted at the interest shown, and at the great number of people who visited the store.

The Hill-Heller Co. is selling agent for the South Park Floral Co., of New Castle, Ind.; the E. G. Hill Co., and Fred H. Lemon & Co., of Richmond, Ind. Heller's American Beauty roses are well known to the Indianapolis flower buyers, and this year the quality of the stock has been unusually good. The E. G. Hill Co. and F. H. Lemon have been exhibiting chrysanthemums, carnations and new roses in Indianapolis for fully thirty years and have a great number of friends in the city, who have given them a hearty welcome.

SEASONABLE CULTURE.

The August sown sweet peas have now been flowering for some time and will be benefited by a little feeding, but at this season of the year, when the days are getting shorter, the feeding must be done with extreme caution, or the plants may be caused to drop their buds. Cow manure water, well diluted, is a safe stimulant, and a light top-dressing of fine bone, pulverized sheep manure or cow manure, not too fresh, can be applied. The surface soil should be loosened after applying the manure, before watering is done. Do not use any of the strong chemical fertilizers at this season. They are liable to do considerable harm. For instance, if nitrate of soda water is used, and we chance to get a succession of dark days after applying it, the plants will most probably wilt badly on the first sunny day.

A day temperature of 55 to 58 degrees in dark weather and 60 to 65 degrees when clear, and an average of 50 degrees at night for plants which are flowering, should be maintained. There are few days, even in midwinter, when ventilation cannot be given. Do not rush on a lot at a time or neglect to lower the ventilators when the sky becomes overclouded. If you do, you must expect mildew and blighted buds. If the house, when entered, feels draughty, you are likely to have trouble, not only with sweet peas but any other plants you may be growing. It is necessary for the next two or three months to ventilate with great care.

Later batches of plants should be furnished with supports and be kept tied up before the growths are twisted, and at all times it is essential to keep the growths erect, for bent flower stems are never salable. Avoid anything in the nature of heavy fumigation. The tobacco papers are safe. Tobacco dust laid in small heaps on the paths and lighted by means of a little kerosene is also safe. Guard against an arid atmosphere, for it will assuredly bring red spider in its train, and, when once the plants are attacked, it is an uphill fight to clean them, no matter how good a pressure of water may be at command.

For flowering in early spring, some of the Spencer or wavy varieties should now be started. We are promised a fine assortment of Spencers of the true winter-flowering type. These, when introduced, will soon displace the grandiflora varieties under glass, as they have already done outdoors. A few suitable varieties to sow now for early spring flowering are: Nora Unwin and White Spencer, white; the original Countess Spencer, pink; Asta Ohn Spencer and Frank Dolby, lavender, and King Edward VII, scarlet.

SWEET PEAS DROPPING BUDS.

We are having trouble with our sweet peas, as they are dropping buds. They were planted August 24, in benches with tile bottoms, and did well until about two weeks ago. We picked about two batches of flowers and the vines were full of buds; then, for some reason, the buds began to blast and drop. We have tried plenty of ventilation and have been running them on the dry side for a few days, but can see little improvement. Can you suggest anything? About one-third of the soil is well rotted cow manure and the rest is good loam. We have done no feeding or mulching.

D. F. C.

There are several possible causes for the sweet peas dropping buds. Fumigation with tobacco stems, if overdone, will cause it; so will the use of nitrate of soda, dried blood, sulphate of ammonia and other fertilizers high in nitrogen. Dryness at the root would also cause it, as would cold draughts. You do not state what temperature you are giving your plants; it should not be below 48 degrees at night and 50 degrees is better. If your drainage is good, as it would appear to be, there should not be much danger of an excess of water. The compost you used is all right.

As you have not yet done any feeding, it would be well to give the plants some liquid cow or sheep manure once a fortnight. Use it moderately weak. Or, if preferred, give them a top-dressing of well decayed manure, lightly forking it in before watering. Avoid draughts from the ventilators. Add and remove ventilation a little at a time. On dull days let the temperature run up to 58 or 60 degrees, and 5 degrees higher on sunny days. C. W.

MILDEW ON SWEET PEAS.

In previous seasons I have grown sweet peas successfully, but this year, though I gave them the same culture, they are affected with mildew. The house runs east and west, with ventilators on the north side. I have lettuce, tomatoes and carnations in the house. Any suggestions will be thankfully received. W. O. S.

It is difficult to grow such a variety of crops, requiring different temperatures and widely different treatment, successfully in the same house. In a carnation house sweet peas will do quite well, but lettuce should be grown 10 degrees cooler and tomatoes 10 degrees warmer, for best results. A night temperature of 50 degrees when flowering suits sweet peas. Mildew is usually caused by cold draughts, and as your ventilators open on the worst side, air must be given with great care. Give a little at a time and reduce it in the same way. If you heat with steam, use a little sulphur on the pipes. Do not spray the vines. Maintain an atmosphere which feels genial and is never clammy or draughty. Above all, ventilate carefully. If you do not use steam, blow some powdered sulphur on the affected plants and keep a drier atmosphere. C. W.

ROSES PLANTED TOO LATE.

I would appreciate some advice through your valued paper. I got some roses in 4-inch pots about the last part of August and, as the greenhouse was not ready for them, I potted them in 5-inch pots and kept them in shaded frames. The soil was a mixture of three parts old sod, one part old hotbed manure and a little sand. The greenhouse was completed by October 1 and then I planted them in the benches, in the same soil as was used for potting. They have grown little since I got them.

The lower leaves turn brown at the edges, then become yellow and drop off, so there are never more than three or four leaves on each plant. With the exception of a few green flies, they seemed to be clean. I have cleared out the flies by fumigating. I have cut a few roses, with stems six and seven inches long. The stems are beginning to show signs of eyes all the way up. The varieties are Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney. I keep the temperature between 56 and 60 degrees at night. R. P.

Your roses were planted much too late. June and July, and not October, should be the time to bench them, and I am afraid that you will get little or no returns from your plants through the winter, which is the season when flowers are needed. In repotting them, sand should not have been used, and old cow manure or fine bone would have been better than the hotbed manure. The latter is too often full of worms and in no way compares with cow manure in the benches. Then, again, there was no need to shade the plants in the frames, as this would only weaken them and make them more susceptible to mildew. To get returns from the benches which the plants are now occupying, it would pay you to plant them with gladioli, snapdragons or some other crop which would be sure to give a good cut in spring, which you cannot expect from the roses. C. W.

HOUSE OF SUNBURST.

The photograph was taken November 29, 1912, at Myers & Samtman's, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. The house is 22x167 feet. It is planted with 1,677 Sunburst roses, which are all on their own roots. The stock was purchased from Charles H. Totty last March. Despite a check from black spot that carried off the foliage early in their career, the young plants did well, and July 2 the first house was planted from the pick of the stock, then in 3-inch pots. The second house, the one shown in the photograph, was planted July 18, from the remainder of the 3-inch plants. The first house is now coming into its third crop of bloom, and the second house into its second crop. In both houses the plants are on raised benches. There is little to choose between them in appearance. Mr. Samtman considers Sunburst as free blooming as My Maryland. Phil.

ROSE MRS. SHAWYER.

At nearly a score of the autumn flower shows one of the principal centers of attraction for the growers was the vase of the new rose, Mrs. George Shawyer, the variety shown in the accompanying illustration. It was exhibited as far west as St. Paul and its condition in each case demonstrated that it possesses shipping and keeping qualities, important attributes in commercial forcing roses. Mrs. Shawyer is an English seedling that attracted the attention of Charles H. Totty and to which he has given a thorough trial at his place at Madison. He thought well of it in the beginning and the farther he has gone with it the more enthusiastic he has become, until now he thinks it will take rank as the leading pink forcing rose when it becomes widely known, even displacing Killarney as a money-maker, just as Killarney displaced Bridesmaid because of its greater freedom of bloom. Mr. Totty says that the only disqualification he has been able to find is a susceptibility to mildew and that this is no greater than is characteristic of Killarney and White Killarney.

TO KEEP BOXWOOD SPRAYS.

What are the best methods of keeping boxwood sprays? This inquiry is so frequently made that we believe some remarks on this matter would be of value to many a florist.

To obtain the best results, boxwood sprays should be unpacked as soon as possible, after arrival and placed in water, the same as flowers, and, if convenient, keep them in a cool atmosphere.

This treatment will keep boxwood sprays for months, and improve them also. It will make them more lasting after they are exposed to the air. A large tub, half-barrel or any similar vessel will answer as a container. Immersing them will not injure them in the least.

GENISTAS FOR EASTER.

Can you give us any cultural details for genistas? We have some that we should like to bloom for Easter. J. C.

Keep the plants in a cold pit or greenhouse until early in January. Then place them in a temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night and they will be in flower on time. If they appear to be coming on a little too early, remove them to a colder house when the flowers start to open. Do not try to force these plants, or you will completely spoil them. Neither should they be sprayed over like azaleas and camellias. C. W.

ORIENTAL POPPY FROM SEED.

I want to find out whether oriental poppy sown last August will flower next summer. H. K.

SOIL FOR NEXT YEAR.

I should like to get your advice concerning the preparation of carnation soil for next year. We have a heavy soil and we can get but little sod. Should we use much manure with the soil? Should the manure be long? How about chemical fertilizers and bone? In buying cuttings from other places, we have found some of them so much larger than ours that we think the plants must have been grown in a much better soil. J. J. C. & S.

If your soil is top soil which has been growing good crops, it ought to be fairly good for growing carnations. If it is heavy in texture, it will be benefited by adding considerable long stable manure. As much as one-fourth will do no harm, providing it has ample time to decay thoroughly before using. Do not attempt to treat your soil with chemicals before bringing it into the house, for the danger of disastrous results is too great. If the soil is poor, you could add sheep manure to it, either when composting it or when plowing it the last time. Twenty-five pounds to each wagon load will help it wonderfully, and even fifty pounds would probably not do any harm.

The fact that those cuttings were larger than yours does not necessarily indicate that the stock was stronger than yours, unless they are the same kind of cuttings that you select. A medium sized cutting, taken from a plant which had not been overfed, is by far the best, in our estimation. That is the reason why cuttings taken from plants which are grown for cuttings alone are usually preferable to those taken from blooming stock. However, if the blooming stock is grown moderately, the cuttings taken from it are equal to any. A. F. J. B.

MORE ABOUT FEEDING.

I notice that A. F. J. B., in The Review of November 14, page 26, advises the use of sheep manure for feeding carnations. I should like to know the quantity used per square foot of bed and about how often it should be used. Should bone meal be used? If so, what quantity and how often?

In using nitrate of soda, one pound to fifty gallons, can the foliage be watered without injury to the plants? In using the sheep manure and bone meal, can they be dusted or thrown on the plants or should they be thrown between the rows? I should think they could be put on more evenly if thrown on the plants. When thrown between the rows, the middle plants in the bed are likely to get less fertilizer. W. C. P. & C.

When we apply sheep manure to our carnation beds, we usually put on a handful (about as much as a 3-inch pot would hold) to each row, halfway across a 5-foot bench. It is easy enough to scatter it over the surface of the bed, so that practically the whole surface is covered evenly. A little practice will make that operation easy. Do not try to throw it all in from the edge of the bed, or you will have just the result you suggest. Nothing could be gained by dusting it over the plants. In fact, to dust it on the plants might bring on disease, as much of it would naturally lodge in the axils of the leaves and, if it remained there long in a damp condition, it might start a fungous growth which would develop leaf-spot. So keep it off the plants all you can.

Do not use sheep manure too often. It is rich in nitrogen and has a tendency to make the stock soft. Once in six weeks is often enough, usually. The amount of sunshine is the safest guide. Less sunshine, less feed of any kind.

We have not used a pound of bone for our carnations in the last four years. Experiments conducted previous to that time demonstrated to our entire satisfaction that the money we had been spending each year on bone for carnations was thrown away. In watering with nitrate of soda, no special harm will result if some of it splashes on the foliage. But that is not where you want it, so why not try to get it all where it is wanted? A. F. J. B.

DRY ROT OF CARNATIONS.

This is my third year in carnation growing and I have had almost the same trouble each year. I have been trying different remedies, but it seems that every one fails. Every year I have used new soil. In preparing a bed—that is, a ground bed—I added one wheelbarrow of cow manure to each bed 4x12 feet. The plants start nicely each year, but after that I have my troubles. The trouble starts soon after housing and pinching them. They either stand still and do not grow, or they dry up from the bottom, leaf by leaf, till the whole plant is dried up, just like the one that you will find enclosed. I have given them plenty of ventilation every day and also at night, except in extremely cold weather. I have tried to run them dry, and again I have tried them wet. I have also tried different sorts of sprays for insects. I do the watering in the morning on clear days, and do not water on cloudy days, but the trouble continues just the same. In some cases some of the shoots are quite healthy and others are dry, on the same plant.

I am growing the three kinds of Enchantress, and Perfection, Lady Bountiful and Beacon. The Enchantress sorts are the worst affected. Any light that you can throw on my trouble will be much appreciated. J. G. K.

The specimen forwarded is affected with what is commonly known as branch rot, or dry rot. If you have much of it among your carnations, you have good reason to feel discouraged with them. It is perhaps not so destructive as the wet stem-rot, as it does not spread so rapidly, but it is harder to control, once it gets a start, as we know of practically nothing that will destroy it. The only process that we have ever known to check it is to pull up every plant that is affected and burn it.

If your plants are so badly affected that you cannot feel safe in getting cuttings which are free from it, you will do well to buy a fresh stock, either of rooted cuttings this winter or field-grown plants next summer. Of course you will change the soil in your beds, as to plant new stock in the old soil would only invite a repetition of your old troubles.

Good cultural methods will, of course, help some in dealing with any kind of disease, by helping the plants to resist its attacks. This disease, however, seems little affected in that way. A. F. J. B.

BROWN PETALS ON BONNAFFON.

Some of my Bonnaffon chrysanthemums, both white and yellow, are getting a few brown petals on the outer circle of the flowers. What is the cause of this? They are planted on side benches and consequently are near the glass about blooming time. The trouble was first noticed last year. I was quite careful in watering, heating and ventilating this year, on account of last year's trouble. M. B.

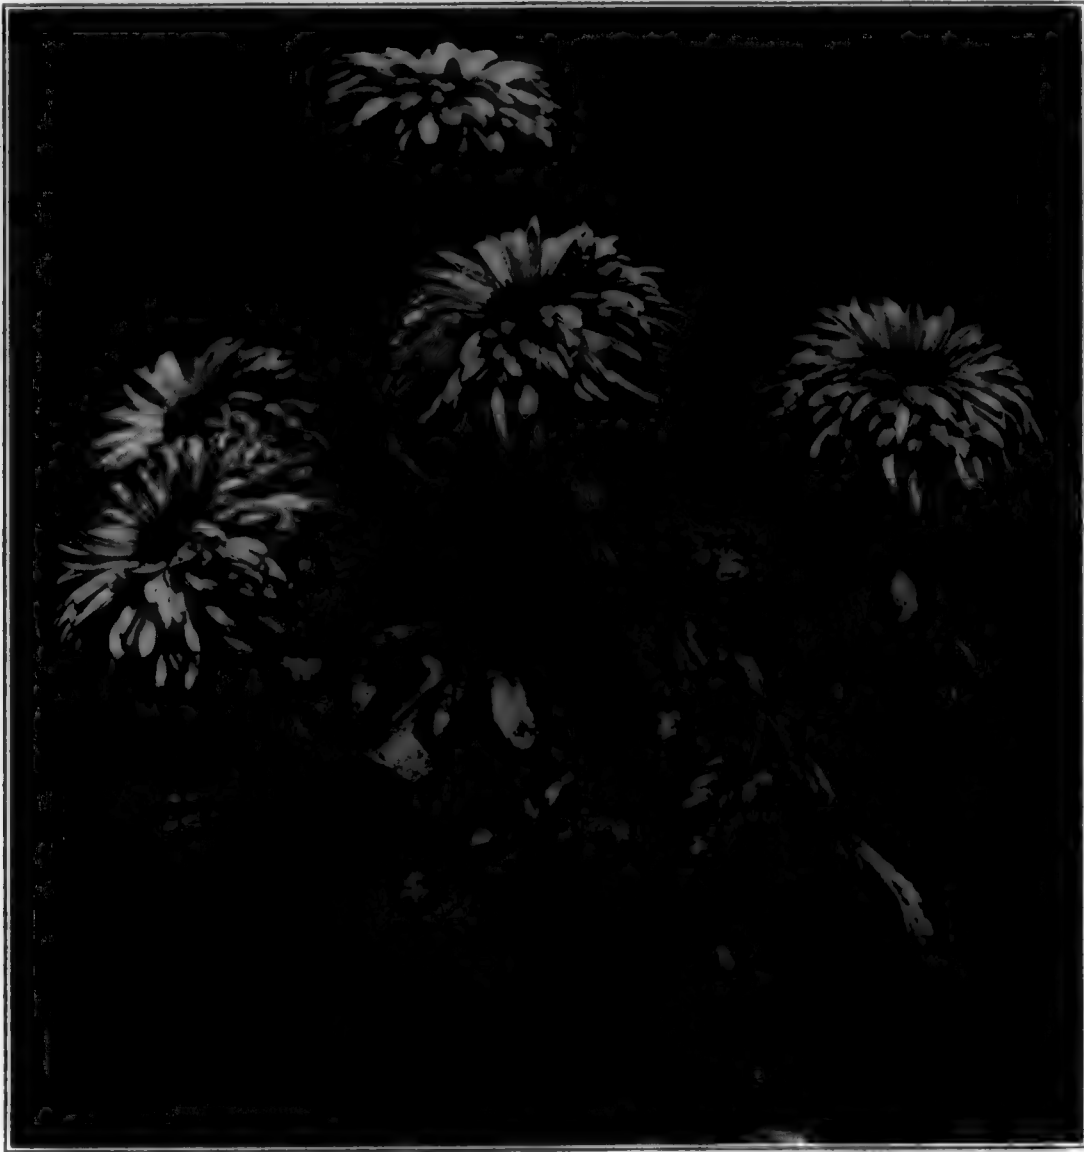

The brown petals on the Bonnaffons can come from two causes, either the damping of the petals, which is seen to a greater or less extent on practically every variety, or the damage done by spider, which works rapidly over the flowers after syringing is discontinued and the flowers show color. The spider sometimes renders the flowers utterly useless. I assume you are familiar enough with plants to know if the trouble is damping. The spider can be identified by the web that is woven all over the flower. Chas. H. Totty.

BLACK APHIS ON MUMS.

Our mums are fine, but some of them are bothered with black fly. We cannot use Nico-fume now, as we are afraid of spoiling the flowers. Please tell us what to do. C. B. G.

You need not be afraid to use the Nico-fume or other tobacco papers in your chrysanthemum house. This fumigation will not harm the flowers in the least, but tobacco stems would be pretty sure to scorch them. If you have a bad dose of black fly, two or more fumigations will be necessary, for this pest gets among the petals of the flowers and is then hard to kill. C. W.

NEW SINGLES.

For years I have argued strongly in favor of the single varieties of chrysanthemums and it is a pleasure to note that this year they have come into their own. In any case, they were much more prominent in every exhibition that I attended than they have been in previous years. Some of the newer varieties in this type are well worth investigating by the cut flower growers. It was quickly seen that the single, as a single pure and simple, could not stand because when they were packed at all closely together in a box they looked wretched when taken out. The newer varieties of this year's introduction have some three or four rows of petals in place of the single row. This increased petalage means that the flowers can be cut and transported long distances and come out of the box in good shape. Some half dozen of the newest varieties are as follows:

Josephine, a deep yellow with a foot-stalk perfectly stiff. When disbudded, this variety will make flowers six inches across. It is away ahead of any other single to date.

Mensa, as a white, will occupy the same place Josephine will in yellow. The petalage is so stiff that the flower can be squeezed into any shape and come out perfect.

One of the most beautiful of what is termed the art shade is Dorothy Dann, illustrated herewith. Dorothy Dann is a salmon bronze and under artificial light makes one of the most beautiful table decorations ever seen.

Joan Edwards, a beautiful rose-pink, is another variety that is certainly deserving of more than passing notice.

Mrs. W. A. Higgs is a white, overlaid with a flush of pink, making a striking variety.

One of the most distinct singles ever introduced is Ceddie White. The color is novel and striking. The flower is a deep yellow, but the tips of the petals in every case are margined with blood red. Before the color fades in the flower I know of nothing so striking as this combination.

Singles have certainly come to stay, and when we get rid of a good many of the weedy types the classes for singles will look different from what they do at the present time.

TO WINTER MUMS AND SALVIAS.

I have some stock plants of chrysanthemums and Salvia Zurich which I wish to carry through the winter for cuttings in the spring. Please tell me how to do this. L. N. B.

Keep the chrysanthemum stock plants in a cold greenhouse; anything just clear of actual freezing will be all right, or you can carry them over in a cold-frame if it is protected to keep out frost. A good coating of perfectly dry leaves over the plants will in itself exclude a lot of frost.

The salvias should be kept over winter in a greenhouse where a night temperature of 50 degrees is maintained. If grown colder, the plants will have a starved appearance and will lose much of their foliage. C. W.

SNAPDRAGON CUTTINGS.

I wish to make a statement for the benefit of the readers of The Review. I had supposed that snapdragon was not a hard thing to handle and that, being an old-fashioned flower, any successful greenhouse man knew how to pot and handle a snapdragon cutting, but I am surprised to find how few florists really know how. In every case the complaint is of the drying up of the cuttings. I find there never is complaint that they dry up after they have been potted and become established. The fault is in the handling of the cuttings the first week. I will say first in regard to my Single Chrysanthemum Joan Edwards.

SOIL FOR NEXT YEAR.

I should like to get your advice concerning the preparation of carnation soil for next year. We have a heavy soil and we can get but little soil. Should we use much manure with the soil? Should the manure be long? How about chemical fertilizers and bone? In buying cuttings from other places, we have found some of them so much larger than ours that we think the plants must have been grown in a much better soil. J. J. C. & S.

If your soil is top soil which has been growing good crops, it ought to be fairly good for growing carnations. If it is heavy in texture, it will be benefited by adding considerable long stable manure. As much as one-fourth will do no harm, providing it has ample time to decay thoroughly before using. Do not attempt to treat your soil with chemicals before bringing it into the house, for the danger of disastrous results is too great. If the soil is poor, you could add sheep manure to it, either when composting it or when plowing it the last time. Twenty five pounds to each wagon load will help it wonderfully, and even fifty pounds would probably not do any harm.

The fact that those cuttings were larger than yours does not necessarily indicate that the stock was stronger than yours, unless they are the same kind of cuttings that you select. A medium sized cutting, taken from a plant which had not been overfed, is by far the best, in our estimation. That is the reason why cuttings taken from plants which are grown for cuttings alone are usually preferable to those taken from blooming stock. However, if the blooming stock is grown moderately, the cuttings taken from it are equal to any. A. F. J. B.

MORE ABOUT FEEDING.

I notice that A. F. J. B., in The Review of November 11, page 26, advises the use of sheep manure for feeding carnations. I should like to know the quantity used per square foot of bed and about how often it should be used. Should bone meal be used? If so, what quantity and how often?

In using nitrate of soda, one pound to fifty gallons, can the foliage be watered without injury to the plants? In using the sheep manure and bone meal, can they be dusted or thrown on the plants or should they be thrown between the rows? I should think they could be put on more evenly if thrown on the plants. When thrown between the rows, the middle plants in the bed are likely to get less fertilizer. W. C. P. & C.

When we apply sheep manure to our carnation beds, we usually put on a handful (about as much as a 3 inch pot would hold) to each row, halfway across a 5-foot bench. It is easy enough to scatter it over the surface of the bed, so that practically the whole surface is covered evenly. A little practice will make that operation easy. Do not try to throw it all in from the edge of the bed, or you will have just the result you suggest. Nothing could be gained by dusting it over the plants. In fact, to dust it on the plants might bring on disease, as much of it would naturally lodge in the axils of the leaves and, if it remained there long in a damp condition, it might start a fungous growth which would develop leaf-spot. So keep it off the plants all you can.

testing the shipping possibilities, that I packed 100 rooted cuttings in wet moss, wrapped them in paper and shipped them 1,200 miles. When delivered they relabeled and returned them. It took five days before I got them. I received them in the evening and unpacked them next morning, putting them in the soil, and saved ninety out of the 100. Now, I will tell you how to handle the cuttings. The compost should be one-third sharp sand and two-thirds good, rich loam. Do not let the temperature go above 50 degrees and, above all things, give them plenty of water. If you will follow this rule you should save ninety per cent of your cuttings. Don't keep them too hot. I will say in conclusion, try this and see where the fault lies. C. W. Harrold.
